Carter's Brother's
Gas Station Explodes

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a service station owned by Billy Carter, brother of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, Saturday night, sending smoke and flames billowing through the air but no one was hurt.

Jimmy and Billy Carter were one block away playing softball with reporters and rushed to the scene. The danger of widespread damage appeared to have been checked quickly.

A fleet tank truck that was unloading at the time of the explosion was backed away from the station within a few moments.

It appeared the two trucks of the Plains fire department were able to keep the flames under control.

Two Let Out of Jail
To Turn Off Gas

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Two managers of a chemical plant that leaked poison gas over north central Italy were released from jail temporarily Saturday to help authorities deactivate the factory.

The two men, Paolo Paoletti and Ervig Zwehl, were arrested Friday because the Swiss-owned ICMESSA plant they managed leaked a poison cloud containing the deadly chemical dioxene over the town of Seveso and nearby villages July 10.

They were escorted from jail by police to attend a four-hour meeting with health officials who were drawing up plans to remove poisonous cyanide and chlorine gases still in the ICMESSA plant.

Lebanese Cease-Fire
Dissolves in Battle

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy fighting Saturday around Lebanon's second largest city of Tripoli, crumbled the last vestiges of a Arab-mediated cease-fire supposed to have gone into effect last Thursday.

The body of a Lebanese cook at the U.S. Embassy was found floating in the Mediterranean off the city Saturday five days after he was dragged from his apartment 200 yards from the embassy, a U.S. spokesman said.

The spokesman could not say who was responsible for the kidnapping but diplomats speculated the victim, Antoine Saab, had been singled out because of his U.S. employment or the fact he once worked as a cook for ultrarightist Interior Minister Camille Chamoun.

Amin Now Amicable,
Except to Kissinger

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Uganda and Kenya signed peace documents Saturday, and Ugandan President Idi Amin said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was the only "obstacle" to restoring relations between Kampala and the United States.

Amin, speaking on Uganda Radio shortly after signing documents ending the state of hostility between Uganda and Kenya, said that if Kissinger left the Ford administration "normal relations between the two countries would be restored."

"Uganda has many friends in America and has bought a lot of things from there, including planes," Amin said. The unpredictable Ugandan leader said that only Kissinger was an "obstacle to relations being restored."

Bombs in Ireland
Force Evacuation

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Security authorities ordered the evacuation of 5,000 residents from a mid-Ulster town Saturday when two bombs exploded in a gift shop and a newspaper store and police were warned that four more were planted.

No one was injured in the explosions, police said. They hit the center of Magherafelt in county Londonderry, 60 miles west of Belfast, 20 minutes after police received a telephoned warning that a half-dozen bombs were planted in the town.

Reagan Funneled Funds from Land Deals?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A complicated land deal involving Twentieth Century-Fox 10 years ago may have been aimed at making Ronald Reagan financially free to run for president this year, Rolling Stone magazine said Saturday.

The biweekly said Reagan purchased his 290-acre Yearling Row Ranch in the Santa Monica Mountains for $85,000 in 1951. He sold 236 acres to Twentieth Century-Fox for $1.9 million in 1966 — one month after being elected California governor, it said.

The story, appearing in the Aug. 26 edition which goes on sale Tuesday, quotes Fox executive Phillip Myers as saying company records indicated the purchase was for "production purposes." Fox had owned some nearby land, and Myers said he could find no record to explain why that property was not adequate for filming. The company did not need the extra land for a tax shelter, he said, because it was losing money in the mid-60s and spending $1.9 million increased losses.

Reagan appointed Fox executive Harry Sokolov chairman of the state Parks and Recreation Board in 1967.

Rolling Stone said the board bought the ranch for a park in 1974 and, at the same time, the state bought the remaining Fox property in the area.

"Because the state paid for all the land in a lump sum, it is nearly impossible to determine the movie company's per-acre return on the Reagan ranch," the magazine said. "Over-all, the company received only $1,800 an acre for its holdings."

The magazine quoted an unidentified Democratic state official as saying: "We spent a long time looking into this because it always smelled funny to me. We came away with the feeling that Twentieth Century-Fox was a pawn in the deal. We figured Reagan's gang had actually put up the money."

Rolling Stone said the official's hypothesis was that "secret sugar daddies" financed the deal, using Fox as a conduit to "insure Reagan was financially free to run for president."

An unidentified Los Angeles County official also was quoted as saying Reagan returned Fox' favor in 1968 by signing a bill which gave the motion picture industry a big tax break.

Rolling Stone said it uncovered a second land deal which seemed "to lend credence" to the conduit theory.

The magazine said a 54-acre parcel of Reagan land next to the Santa Monica Mountain land was sold in 1968 for $165,000, five times the assessed value, as part of a trade with Santa Rosa Ranches.

A year later, 57th Madison Corp. bought it. Rolling Stone said a spokesman at the New York office of 57th Madison, which was incorporated in Delaware, referred its reporter to "a Dr. Jules Stein of California."

It identified Stein as a cofounder of Music Corp. of America, a big movie, record and television conglomerate, and a man with a long personal and business relationship with Reagan.

The 54-acre tract had been placed in trust while Reagan was governor of California, the magazine said, and Stein had served as a trustee of Reagan's property. By buying the land secondhand through Santa Rosa, Stein "avoided any ethical, legal or political questions the transaction might have raised," it said.

Politicians Reluctant to Change Stands

Officials Say Road 'Can't Be Stopped'

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — The proposed Kingston north-south arterial has "gone too far to be stopped," says State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-40th Dist.

That, he believes, sums up the political and economic realities of the controversial downtown highway.

Schermerhorn, to whom citizens groups have appealed for new public hearings on the $35 million road plan, said Friday he "won't interfere" with the Kingston Common Council's majority decision four years ago in favor of the arterial.

The local aldermen, meanwhile, are experiencing some political realities of their own as they consider the latest citizen protests — namely, that the council can't call for more public hearings without seeming to reverse its earlier approval of the arterial.

"We are in a situation where it's almost impossible to make any move without committing ourselves one way or the other," said Alderman Titus B. Sims, R-13th Ward, minority leader of the council.

"If we ask the state for new hearings, they may very well interpret that as a negative move. We certainly couldn't remain neutral."

Already funded by the federal government and the state, the project is scheduled to begin next spring and be finished by late 1979.

Schermerhorn, accompanied by members of anti-arterial forces, last week toured the proposed route where the four-lane road would remove some 60 homes, then talked with State Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler.

"Schuler told me the project is 'go,' that it's too late to stop it," Schermerhorn said. "Any change for an alternate route would hold up the project four or five years, and then there might not be money for it."

In the works for some 18 years now, the arterial has shrunk from being part of an entire new Rockland-Albany roadway to something of an alternate Rte. 9W only 2.4 miles long through Kingston's downtown east side.

While opponents have ridiculed a $6 million bridge that would be built within sight of the present Rondout Creek span, Schermerhorn said that aspect of the arterial plan appeals to him: "We need another bridge. The present one is overcrowded."

Kingston's downtown urban renewal area was built on the supposition that the arterial would go through it, and federal officials have estimated local taxpayers might have to make up $1.5 million in urban renewal cash if the highway is killed.

Further, the highway ties into com-

Helicopter hit power lines and crashed on Route 84.

PATTERSON — Two Woodstock building contractors were killed Friday evening when their helicopter struck power lines and crashed on Route 84 in the Putnam County Town of Patterson.

State Police say George B. Francis, 44, Highwoods-Zena Road, the pilot of the helicopter and a passenger, James A. Cousins, 36, Bearsville, struck power lines at the intersection of Routes 84 and 311, flipped over and crashed upside down in the eastbound lane of Route 84.

The two had reportedly taken off from Stewart Airport, Newburgh, and were flying east along Route 84 at a very low altitude because of a low cloud ceiling, according to police.

Both Cousins and Francis were pro-

Poison Prime Suspect in Deaths

ATLANTA (UPI) — Scientists trying to track down the cause of death of 25 American Legionnaires have on their list of possibilities a chemical toxicant so powerful that it brings swift death, yet is tasteless and odorless.

"There are some (chemicals) that are toxic in very minute quantities," Dr. Roslyn Robinson, director of the national Center for Disease Control's Bureau of Laboratories, said Saturday. "We don't necessarily smell or taste them."

But Robinson said he knew of no chemical which would meet the criteria of being tasteless and odorless and at the same time produce the symptoms experienced by the victims.

A total of 135 Pennsylvania American Legionnaires came down with an influenza-like illness after attending a convention in Philadelphia last month. Most were able to throw off the illness, which was marked by high fever, headache and a dry cough, but 25 met quick deaths.

The CDC has ruled out swine influenza and has virtually eliminated any of the major bacteria, or any known virus or fungus, as the cause. This left a toxic chemical as the prime suspect.

The CDC, equipped with laboratory facilities rated among the best in the western world, has assigned eight of its eleven toxicologists to answering the riddle. They are working in shifts 24 hours a day, seven days a week, testing blood and tissue specimens of the victims.

The work is being conducted in an old converted Army barracks building in Chamblee, Ga., about 10 miles from the main CDC complex in Atlanta. The lab is closely guarded and the scientists handling the specimens wear gowns, gloves and masks.

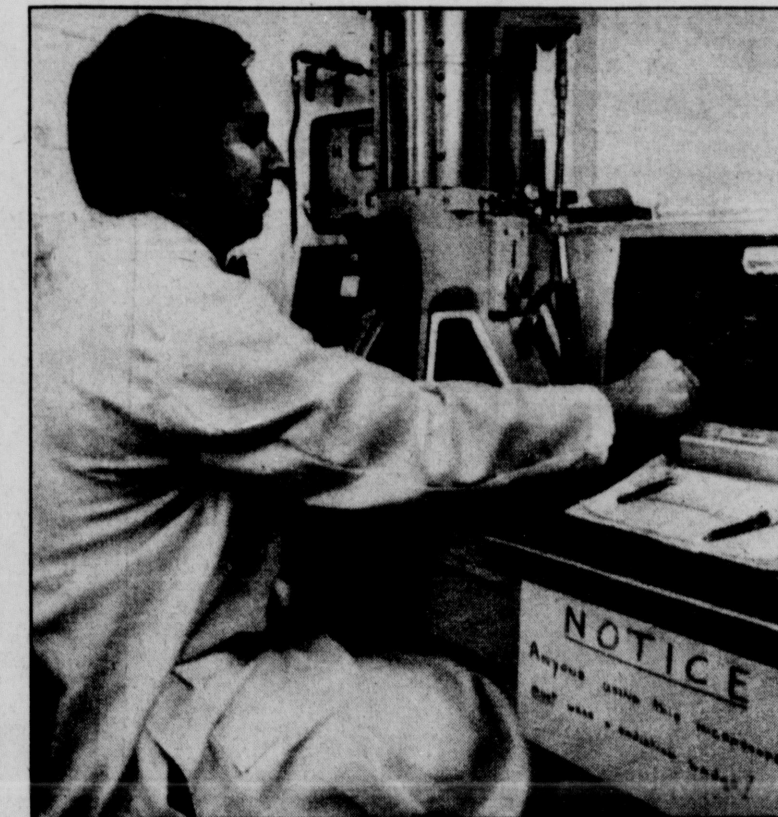

While the toxicologists are at work, the CDC's epidemiologists, or medical detectives, will continue checking with the families and friends of the victims and with those who survived the disease in hopes of finding some pattern that would give a clue.

The epidemiologists have been at work for weeks, however, and so far, however, no results in the this painstaking detective work have been announced.

Robinson said that if a fairly common chemical was the cause of the illness, the toxicologists could come up with a finding pretty quickly.

If research indicates a new chemical is involved, the investigation could take weeks because an entirely new approach would have to be devised, he said.

SEARCHING — Dr. Francis Chandler works in Atlanta disease center with an electron microscope as he seeks the mysterious source of the malady that has killed 25 American Legion Conventioners during the past two weeks.

COLONIAL CRAFT?

Heritage Day Breaks 26-Year Sunny Spell

NEW PALTZ — For the first time in 26 years heavy rains and even heavier clouds hung a gloomy blanket over Heritage Day festivities here, but in true Huguenot spirit the event went on almost as planned.

Many of the working craft displays, dances and exhibitions were moved under cover of the Reformed Church education building, the snack bar was set up in the church basement and visitors walked, umbrellas in hand, through centuries of history and architecture on display hardly missing a step.

In previous years the event had been called Stone House day, but, according to several local residents, so many other communities had begun calling their historical celebration by that name that this year New Paltz rechristened its annual festivities "Heritage Day."

Despite the fortitude of the many volunteers costumed in flowing skirts and knicker breeches, organizers of Saturday's visit into the past were less than pleased with the small number of people willing to chance the elements and pay the $3 admission for the day-long program.

Most of those who did turn out were "regulars" — local residents with strong personal or political roots in the development and growth of the New Paltz settlement.

But for anyone who did take a chance on being soaked by the day's sporadic showers the risk was well worth it.

Flood Watchers Worried About Continuing Storms

POUGHKEEPSIE — The Mid-Hudson Area Flood Group has announced a flood watch for the Hudson Valley because of recent rainfall and the possibility Hurricane Belle could affect the area early this week.

Larry Fein, the group's coordinator, says that recent rainfall from a storm from the West has left the area saturated and rainfall is expected to continue for the next 36 hours.

He estimates more than two inches has fallen in the past two days in parts of the valley.

Fein says if Hurricane Belle, now about 375 miles east of Palm Beach, Florida, were to come near the area, more rain could cause flood problems.

Fein said the mountainous areas would be most likely to be affected by flash floods and advised campers against going into the Catskills, Shawangunks and Berkshires.

Fein said recent changes in the jet stream in the upper atmosphere, which often steers storms, make it more likely that hurricanes from the South will come to the Northeast coast than in previous years.

Tropical storm Belle was classified a hurricane at 6 p.m. Saturday and is reported to be carrying winds up to 80 m.p.h. The disturbance formed off the coast of Africa and moved across the Atlantic, causing a wave of showers in the Caribbean. It has been stationary off the Florida coast for two days and is expected to move north. The National Weather Service has issued a hurricane watch from the Georgia coast to Cape Hatteras, North Carolina.

The National Weather Service Station in Albany, however, discounted Saturday the danger of a flood in this region. A weather service spokesman said the rainfall in the Hudson Valley has not been excessive and no one has put a real track on Hurricane Belle. He said that major rivers are low enough to absorb possible runoff water and any flood problems would be with small streams.

Catholics Celebrate Variety

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Roman Catholics at the 41st International Eucharistic Congress Saturday celebrated the wide variety of ethnic heritages that have combined to make the U.S. Church the church of immigrants.

With some 27 different ethnic liturgies and rites, pilgrims throughout the city worshipped in the native tongues of Korea, Lithuania, Poland, Germany, Italy, Ireland, Croatia, China and a host of others.

Cardinal Sergio Pignedoli of the Vatican told worshippers at an Italian-American service that such gatherings were important so as to "not forget merical redevelopment plans for that area, the failure of which would have a "serious economic impact" on the city. Mayor Francis R. Koenig said. "Maybe an alternate route further east through a less populous area would be better," Schermerhorn said, "but it's not my decision to make. It's too late to change the plans without holding up the project, maybe losing it." Koenig also has supported the highway as a major source of outside money for sagging area construction trades. "As I indicated to them (the opponents)," Schermerhorn said, "I think they were a little late in surfacing." Joined in opposition to the arterial with CCTI, the Irate Consume of Ulster County and local and county officials of the Conservative Party is the We've Had It Taxpayers Association, which reportedly has written its objections to Gov. Hugh L. Carey. As of Friday, the governor's office said it hadn't received a recent letter from WHITA.

HERITAGE DAY IN NEW PALTZ, THROUGH A LENS

colonial American dance was on display.

Well versed, working craftspeople such as the Gardner family who spent the day dipping candles and answering questions on the once-necessary s household chore, smiled at the curious spectators and explained their work as if they had been born to it.

In another corner of the educational center basement several young potters spun their foot-pedalled wheels and worked clay into the bowls and jugs similar to those used by the area's early Dutch and French settlers.

During the early part of the afternoon lace-and-flowered dancers from the Senior Citizens Dance Group swayed and stepped to period tunes in well researched examples of early American dances.

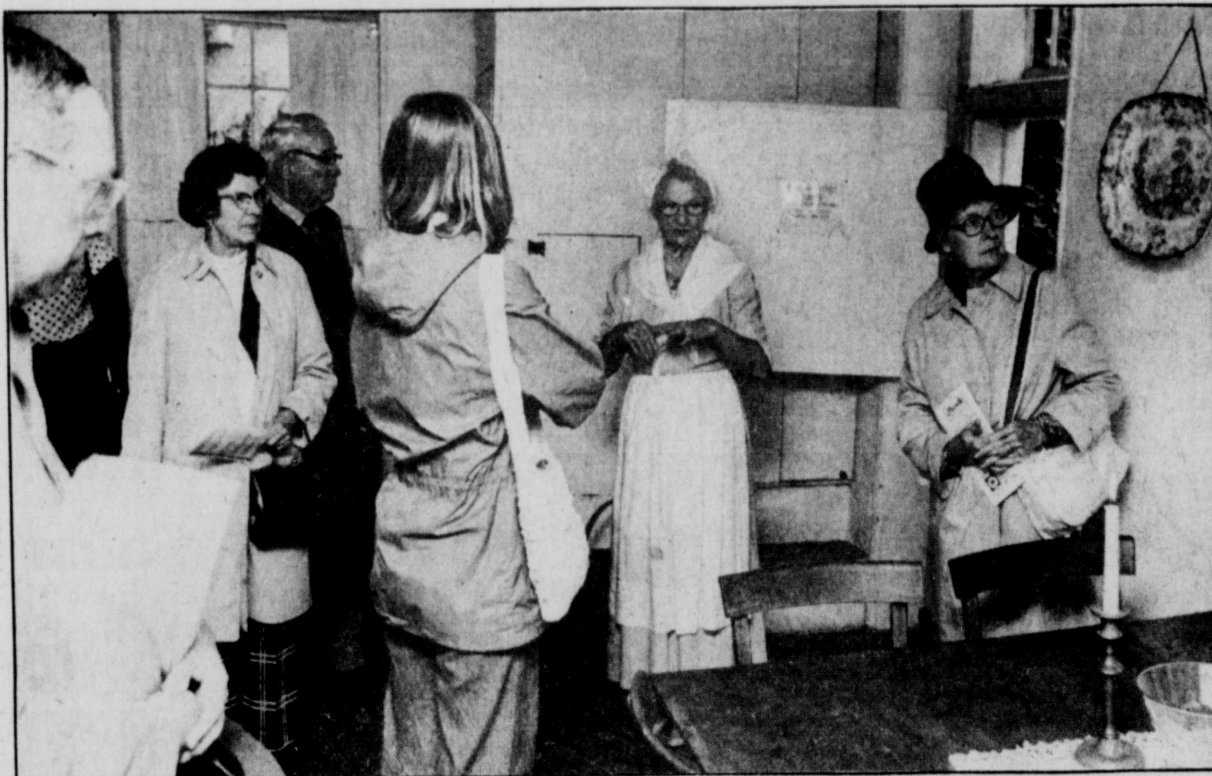

One the steps of the church long tables of handmade lace doilies and home-baked breads were on sale, along with garden produce and souvenir placements which outlined the street sites and location of historic houses in the area.

Many of the visitors on the tour of five stone houses open for display were children like 4-year-old Jennifer Davidson of Rochester, who had made a special trip with her parents to attend Heritage Day.

Jennifer especially liked the antiques dolls cradle and toys she saw in the completely restored houses.

Paul Lent of New Paltz may be only 10 but he has been helping out at Heritage Day for as long as he can remember. This year he strutted along smiling in his colonial blue coat and knee-high white stockings, offering directions and a grin to anyone who needed them.

An inside look at the way the early Huguenots lived.

Kingston Man Arrested in Stabbing

ELLENVILLE — Ellenville State Police arrested a Kingston man Saturday on charges of second degree assault in connection with a stabbing incident Friday night.

State police say John C. Cole, 36, Kingston, allegedly stabbed William Martin, High Falls. Martin was treated at Ellenville Hospital and released. Cole was brought before Town of Rochester Justice Harold Lipton and remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $2500 bail to await appearance Aug. 11.

Woman Injured

A Bloomington woman is in the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital after her car struck a tree in the Town of Ulster.

The Ulster County Sheriff's Department reported that Eileen Ulrich, 27, PO Box 40, Bloomington, was southbound on the Creek Locks Road early Saturday morning when she lost control of her car. The vehicle went off the left side of the road and struck a tree. The sheriff's department reported road conditions were bad because of high winds and heavy rain. Ms. Ulrich was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance with severe facial cuts, neck injuries, and a possible broken ankle.

Drug Arrests

The sheriff's department also reported the arrest of two Port Ewen youths for possession of a controlled substance and for drug paraphernalia.

Police say George Dennis, 17, Port Ewen, and a juvenile, 15, Sleightsburg, were arrested in Marletown Friday night. The two were brought before Marletown Justice Robert Diamond and charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree and with criminal possession of drug paraphernalia (instruments). Dennis was remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $500 bail and the juvenile was turned over to the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

Narrow Escape

A car driven by a Saugerties man was struck by a freight train Saturday morning when it stalled on the tracks.

Hurley State Police report that Ken Sickler, 20, Saugerties, eastbound on the Glasco Turnpike in the Town of Saugerties, attempted to cross the railroad tracks in front of a southbound freight while the red warning lights were flashing. His vehicle reportedly stalled and was struck in the rear on the right side. The vehicle was thrown twenty feet. Sickler received first aid from Sawyer's Ambulance but was not hospitalized.

Weapons Charge

Kingston Police arrested a Kingston man Friday evening on charges of grand larceny in the third degree and criminal possession of a weapon (numchaku sticks) in the fourth degree.

Patrolmen John Bonse and Charles Polacco arrested Ray Ortis, 26, 5104 Broadway East, Kingston, at 5 p.m. Friday after he allegedly attacked his wife. Ortis appeared in City Court Saturday morning and was remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Bogus Bills

Kingston area residents are cautioned by city police against accepting $1 bills with the edges of $20 bills glued onto them. Police report several such bills have been passed in the area. City detectives are investigating.

***

Possession Charged

The Ulster County Sheriff's Department arrested two Port Ewen youths Saturday night for possession of a controlled substance and drug implements.

Deputy Sheriff Chris Johansen reportedly arrested

Jesse James Flynn, 19, Main Street, Port Ewen, and Robert LaTour, 18, Port Ewen, in the Ross Park section of the Town of Esopus.

Both were taken before Town of Kingston Justice Douglas Dye and charged with three counts of possession of drug implements (three pipes) and possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree. Both were remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $200 bail for a future appearance.

Accident Injures Two

Hurley State Police report a two-car accident in the Town of Saugerties Saturday afternoon in which two persons were injured.

Police say Arnold Dickinson, 24, Orange, N.J., was westbound on Route 212 when a car driven by James St. John, 16, Woodstock, backed into his path. Dickinson's car struck the St. John vehicle broadside.

Dickinson and Louis Pezzuco, 25, Cranston, N.J., a passenger in the St. John vehicle, were taken to Kingston Hospital by Sawyer's Ambulance. Dickinson was treated for facial lacerations and leg injuries and released. Pezzuco suffered lacerations of the head and a concussion and is reported in fair condition.

St. John was uninjured and received summonses for unsafe backing and for being an unsupervised learner.

French Students Find New Paltz 'Mediocre'

NEW PALTZ — French college students who attended the summer session of SUNY-New Paltz found American students friendly but superficial and the summer school relaxed but mediocre.

"I would say the level of teaching here is much lower than at Nanterre," said Helene Gauthier of Paris, who attends the University of Paris at Nanterre.

I don't agree with the way they are studying literature—they don't go into as much detail."

But Annie Popelard, also of Paris cautioned, "We can't say much about six weeks—it passed in a jiffy. My Art Studio course was very good."

Other students said they were unwilling to make a comparison between New Paltz and Nanterre because they understood the schools occupied different positions in their nations' ranking of colleges.

The students, all of whom spoke impressively articulate English, were more pleased about the relaxed atmosphere at the school. At Nanterre, they explained, the professor sits on a raised platform at the front of the class and almost all work is done with comprehensive examinations in mind.

"The way of teaching (here) is very informal," said Thomas

Birouste of Parigne L'Eveque, "I speak to my teachers often."

Birouste and his fellow students were off that afternoon to swim at the home of SUNY-New Paltz's President, Stanley K. Coffman Jr. — something not likely to happen at Nanterre.

The summer exchange program, now in its fifth year, "is an attempt to give the students a center and introduce them to college life in the United States. It's not typical of American college life as their is during the summer session," explained program coordinator Jeanette Connors.

New Paltz students, as part of the exchange, can learn French at the University of Besancon or follow in the footsteps of St. Thomas Aquinas and Peter Abelard by studying philosophy at the University of Paris.

The French students were pleased by the friendliness of Americans.

"I found something amazing," said Florence Beline of Neuilly, a Paris suburb, "the Americans are both friendly and individualist. They are more concrete, and less intellectual here—now at Harvard, they are very intelligent."

"There's a lot of noise at night here. The doors are always open—you never see anybody in the hall at Nanterre," she added.

"I enjoy it here—at Nanterre, everyone just shuts the door," Ms. Gauthier said. "When they built Nanterre, they wanted to build a campus without any campus life—no cafes or anything like that. It was a failure, it was depressing—everybody locked their door."

But Birouste said it wasn't easy to make real friends with Americans: "It's all very superficial. Even if you spend all night talking with someone, he won't be a better friend to you."

They did find Americans generally civilized people, however. "People here are fond of art, and they play serious music very well," said Fabrice Teulon of Orleans, who will teach French in Louisiana next year.

Nanterre was the birthplace of the student revolution which rocked France in 1968, and the students were surprised by the comparatively low level of political activity here.

"At Nanterre, the walls are plastered with posters this thick," said Ms. Gauthier, holding her thumb about an inch apart from her forefinger.

Iran to Buy U.S. Arms

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Saturday that Iran plans to buy $10 billion to $15 billion worth of American armaments by 1980 to modernize its armed forces.

Kissinger spoke after signing an agreement to boost U.S.-Iranian commercial trade from $10 billion since 1974 to $40 billion during the period 1976-1980.

"The military estimates would add $2 billion to $3 billion a year over that five year period," Kissinger said at a joint news conference with Iranian Finance Minister Hushang Ansary.

"If you add the military (figure) to the commercial the total figure would be $50 billion-$55 billion," he said.

Since 1973, Iran has already bought $10 billion worth of advanced U.S. equipment, including aircraft, specially fitted Spruance class destroyers, and a variety of other armaments.

Such massive sales to Iran prompted the Senate to charge last week that the management of the arms program was "out of control." Congress has also criticized Iran for alleged repression of civil rights.

The Shah said Friday that his country would be the judge of its own defense needs and that it would shop elsewhere if it is rejected by the United States.

In Saturday's news conference, Kissinger justified Iran's large military purchases as being in the interests of "its own defense which is consistent with our own objectives that countries in whose security we do have an interest should make a major effort.

"If you look at the stabilizing role Iran has played in Middle Eastern and south Asian policy, we have found it to be in the national interest of the United States and in the interest of regional stability to cooperate with Iran in its (arms) program," Kissinger said.

Three Die in Fiery Crash

NEW WINDSOR, N.Y. (UPI) — State police Saturday said they were considering bringing criminal charges in connection with an auto accident on the State Thruway late Friday in which three New Yorkers burned to death.

Troopers identified the victims as Naomia Galarza, 36, of Brentwood, her son, William Barros, 18, and Terri Gibbs, 18, address unknown.

Robert Galarza, the dead woman's husband, was taken to St. Lukes Hospital in Newburgh, suffering from burns to his head and body.

State Police said Galarza's car was parked on a Thruway shoulder just south of Newburgh so an exchange of drivers could be made. When Galarza pulled back onto the Thruway, around 11:40 p.m., he veered into the path of a car driven by James Duffy of Rosendale, according to Troopers.

The Galarza car, struck from the left rear, careened into a guard rail and burst into flames. Galarza was the only occupant to escape in time, police said.

The Galarzas and Barros lived at 143 McNair St. Duffy's address was listed as 240-11 147 Road.

Farm & Garden

Stretch Home Grown Vegetable Season

KINGSTON — Don't let Jack Frost end your supply of fresh homegrown vegetables. You can keep your garden producing right through autumn by planting "season-stretcher" varieties.

Hardy vegetables such as cabbage, broccoli, Brussels sprouts and cauliflower thrive best in cool weather and are the ones to choose. The easiest way is to sow the seed up to midsummer in a specially prepared seedbed or corner of the garden. As soon as the seedlings have a couple of pairs of leaves, transplant them to a permanent location.

Generally, the above crops are planted as transplants, but with the warm soil the seeds germinate quickly. If you prefer buying transplants, beware of buying old, straggly plants. In many cases they are stunted and premature fruiting will occur. If possible, buy newly transplanted ones from a reputable grower.

For something different, try growing Chinese cabbage. Mainly it is substituted for lettuce or cooked like common cabbage. This plant grows fast and needs cool weather to head well. Because they do not transplant well, it is best to sow the seed where the crop is to mature. When the plants attain a height of four to six inches, thin to 12 to 15 inches between plants. By fall the giant heads should be 10 to 13 inches tall and eight inches wide.

To a large measure, the success of failure in growing the cole crops depends upon the proper selection of varieties and above all, the control of disease and insects.

Besides the cole crops, there are a few other vegetables that can be seeded now with a good fall harvest just around the corner. According to a vegetable specialist at Cornell University, snap beans and Zucchini squash make a good second crop. The snap beans only need 50 to 60 days to mature so there is plenty of time. Zucchini only needs to be six to eight inches long and one to three inches in diameter to harvest. Remember that Zucchini is a summer squash and is eaten before the fruit reaches full maturity.

If your vegetable garden is still kind of sparse, sow radish and fall lettuce seeds near the end of July through early August. This will give ample development for a fall harvest.

Helpful vegetable hints:

- Were your radish plants all foliage and no bulb? If they were, the seeds were planted too late. Radishes are a cool season crop and won't develop properly during warm weather. Plant early in the spring when the soil is workable or wait till early August.
- Allow asparagus ferns to develop until the first frost, then cut the stems off. Keep the plants weed-free. If weeds are a problem apply a treatment of either monuron, diuron or simasen now. Follow manufacturer's directions.
- Are your rhubarb plants flowering? If so, prune the flower stalk away.

For further information, call the Cooperative Extension office at 74 John Street, Kingston.

Family food preferences should determine what you preserve. Just because green beans, carrots or potatoes are plentiful does not mean you should can them. They are available all year around. But foods such as peaches, cherries, rhubarb and other foods of short availability should be top priority.

"Failure to follow canning instructions carefully can lead to spoilage and waste and even food poisoning," cautions Dr. Dean. "If you are unsure about your skills, you would be better off freezing food or buying commercially processed products."

Storage of your canned foods is important. They need a cool, dark place that does not get cold enough for food to freeze. Storage in an overly warm area lowers the quality of the food. And storage in a hard to get to spot may lead to waste because you have forgotten the food is there.

"Because of the initial cost of a home freezer and the expense of operating it, home freezing is usually more expensive than home canning," Dr. Dean says. "Homemakers often prefer freezing to canning, however, because freezing is easier and it preserves more of the fresh-from-the-garden taste."

"If the main aim of home food preservation is to save money, however, canning is the way to go," Dr. Dean cites a study done at Cornell University that showed that foods frozen at home cost anywhere from 19 to 53 cents more per pound than comparable foods bought at the supermarket. This was true even if the freezer was energy-efficient, if it was used to full capacity and if electricity rates were low. A poorly operating freezer, inefficient use of freezer space or high electrical rates would push the cost per pound still higher.

Changes Hit Home Canning

By Gaynor Maddox

In other times "home canning" was the economy cry of women throughout the country. But today women are realizing that home canning is not the money saver it once was.

"Times change, customs change and economic patterns change," states nutrition specialist, Anita Dean, at Michigan State University. "In the Middle West, where more canning is done than in any other part of the country, we have found that the cost of the food women put up is often the biggest factor in the total cost of preserving food at home. And the cost very often depends on the source of the food," she adds.

"Gifts of produce from friends with overproducing gardens reduces the costs of preserving foods immensely," she says. "Growing your own produce — vegetables and small fruits — is probably the next most economical way to get food for processing. Buying from a pick-your-own operation, a farmer's market or a roadside produce stand during the height of the season is another fairly low-cost option."

Family food preferences should determine what you preserve. Just because green beans, carrots or potatoes are plentiful does not mean you should can them. They are available all year around. But foods such as peaches, cherries, rhubarb and other foods of short availability should be top priority.

Ulster 4-H's Seek Scholarships

KINGSTON — A trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago as New York State representatives and the possibility of a $1,000 scholarship are the goals of four Ulster County 4-H members.

Joseph Sauer of Mt. Marion, Jo Anne Layman of Blue Mountain, Diana Netzley of Kripplebush and Linda Crisman of Stone Ridge were officially invited to submit national report forms. Submitting a national report is a culminating 4-H honor, one that is earned through many years of dedicated 4-H project work.

It is most appropriate that Joseph Sauer was asked to submit his records in agriculture which included dairy, field crops, maple syrup, vegetable gardening, tractor and junior leadership, since he plans to make agriculture his career.

4-H horses, horse bowl, horse judging teams and Jo Anne Layman are practically synonymous. Her interest and dedication to the Ulster County horse program have brought her recognition in the area of horses.

Diana Netzley, who has excelled in a wealth of varied 4-H projects from conservation to textile handicrafts to public speaking, is submitting her records in Home Environment, which encompasses project work inside as well as outside the home.

Linda Crisman continues to vie for honors in National Dress Revue with outstanding work in clothing, horses and outdoor gardening.

The four dedicated 4-H members are representative of the varied 4-H programs available through the Ulster County Cooperative Extension 4-H, with headquarters at 74 John Street, Kingston. 4-H is an equal opportunity program for youth 8 to 19 years of age.

Halpin Farm Hosts Empire Farm Days

SENECA CAATLE— Empire Farm Days, the largest agricultural show in the northeast, will take place Aug. 10-11-12 at Halpin Farms near Seneca Castle, about six miles west of Geneva.

This year more than 300 exhibitors will display several million dollars worth of field equipment, chemicals, feed, fertilizers, feed processing and storage equipment. Most equipment will be demonstrated under field conditions.

In honor of the Bicentennial, machinery and tools connected with America's history will also be on display.

In addition to the equipment displays, the New York State Grange and New York Farm Bureau will conduct a continuous program of interest for women, including special tents in which to relax.

John P. Halpin, operating as Halpin Farms Inc., will serve with his wife and children as host of this year's event.

Empire Farm Days is sponsored by the Empire State Potato Club in cooperation with American Agriculturist magazine, the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Cooperative Extension Services of Ontario County and New York State, New York Farm Equipment Dealers Association, New York Farm Equipment Club, New York State Electric and Gas Corp. and Rochester Gas and Electric Corp.

There is no admission charge for Empire Farm Days. Free parking will be provided and food will be available on the grounds.

Ag Values Up in U.C.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The market value of all agricultural products sold by the 571 farms in Ulster County in 1974 amounted to $26,414,000, according to the preliminary report of the 1974 Census of Agriculture.

Larger farms with sales of $25,000 or more accounted for $25,597,000 of that total. The figure is up substantially from 1969, when sales totaled $16,856,000, although the number of such farms decreased from 459 to 365 during the five year period. Average farm size increased from 148 to 183 acres during that time and the value per acre climbed from $747 to $1,208, raising the average value per farm from $110,592 to $222,381.

The market value of livestock and their products on these farms was $5,387,000 in 1974, poultry and poultry products, $2,648,000; crop sales, including nursery products and hay, $1,753,000; and forestry products, $26,000.

Farms with less than $1,000 in annual sales numbered 52 in 1974. They accounted for a total of $13,000 in agricultural sales.

Total farmland crop acreage was 49,950 in Ulster County for 1974, down from 54,448 in 1969. Farm production expenses for the county were $22,560,000 and the total of all agricultural products sold averaged $46,259 per farm, up from $22,963 in 1969.

Hofbauer Denies He's 'King'

Dear Editor:

As President of the Board of Education, I want to make it very clear since there has been a complete misunderstanding the reason why I held a press conference with my committee chairmen.

I have been in contact with Dr. William Hagerty, an education law expert and Mr. Robert Stone, Deputy Commissioner of the State Education Department, and my actions have been upheld.

As president of the Board, I have a responsibility to give the direction which the entire board will act on for the following year and to prepare agendas.

What I was trying to do, even though one Board member was attempting to disrupt, was to give the public the knowledge of what is going on through the press in order that they may express their opinions at future Board meetings.

The session I called was not a special meeting of the Board but simply a press conference with my committee chairmen.

I am not a "king," only a person who sincerely wants to do a good job and keep the public of district informed.

As a point of clarification, the direction I gave pertained to matters that were presently before the Board which I felt important enough to be brought out again to obtain a final decision since the Board had failed to act in the past upon them.

Finally, I will continue to serve as a president that will not tolerate misconceptions. I will stand for telling it as it is.

I will continue, when I see fit, to have investigations conducted into matters which have our students, taxpayers and elders at heart. These matters will be brought either before the entire board or committees to act on.

Historic Site Has New Space

Dear Editor:

I wish to thank you for the excellent coverage you recently gave for the exhibit "Kingston Through a Lens" now on display at the Senate House State Historical Site. The Friends of Historic Kingston Inc. have spent considerable time and effort assembling this photographic display of local architecture and it is a fitting contribution of this organization to the Bicentennial.

The Senate House State Historic Site is delighted that it could participate in this effort by providing a newly created, flexible exhibit area in the historic Loughran House. With the application of countless gallons of white paint and the installation of exhibit lighting, the site for the first time has a building devoted to adaptive, multi-use, changing exhibits from within and without the museum's collections, lecture and classroom space, a workshop for a restoration crew, and a permanent collection care and storage facility.

I am pleased that the Friends' exhibit will introduce area residents to this new museum facility and look forward to offering other worthwhile exhibits and programs in the future.

Klein Explains His Criticisms

Dear Editor:

A public official must keep the public informed, and this I shall continue to do regardless of the intimidation, complaints or criticism hurled my way by Chairman Peter Savago or Legislator Ernest Gardner.

I am committed to honoring this pledge and will not be deterred by the political gibberish, false statements, innuendos and personal attacks of Mr. Savago and Mr. Gardner.

Mr. Savago and Mr. Gardner are quick to issue press releases concerning their accomplishments. Yet they cannot accept press releases concerning their failures. These legislative leaders are paying only lip service to their austerity measures while leading the county toward another massive tax increase.

The county treasurer's semi-annual report shows that despite having these austerity measures in effect for four out of the first six months of 1976, the county has spent more than half of the funds appropriated for the full year, after only six months. This does not even take into account the projected deficit of almost $2 million which gave rise to the adoption of this austerity program in the first place.

The county has already authorized an increase in the county sales tax for 1977, and faces a property tax increase which will probably exceed 60 per cent, if the sales tax is not increased even further. All of this on top of a 32 per cent increase in property taxes last year.

And what has the so-called austerity program accomplished? There has been no significant cut-back in employment through attrition. The county legislature is over-expending the county budget. And Ulster County citizens are faced with a 92 per cent or more property tax increase in two years.

Apparently Mr. Savago and Mr. Gardner believe that our taxpayers have unlimited wealth and need not be informed of this crisis. On the contrary, I believe that the financial resources of our average taxpayer are being depleted and they are entitled to know.

It is high time that special interest government be cast aside in Ulster County and appropriate representation be afforded our average citizens.

I believe that Ulster County citizens are not being properly represented by the county legislature, and will not be properly represented until they demand better service. In order for our citizens to protect their interests, they must be kept informed, and I propose to do just that.

Boy Needs Bigger Library

Dear Editor:

My name is Christopher. I'm going into second grade at Sophie Finn. I like to read science books a lot. I like to learn new things, but books cost too much, so I use the library books.

When I go to the library it makes me sad. The children's library is so little. All the books can't be put out and there isn't much room to show the new books. There's not much room to sit down and it's also not open enough.

When my mother takes me to the big library, it has some of the same problems. She has trouble parking and there are kids hanging around. The place looks dirty. When I climb the steps I think of people who are crippled and can't walk up the stairs to learn at the libraries.

I wish the mayor would help us get a new library. I like to learn and a lot of other people do, too.

Your friend,

Tell Moses to Take A Walk

Dear Editor:

I write you because I have two things to complain about. For one I wouldn't bother, yet maybe this is really one and the same.

I am sick and tired of hearing about West Point's "tough" honor code. There is nothing tough about it for an honorable man. It is tough for liars, cheats, politicians and the left wing news media.

My second objection: Staff's Chance (do you edit this? I know that nothing on your paper is ever proof-read).

Don't go after the legislature to change the laws, which is their job.

Tell the police which laws to enforce and which laws to ignore. The public doesn't have to do this. The job will be taken over by a member of the local press. An unelected, unappointed unwanted, undesired representative of himself. If he picks the laws... cheat!

Tell Moses to go back to the mountain...he came down with the wrong set of laws. As a matter of fact, tell him to go back to the bull-rushes and sink.

Anti-God Letter Was Very Sick

Dear Editor:

It was with incalculable sadness I read in your newspaper of Aug. 3 the fearfully sick letter against God. Whatever personal trials and bitter tragedies the writer has been crushed with in his own existence, the damage shows starkly clear through the defiant words in this desperate scream against authority and finality.

We cannot contain God, neither can we control Him. The infuriation of the realization of this truth is more than some created humans can endure.

One worships either God the Creator or Satan the Destroyer, consciously or unconsciously. Agnostics do not exist, except they exist in self-deception. I am much concerned for this gentleman and more so for those countless individuals his letter has emboldened and inflamed. May God the Creator have mercy upon the writer of the letter and upon all those it touched.

Prayerfully,

What Is A Conservative Now?

This is not intended as a brief for Senator Schweiker, who is not my client. But it seeks to recognize the crystallizing distinction, so frequently urged in the theoretical literature nowadays, between the so-called economic conservative, and the social conservative. Kevin Phillips, who wrote The Emerging Republican Majority, is of course the bugleman of the distinction, which he spotted way ahead of everybody else when he came to the conclusion that the people who were backing George Wallace were natural allies of the traditional conservatives, but that the latter should downplay their Manchesterianism. The social conservatives, he said, are not interested in things like Adam Smith. They like their high minimum wages, their strong labor unions, their high social security checks but they are nevertheless conservative in a legitimate sense of the word. They are patriots, they believe in order, they believe in considered liberty; and they believe in tradition.

Now whoever it is that selects the criteria on the basis of which one's ideological rating is established has not read Kevin Phillips' book, nor those of its exegetes. For years and years, the Americans for Democratic Action have stressed welfare, labor union legislation, the whole boodle of confessions that go into the Democratic platform — leaving relatively undisturbed certain other considerations. If it were the case that these other criteria should be consulted, before coming up with a political profile, Senator Schweiker's position on the ideological spectrum would be less firmly fixed over on the far left than it now appears to be.

Take, for instance, that watershed, capital punishment. Well, Senator Schweiker favors a return of capital punishment.

Take, in the law-and-order field, compulsory prison sentences for certain kinds of crimes. Well, Schweiker is for it.

Take gun control — one of the great dividers, for reasons I am uncomfortable in exploring. Well, Schweiker is opposed to gun control.

Take abortion. Now here the division is very deep and very real. Schweiker is against abortion and opposed to the Supreme Court's decision authorizing it.

Take prayer in schools. Almost uniformly, the division in the opinion-making community is between those who would reintroduce prayer, and those who would settle down permanently with the Supreme Court's decision. Schweiker long ago introduced a constitutional amendment on prayer in schools.

Detente? On the whole, left-leaning folk are patient with the Soviet Union and detente. Schweiker has been consistently critical of it, for all that he has voted against certain defense bills.

"President, Colgate-Palmolive:

"Dear Sir,

"I just wanted to tell you how much our entire family enjoyed the program you sponsored the other night where the man was buried in sand and the villain poured honey on his head so the ants would eat him. We also enjoyed the film the other night which showed this psychopathic killer who got his jollies from blowing up people's cars. My son Fred duplicated the bomb the killer made with stuff he found in our kitchen. Not only are the shows you sponsor exciting but they are also educational, and we assure you as long as you stick with violence we'll stick with Colgate toothpaste."

"Chairman of the Board, Gillette hair products:

"Dear Sir,

"You probably don't hear from too many satisfied viewers, but I want you to know that every time we see a Gillette commercial interspersed in a program where someone is kidnapped, mugged or killed, we make a mental note to buy your product. I realize you don't make these shows yourselves, but the fact that you have the good taste to advertise on them is enough for us. Keep up the good work."

"President, Breck shampoo:

"Dear Sir,

"I saw a movie Sunday night on ABC where 14 cowboys were killed in four minutes. There was blood all over the place and it was a real turn-on. I asked my wife how ABC could afford to pay for that kind of entertainment and she said, 'Don't thank ABC, thank Breck. They paid for it.' So that's what we're doing.

Stay with violence. If you change to comedy we'll stop using your shampoo."

"Henry Ford, Detroit:

"Dear Mr. Ford,

"I see your name in the papers a lot, but I never thought I'd be writing to you. I just saw the scariest show on television where a man was holding 13 people hostage and he kept killing them one at a time with a knife. You probably weren't even aware of it, but Ford was one of the sponsors. I want you to know how proud I am that you would have your product associated with this kind of program. It shows you're not intimidated by the small segment of the population who think violence is bad for our children. I say stick to your guns. Kids don't buy cars anyway."

(You can write the above letters to American Motors as well.)

"President, Johnson & Johnson,

"Dear sir,

"I liked the show the other night you sponsored where a crooked cop crashed his car into a camper and killed the entire family. Then he made it look like a petty thief was the hit-and-run driver. It was a corker full of action and must have sold a warehouse full of Johnson & Johnson baby powder. Looking forward to what you're sponsoring next week. I hope it has a guy slugging a woman around. I guess I enjoy that kind of violence more than anything."

These are only a few samples, but I'm certain the heads of companies who buy time on violent TV shows are anxious to hear from you. It makes them feel all the money and time they have invested has really paid off.

Climate Worries Soviets

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has been spurred by a U.S. intelligence report to launch an urgent study of global climate changes.

The Central Intelligence Agency warned in a 1974 report of the possibility of "a detrimental global climatic change." Pointing out that "the stability of most nations is based on a dependable source of food," the report declares tersely: "This stability will not be possible under the new climatic era."

The CIA quoted even more alarming language from a University of Wisconsin forecast that "the earth's climate is returning to ... an era of drought, famine and political unrest in the western world."

A CIA spokesman tried to downplay the doomsday report. "It's really a view of one author," he told us. "It's not really an official piece of finished CIA intelligence."

Yet American scientists were astonished to learn during a visit to the Soviet Union earlier this year that the Soviets took the CIA report seriously. They ordered their own experts to investigate what is happening to the weather.

This came out during a bilateral Soviet-American discussion of environmental problems. One of the American scientists, Dr. Edward Epstein, kept careful notes. He summarized them last month in a memo to the Commerce Department.

"It appears that the CIA report on climate attracted a good bit of attention in the Soviet Union," reports Dr. Epstein's memo. "Upon reading the dire projections contained in the report, Soviet authorities asked what was happening climatologically ...

"It, therefore, appears that one result of the CIA study, undertaken in the first instance because the CIA felt the conventional agencies in the United States were not doing very much in studying and measuring climate fluctuations, ... (was to increase) the Soviet effort in this area while the U.S. effort remains essentially unchanged."

The Soviet weather study was directed primarily by Dr. M.I. Budyko, who is described in the CIA report itself as "an eminent Soviet climatological theoretician." Epstein conferred with Budyko in Russia and learned that the Soviet scientist is "firmly convinced that a rapid climatic warming is occurring."

His conclusion is that "drought conditions in the continental mid and high latitude will accompany the higher temperatures." This would mean dangerous droughts and crop failures in both America and Russia, as well as other food-producing nations.

Our associate Jim Grady questioned Epstein about his own views. "There has been disagreement on what's happening," he said, "let alone what will happen." Many climate experts, including Budyko and Epstein, believe the increase in carbon dioxide in the earth's atmosphere is causing a change in climate. This increase can be attributed to man's growing use of fossil fuels.

Burning fossil fuels creates carbon dioxide, which acts as global insulation. This creates a greenhouse effect, warming the earth and causing drought conditions.

BELATED SHAKEUPS — It has taken 18 months, but the embattled Drug Enforcement Administration is finally going through a shakeup.

We wrote a series of columns beginning January 16, 1975, about personnel and policy problems at the agency. Subsequently, the Senate Investigations Subcommittee also began probing the DEA.

For much of the time, DEA headquarters in downtown Washington took on the atmosphere of a wartime bunker. The top officials spent most of their time returning the salvos from the press and the Senate.

Former DEA chief John Bartels resigned under fire. His temporary successor, Henry Dogin, made an heroic effort to hold the agency together. But little in the way of permanent change was accomplished.

The new DEA boss, Peter Bensinger, has made a start at changing things. Bensinger has demonstrated his administrative competence within the sharply restricted guidelines of government hiring and firing regulations. Bensinger is also changing the agency. Here's what has happened over the past few months:

— There has been a reduction in the interagency tensions that have marred the anti-drug efforts. Customs and Immigration officials are now working at DEA headquarters and at the El Paso, Tex., office. This assures closer coordination of narcotics intelligence gathering.

— An interagency agreement has just been signed between the Internal Revenue Service and DEA. A confidential list of well over 300 names of suspected drug traffickers has been forwarded to the taxman for investigation. Since many of these top drug dealers have managed to keep themselves insulated from narcotics deals, DEA hopes they may be guilty of failure to pay taxes on their huge incomes.

— Vincent Promuto, the former Washington Redskins football star who once served as DEA's top public spokesman, has been fired. The Justice Department is investigating allegations that he may have submitted fraudulent vouchers.

— Nelson Coon, the agency's top management official, has been disciplined for alleged "bad judgment." His suspension without pay resulted from his misleading the General Accounting Office during its investigation of DEA's hiring practices.

— Eleven other senior officials have been transferred or reassigned, some of them to less important jobs.

— By confidential cable sent worldwide, Bensinger ordered strict adherence to new legal guidelines on DEA's role abroad. The law prohibits DEA agents from engaging in direct police actions in any foreign country.

The result? Bensinger expects a reduction in heroin availability on American streets early next year.

Story of A Bell

I remember Andrew Snyder of Rosendale as a tall man with broad shoulders and a barrel chest. That memory comes from my childhood, so it may be he stands larger in my imagination than he did in real life. Even as an old man there was something imposing, though amiable, about him.

The physical trait that stands out most sharply is the way his teeth met. I have never seen anyone whose teeth crossed his smile at such a steep angle, about 30 degrees off the horizontal in a nearly perfect straight line. I assume that clamping down on ever-present cigars had something to do with it.

And I remember the large three-story horse barn with a cupola on top housing a bell that struck the hour automatically. It gave out a warm round sound that suggested all's well. That bell was one of Andrew's proudest possessions. My father told me how he came to own it.

It was around 1950 that he bought the bell. The cement plant, which he had put back together single-handedly, aided by incredible good luck in the form of propitious ups and downs of the economy, had been operating successfully for about five years.

He had wanted a bell in that cupola for a long time, so one day he went out looking for one. After several unsuccessful attempts he found himself at the corner of a road not far from Millerton in Dutchess County. On the corner sat an abandoned church occupied by an elderly man who sold antiques, and in the belfry was a bell that caught Andrew's eye.

He poked around among the antiques for a while, then asked the man if the bell was for sale. The man said yes, and the price was $50. Andrew agreed and gave the man $10, the balance to be paid when he picked up the bell.

"Just a minute," said the man. "How do I know you won't damage that belfry when you take the bell?" "I've got men who know what they're doing," said Andrew.

"Well, I want it in writing anyway," said the man, "that if you damage the belfry you'll make the repairs at your own expense."

Andrew wrote out the promise and signed it.

A couple of days later he and Jim Fahey, superintendent of the cement plant, arrived at the church. Fahey was a bright man who knew a lot about buildings. After a glance at the belfry, he decided he wanted a closer look, so they asked the old man where they could borrow a ladder. He sent them to a farmhouse a little way down the road.

"Sure you can borrow ladder," said the farmer, "but what do you want it for?"

He couldn't work, he couldn't sleep until he found a way to get that bell.

They explained about the belfry. The farmer chuckled and pushed his hat onto the back of his head. "Did you buy that bell?"

"Yes," said Andrew.

"Why?"

"Well, I think I ought to tell you it's the fifth time it's been sold."

"What do you mean?" asked Andrew.

"Just go look at the belfry. You'll see."

They took the ladder, and Fahey climbed up and examined the belfry. When he came back down, he said, "Mr. Snyder, you know that bell is heavy. Well, the belfry is so rotten that the bell's liable to crash right through the floor when we try to lift it out. Making those repairs would run into a lot of money. Looks like the old guy's got us."

They went home, and Andrew spent several days gnashing his angled teeth. The memory of the sponging he had taken from the New York horse trader thirty-some years before rose up and haunted him. He couldn't work, he couldn't sleep, until he found a way to get that bell.

At that time the Knaust Brothers of West Camp were growing mushrooms in part of Andrew's cement caves and they had several pieces of heavy equipment they used in the cultivation and shipping of the mushrooms. One piece was a portable crane. When Andrew told them about the bell, they said they'd have the crane in Millerton the next day, along with their best operator.

Andrew and Fahey supervised the operation. Knaust's man slipped the nose of the crane under the roof of the belfry. Fahey hooked up the cables, and they eased the bell out of the rotting structure without touching it.

As the bell emerged into the sunlight, the antiques dealer, who stood watching, turned purple and then began shouting, "You stole my bell! You stole my bell!" His little scheme was floating away through the air.

Andrew paid the man the $40 he owed him. "That's a beautiful bell," he said. "I know I'm going to come to love it. Can't say it was a pleasure doing business with you, though."

As far as I know, it's still in the cupola atop the barn. There's a kind of poetic justice in the incident. By refusing to take another hosing — intending to satisfy himself, in other words — Andrew succeeded in doing away with an on-going con game that would have claimed more victims. No one else would ever buy that bell and then find himself neatly fleeced.

Andrew used to stop talking to listen when the bell struck the hour. I'm sure its tones sang more sweetly to him than most people realized.

Hospital Strike Is Settled

NEW YORK (UPI) — A settlement was reached Saturday in a four-day walkout by 18,000 unionized workers who struck the city's 16 municipal hospitals to protest massive layoffs.

Officials of Local 420 of District Council 37, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents most of the strikers, predicted the pact would be approved "unanimously."

The employees, mostly nurses' aides, orderlies and maintenance workers, were scheduled to return to work Sunday under a plan officials said would provide enough funds to rehire 1,350 furloughed employees and may prevent further layoffs at least until year's end. Mediator Basil A. Paterson said workers would begin returning to their jobs at midnight.

Roll Call

Congressmen Split on Bills

WASHINGTON — Area Congressmen took opposing stands on several bills presented to the House of Representatives during the week ending July 28.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. was on the winning side of a vote on an amendment to the Sunshine Bill that would allow federal regulatory agencies to keep abbreviated minutes rather than verbatim transcripts of closed meetings.

The Sunshine Bill requires that agencies conduct open meetings on all subjects except those dealing with national security and personnel.

Reps. Benjamin Gilman and Matthew McHugh both opposed the amendment, which passed the House 201 to 193. Gilman and McHugh also sided against legislation authorizing $3.8 million through 1978 for preserving and developing Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington.

Fish voted in favor of the bill which was designed to trigger private restoration along the historic avenue which has fallen into disrepair over the last 25 years.

All three Congressmen voted yes on the successful House override of President Ford's veto of a $3.3 billion military construction bill that would also strengthen congressional control over base closings.

The Senate later failed to override the veto and the bill will not be enacted.

U.S. Sen. James Buckley did not vote on the Senate override of that military construction bill. Sen. Jacob Javits was in the minority that voted to pass the bill over Ford's veto.

Buckley also failed to vote on another piece of legislation which was rejected by the Senate. An amendment to require federal agencies to give taxpayers 20 days notice of court proceedings to get information on their tax records from the Internal Revenue Service was defeated by a 50 to 46 vote.

Javits voted for the measure, which was intended to give taxpayers an opportunity to oppose the release of their tax data. Both Senators voted against an amendment which would have weakened warranty requirements on emission control equipment installed on new cars.

The Senate failed to pass the bill, which would have dropped the current 5-year-or-50,000-mile warranty to 18 months-or 18,000 miles.

The bill was defeated 51 to 45.

Posse of Flood Victims Is Mounted Against Looters

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — County officials Saturday deputized an armed posse of Big Thompson River residents to patrol the flood-raked river canyon and provide their neighbors protection against looters.

"I've deputized a couple of hundred good citizens and ranchers," said Larimer County Sheriff Bob Watson. "Some people say they may not be well trained but they are working under my instructions."

The calling up of an armed posse came as more and more regular officers were needed in the search for victims of the July 31 flash flood. Meanwhile, Colorado State Patrol officer Lance Taylor told nondeputized residents they should use whatever measures necessary—short of arms—to protect their homes.

"The people are going to have to take it upon themselves to secure their belongings as best they can, but not with guns or clubs or whatever," Taylor said. "The (regular) mounted deputies are spread out a long way now."

Although there were reports all week of scattered looting, only four persons had been arrested. Persons going in and out of the canyon were given identification cards to show at police checkpoints.

Watson said about half of the 81 bodies taken to a makeshift morgue here were identified. He said he knew "of 20 down in the (canyon) area that are still there. We just can't get to them yet until the debris is cleared out."

"The cars down there are loaded with silt and searchers have to probe inside and shovel the debris out," said Watson. "I am sure we will find more bodies then. Until the Corps of Engineers goes in there and clears it out, we won't know how many bodies are there." Watson also said authorities were bothered with sightseers from Denver, about 45 miles to the south. He said there were "too many people coming up to see the area. It's real troublesome and bothersome." Authorities said only 50 to 60 officers were available for patrol along the banks of the river. All were on horseback since the mud and scattered debris prevented the use of four-wheel drive jeeps. Watson said the armed residents—called special deputies —included a 50-man posse in jeeps. He said they would patrol the canyon perimeter, which was still accessible to vehicles. He said a number of the deputies were using their own trucks and cars. The 19-foot wall of water roared through the canyon and swept away possibly hundreds of sleeping campers, fishermen and summer residents. U.S. 34 connecting Loveland and Estes Park at the canyon's west end was gouged apart and cars, trucks and camper-trailers were tossed about like toys.

Consumers Want Off- Peak Rates

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Consumer Protection Board has asked the state Public Service Commission to require Consolidated Edison to include a time-of-day rate schedule in its $250 million rate increase request.

CPB Executive Director Rosemary S. Pooler explained Friday that with a time-of-day rate system, customers using electric power during peak hours would be charged more than those using power during off-peak hours.

"Con Ed says it is working on time-of-day pricing proposals and should have them ready within the next two months," she said in a statement. "But Con Ed would like to consider these cost-saving proposals at some future time. We think that's wrong."

A spokesman for Con Edison said that until an experimental program involving time-of-day rates is carried out, it cannot be determined whether the plan would really save money in light of added costs for new equipment.

"We think any suggestion that tens of millions of dollars be spent blindly on a complex program that may or may not save money is hardly in the interest of the consumers the Consumer Protection Board professes to represent," the spokesman said.

Sierras Fight Seneca Land Swap for Road

BUFFALO (UPI) — A spokesman for the Sierra Club says the conservation group is attempting to "administratively" resolve its complaints about a land swap between the state and the Seneca Indian nation.

Richard J. Lippe, Sierra Club attorney, said the group has sent letters to state officials outlining its complaints about the land swap that would allow the completion of the Southern Tier Expressway.

The state and the Indian nation signed an agreement July 28 which permits the state to use Indian land to complete a 16-mile section of the expressway. In return for that land, the agreement called for the Indians to receive $2 million, 750 acres of lands from within Allegany State Park and 45 acres of private land.

The Sierra Club had said it would fight the land exchange if it involved the transfer of state-owned land from within the park.

The group said it wasn't against the Indians obtaining "lieu lands," but it maintained the State Department of Transportation had no legal right to include state park lands in the deal.

"We're going to try the administrative route first," said Lippe. "If we can't reach a settlement, then we're going to go to court."

SHOWBOAT REVIEW

Marital Comedy Keeps'em Laughing

By CHAZY DOWALIBY
Freeman Staff

A new show opened at the river-moored Driftwood Showboat Friday night and after about ten minutes of drifting dialogue and choppy gestures the cast sailed away into an evening of steadily amusing, sometimes hilarious comedy of American married life in the 1930s.

"Cradle Snatchers" is a period piece with all the stereotypes in place — rich, roving husbands, bored but ever-faithful wives, an idealistic blonde ingenue and three marvelously typical college boys ready to do anything for a buck.

The plot is simple. The wives are out to teach their flapper-crazed husbands a lesson by hiring their own handsome young escorts to dine and dance them around town — to the tune of $2,000 apiece — for as long as it takes to throw their hunting husbands into fits of jealousy.

The whole process takes about two hours, but as far as the audience was concerned it could have gone on forever.

The ranting, raving, almost vaudeville-like farce is just the kind of uncomplicated theatrical fun that comes along all too rarely these days.

Patricia Mannes couldn't have been brasher or better as the loud, instigating Susan Martin.

Shirley Furbush played the almost-perfect lady down to the last clasp of her lap-resting palms and Anne Walsh floated through her role as the ever-elegant, blase young matron with just enough tarnish on her low-heeled, golden pumps to make life interesting.

An especially winning performance is put in by Danny Lawhon who plays a shy, all-American innocent with an extraordinary amount of energy and believability.

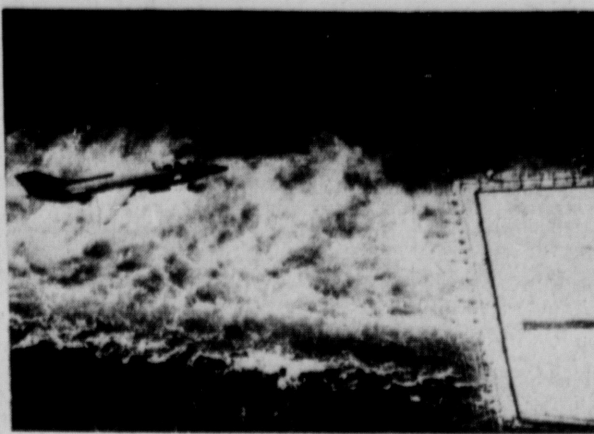

In fact, the entire cast is very believable.

Riverboat Captain Edward Furbush cuts a splendid figure as the self-assured spouse with just a tinge of old yankee in his speech. Bill LaVoie and George Olsen also come across as duly remorseful, frenzied, philandering husbands.

A short intermission act by ingenue Claire Murray and the versatile Lawhon adds to the general gaiety of the evening. The two do a song and dance rendition of the "Alphabet Song" accompanied by Steven Freeman, who's old-time piano overture had much of the audience reminiscing in an impromptu sing-a-long.

Special credit also goes to director Miss Mary Ann Dentler who kept the complement of characters from tripping over each other and the script's sometimes overdone lines, on the Showboat's narrow, 17 foot stage.

"Cradle Snatchers" will play every night but Monday through Aug. 15 at the Showboat now docked on Route 213 in Eddyville next to the Dock 'n Dine restaurant. Tickets run from $2.50 to $6.

SOMEWHERE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN — A Soviet Yakovlev fighter about to land aboard the first Soviet aircraft carrier, the Kiev, in the Mediterranean Sea. Gen Alexander Haig, chief of U.S. Forces in Europe, said this week the military situation in the Mediterranean could become worrisome if the Soviets continue to build up their fleet.

Nader Praises Carter Stands

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — With Jimmy Carter at his side, consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Saturday the Democratic presidential nominee has the best stand on consumer matters of any presidential candidate "in recent decades."

Nader said he was not endorsing Carter and he was willing to sit down with the Republican candidate, "But I haven't received an invitation thus far."

Nader praised Carter's position both as governor of Georgia and as a presidential nominee. In return, Carter said he would appoint persons to the major regulatory and consumer agencies whose "primary interest is consumers themselves."

Carter charged President Ford's nominees for consumer protection posts have come largely from the White House staffs of the Nixon and Ford administrations.

Said Nader, "As far as his declared positions in the areas of health, consumer protection, the environment, energy and recognizing the critical need to develop new civic institutions so people themselves can initiate the processes of government on their behalf, all of these stands have been admirable and better than any candidate that has achieved the nomination of a major party in recent decades."

Nader said he did not seek new laws so much as the enforcement of existing statutes. "It's very important to analyze the way government has been misworking, in recent decades in particular, and unravel some of the reasons for the waste, corruption and lack of responsiveness in Washington."

Carter said that in a speech to the American Bar Association in Atlanta next week he will spell out "some of the principles into the structure of law that are not there" and discuss how attorneys themselves can help in the enforcement of law.

Carter praised Nader for having "motivations that are impeccable."

"I'll be listening to him with an open mind and with gratitude," Carter said. "I want to make sure my own derivation of political support, which is from the average people in this country, is mirrored in my service to them if I'm elected."

"In the appointment of persons to the major regulatory agencies and consumer protection organizations that are in existence, there's a real need to make sure they are the kind of persons who have as their primary interest consumers themselves."

Bogus Academic Credit Scheme Is Investigated

GREENVALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The president of the C.W. Post Center of Long Island University says a faculty committee will look into evidence that professors participated in a scheme to grant or accept bogus credits for advanced courses.

Edward J. Cook said Friday the committee will be convened in about a week.

Cook said the evidence to be presented to the faculty committee was gathered by Robert V. Iosue, the college's vice president for academic affairs, and "has caused him some concern."

Cook added that the faculty committee will determine whether there is "any evidence of unprofessional conduct."

After examining the evidence, the committee will submit a report with recommendations, to the Long Island University Board of Trustees.

"Then, it is within the authority of the board of trustees to either accept or reject these recommendations," Cook said.

He said there was no evidence to indicate that more than a half-dozen professors are under suspicion.

FLYING NUN?

St. Francis Hospital and the New York State Police are working together to develop a heliport at the hospital which will speed up the transportation of seriously injured trauma victims to the hospital's nearly completed Trauma Center. Sister M. Ann Elizabeth, president of St. Francis Hospital, Dr. Frank A. Gagan, director of trauma services at the hospital, and Sgt. Lou Grosso, a state police helicopter pilot, toured the hospital site in the helicopter recently to pick out the best spot for the new heliport.

Saugerties Losing Control

SAUGERTIES — The Town of Saugerties will join Kingston, Lloyd, and Marlboro in losing control over its fresh-water wetlands on Sept. 1.

A fresh-water wetlands law passed last year by the state said that any city or town which did not have a wetlands ordinance adopted by Sept. 1 would have its wetlands areas controlled by the county or state.

"Our planning and zoning people are working on this now, and they'll discuss this at a zoning board meeting Aug. 10, but even if we adopted an ordinance, it would still have to be put up for public referendum," said Saugerties Supervisor Frank D. Greco.

"We won't have an ordinance by Sept. 1 — I guess the county will take over then. We're going to preserve those wetlands if we can, though," he added.

Saugerties encompasses well over 100 acres of fresh-water wetlands, he indicated.

Economou Staff Adds Two

PORT EWEN — A former legislative minority leader and a staff aide to a New York state senator will join the campaign staff of Jack Economou, Democratic-Liberal candidate for the 99th Assembly District.

Marguerite DiVesti Drezin, an Ulster County native who now works for State Sen. Jeremiah Bloom of Brooklyn will head the candidate's regional canvassing operation.

Co-ordinating the canvassing drive in Esopus, Lloyd and Marlboro, the three local towns in the 99th district, will be Roger Mabie of Port Ewen.

Mabie has held a number of political positions in the-county including a those of Esopus town supervisor and county legislative minority leader.

He is currently on the Democratic state committee and party chairman for the Town of Esopus.

Flood Group Head Backs Esopus Hearing

POUGHKEEPSIE — The head of an area flood study group has given his support to a public hearing on the controversial Esopus Creek flood control project and offered his services to moderate the hearing.

"The public should have a little more say on this project," said LeRoy M. Fein Friday. He is coordinator of the Mid-Hudson Area Flood Group, a non-profit volunteer group which has "several questions" about the Esopus Creek plan.

Although the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is ready to start construction on the $2 million project by Oct. 1, Fein said they first should determine whether a planned dike on the Kingston side of the river will be built on private property, a situation Fein said would be undesirable.

Ulster residents have petitioned against the project, claiming the dike would endanger their side of the river, and town officials have threatened court action to get a public hearing on details of the project.

Fein challenged army engineering estimates that river levels would be raised only by an average two inches and that this would have "insignificant" effect on flood potential.

"When the public has difficulty speaking, that's when we move in," Fein said. His Poughkeepsie-based group, while private, supplies meteorological and other technical data to government agencies.

Rightist Party Formed

NAPANOCH — New York State conservatives have formed an alternative political party which they hope will consolidate voters with similar points of view behind a third party candidate for president in this fall's election.

The Constitution Party, an outgrowth of the Courage Party of New York is headed in Ulster County by Paul G. Henderson who promises an all-out petition drive to get his party's candidate, Tom Anderson, on the ballot.

Anderson is running on the national American Party ticket. The Constitution party serves as their local affiliate.

Henderson states that his party represents "the best way we know how to advance true American ideals and turn back the tide of socialism in this country which is driving us toward total government control of our lives."

The Constitution Party also stands for less government intervention, more individual responsibility and above all places its trust in God, according to Henderson.

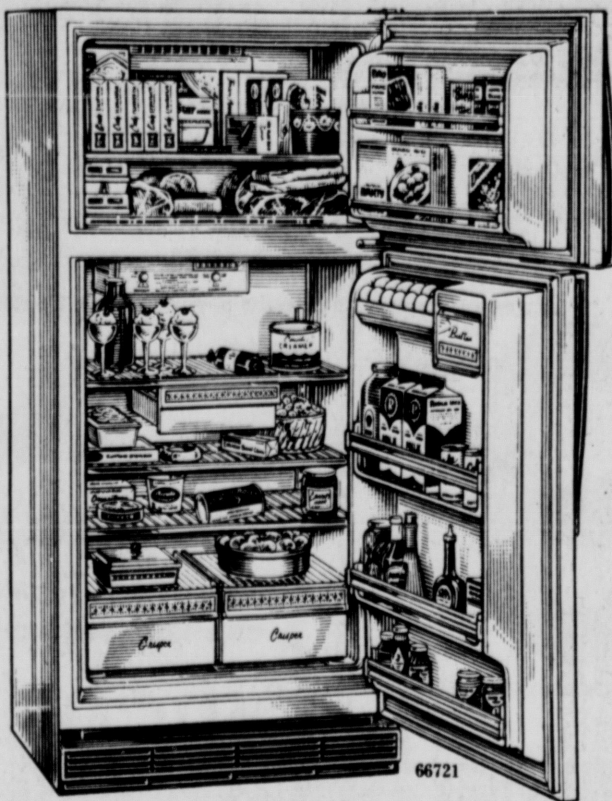

The new party will be looking for at least 30,000 New York state signatures on its petitions to turn over electoral votes to American party candidates.

Robert Hall Set to Reopen Thursday

Mannequin stands ready to do her part.

Everyone pitches in to get the store ready.

Final placement is critical as the reopening nears.

TOWN OF ULSTER — The final touches are now being applied to the Robert Hall clothing store in the Town of Ulster, set to reopen this week after being gutted by fire last April.

The store is reopening at the location it has occupied since 1959, at 884 Ulster Avenue Mall. The reopening is scheduled for Thursday, at 10 a.m.

The fire was a disaster — it wiped out the store's entire clothing stock — but it has had at least a single bright spot. The Kingston Robert Hall has been furnished with the opportunity to serve as the prototype for a new marketing concept, new at least as far as the clothing chain is concerned.

The "plain pipe rack" display style is being replaced with a much more elaborate style of store layout, including two- and three-tiered clothing racks, changing rooms instead of stalls, and a large number of special departments.

Little-Known Names Become Big as Delegate Search Goes On

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The big names in politics last Wednesday were Bobby Shelton, Thomas Twine and Raymond A. Harris.

At least they were to political reporters keeping track of the delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Shelton, Twine and Harris chose Wednesday to announce whether they preferred Ronald Reagan, President Ford or neither for the Republican presidential nomination — and thus became among the latest delegate count switches in the close Ford-Reagan race.

Shelton, of Gafney, S.C., went from Ford to uncommitted. But Twine, of Williamsport, Pa., went from uncommitted to Ford. Harris, another South Carolinian, moved from Reagan to uncommitted.

It was a typical day: One plus and one minus for Ford. One minus for Reagan.

For weeks, the charts kept by the major news organizations have moved up and down in the same general area, as delegates jumped in different directions.

Wednesday, UPI finished with 1,121 for Ford, 1,030 for Reagan and 108 uncommitted. But the Associated Press showed Ford at 1,105, Reagan 1,029 and 125 uncommitted.

Such variations are the rule. The Washington Post, on the same day, showed 1,109 for Ford, the Washington Star 1,124, and the New York Times 1,108. Needed to nominate is 1,130.

Those with a higher count for Ford usually include some "leaning" delegates — those who say they are leaning that way, and those reporters know well enough to feel confident they will vote that way.

Most news organizations agree on the count in most states. Where they differ most is in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York, South Carolina and Illinois.

Pennsylvania is everyone's main problem — especially since Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., became Reagan's potential running mate.

The count there ranges from a high of 89 for Ford by Newsweek to a low of 76 by the New York Times. UPI counts 82.

Most news organizations give Reagan around 10 in Pennsylvania.

"The problem is that more and more delegates are saying, especially to reporters they don't know personally, that they are uncommitted," said UPI's Harrisburg, Pa., bureau manager Charles Madigan.

"Some of them you know darn well aren't uncommitted — but if they insist they are, you've got to put it down that way."

UPI bureaus check with delegates daily to find switches. The activity ranges from casual checks in states where delegations are bound by law, to nonstop telephone work where there are large uncommitted blocks.

UPI's Andy Reese in Jacksonville, Miss., and Floyd Norris from neighboring Alabama, spent all last weekend polling the 60 delegates and alternates from Mississippi — the largest single uncommitted state delegation.

They found 12 delegates and 18 alternates for Ford, for a total of 30; 13 delegates and nine alternates for Reagan, and five delegates and three alternates uncommitted.

Because of the fluctuating Mississippi situation, and because the delegation has agreed to vote under the rule — all 60 votes for one candidate — UPI and most other news agencies record it as all uncommitted.

This week, UPI's Charleston, W.Va., bureau polled all 28 West Virginia delegates, where UPI's Ford count was running higher than most.

The results were the same — leaning for Ford, six Reagan and nine uncommitted.

Things don't always check out so well. Someone noticed most other charts showed one uncommitted delegate in Maine, while UPI listed all for Ford or Reagan.

Sure enough, a check showed UPI had been counting one delegate wrong for weeks in the belief the Maine situation was firm.

More Smoking Less

ATLANTA (UPI) — Younger women and persons over 55 are the exceptions to the rule that Americans are smoking less, according to the national Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health.

The center reported late last week that the percentage of male and female smokers was down from that indicated in previous surveys.

However, for women 21 to 24, women 55 and over, and men 65 and over, there was a slight increase in smoking.

The latest survey was made of 12,000 persons over the age of 21, conducted by the National Clearinghouse and the National Cancer Institute.

Men smoked more cigarettes per day, averaging 23, about the same as in 1970, compared to 19 for women, up from 17 in 1970, the center said.

Admiral Charles Hector d'Estaing brought the first French fleet to American shores, July 8, 1778, in support of the colonies' waning sea trade. D'Estaing's fleet arrived off the Delaware coast and chased away inferior British naval forces, allowing the dying American seaborne trade to re-establish its importance to the Revolutionary War effort. The World Almanac points out that Giscard d'Estaing, president of France, is a descendant of Admiral d'Estaing!

Solutions Sought For Retirement

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (UPI) — As a personnel director, Clyde E. Prier knows the problems a person faces upon retirement. He's working on a program to provide solutions. "I had to ask myself what else I could give them," Prier said retirement. "Do you just hand them a gold watch and say goodbye?"

Prier was personnel manager for Blue Cross in Des Moines, Iowa, when Duke University, funded by a federal grant, asked whether he would be interested in a pilot program aimed at planning early for retirement. He brought his ideas with him when he accepted a similar post at St. Mary's Hospital here.

The program is simple. Prier knows the questions which arise as a person approaches 65, so he schedules meetings with specialists who can answer them.

"We have 650 employees, about 100 past 55 years old," Prier said of the hospital staff. "I tried to hold down the meetings to 20 persons but I couldn't. We've scheduled another series for the fall. Sometimes even those under 55 come to the meetings."

Speakers at the seven-week seminar included a Social Security representative, a registered nurse who talked about the physical and mental aspects of aging, a bank officer who discussed trusts and wills, a spokesman for the Illinois State Employment office who told of job opportunities and a member of the Association of Retired Persons.

"We also had a nutritionist who talked about a diet for the elderly and two men from area colleges who discussed education opportunities, especially technical skills. What if you always wanted to build an engine and don't want to go quilt?" he said.

"Welfare, housing. Everybody has a different priority. It could be their health," Prier said. "Aging, of course, depends on the individual. Winston Churchill did his best work after 65."

Noting that "there's no natural bridge to retirement," Prier's program is aimed at getting persons to plan early. "It's like a vacation," he said. "You don't wait until the first day to plan what you're going to do. We help light the fire."

"I call retirement the elective years. Perhaps for the first time in their lives, they can do what they choose — if they plan now," he said.

Prier said the program is needed in most large industries, citing statistics which put the number of persons past 65 in the United States at two million with a life expectancy of another 15 years on the average.

"You take old folks, make them second-class citizens, put them in a warehouse — that's what I call nursing homes — and tell them they're going to live there until they die. Pretty soon they cooperate and keel over."

Bible Scholars Booted

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — In the tiny Himalayan country of Nepal, the only Hindu kingdom in the world, religious freedom is not tolerated.

A group of Bible translators can testify to that.

With the vast majority of the country's 12 million citizens zealous Hindus, Nepal has sought to preserve its religious character.

The country is ruled by a royal dynasty dating back nearly 200 years. The rulers are believed to be incarnations of Lord Vishnu, the most powerful god in the Hindu pantheon.

Official pronouncements make it clear that any other religious group wishing to live in Nepal must respect the country's Hindu laws. Conversion from Hinduism to any other religion is strictly forbidden.

Thus it was no surprise that Katmandu's Tribhuvan University (named after the present King Birendra's grandfather) last month terminated its 10-year agreement with the Summer Institute of Linguistics, effective this September.

The Institute is affiliated with Wycliffe Bible Translations of Huntington Beach, Calif. It operates in about two dozen foreign countries.

The university, the only one in Nepal, did not give any reason for its sudden decision. An official of the Education Ministry said, however, "There were four specific cases of conversion."

Presumably the institute was involved in these conversions.

"All those involved were told to leave the country," the official said.

The official declined to give the names of those converted.

About 75 persons, a third of them American, were working for the institute in Nepal. Other employees included Britons, Germans, Swiss, Australians and New Zealanders.

The institute's official purpose in Nepal was to study the country's different dialects, which number more than 100. Since Nepal was decreed the official national language, most of these dialects have been dying.

"We have nothing against the Institute as such," a government official said. "What we were concerned about was the purpose for which the institute was using its knowledge of the different dialects by first translating the Bible into these dialects."

Another Nepali said, "The work of the Institute was against the very fundamental principles being adopted by the government."

"Ultimately, if the institute had been permitted to continue functioning it would have negated all the gains of the last 15 or 20 years. Nepali has not only been declared the national language but more and more people are now beginning to speak and study it on a national level."

A foreign resident close to the Institute said, "What happened was inevitable. But there were some people in the Institute who were professionally very competent. They are the ones who have suffered and ultimately many of the dying dialects will die."

He's Only Jackie's Friend

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: Here's Jackie O. traveling to Paris, Moscow and Lenin-grad with Thomas Hoving, director of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, and yet there's no talk of a romance. Isn't that a surprise? — S.D., Rochester, N.Y.

A: Not really. Hoving, cultured, well off financially and thought to have political ambitions, is solidly married to Nancy Bell Hoving and devoted to their daughter Petrea. Jackie went along on the trip in her capacity as a Viking editor. Her publishing house is bringing out a book keyed to the collection of Russian costumes Hoving is planning to exhibit at his museum.

Q: How come the name of California Gov. Jerry Brown never seems to be linked with a romantic interest? And he's so good looking. — R.R., Riverside, Calif.

A: Gov. Brown is super discreet and demands pledges of silence from his aides and dates. We know, for instance, that he has gone out several times with that tall, irreverent actress Sally Kellerman, but none of the governor's buddies will admit it. However, the couple was recently seen in an Italian restaurant in Hollywood and the restaurateur, Dan Tana, confirms that Jerry and Sally were in his place together.

CLARIFICATION: Recently I referred to actress Jan Clayton's outstanding work with alcoholics in California. We want to make it clear that Jan herself is a non-drinking alcoholic and in fact participated earlier this year in Operation Understanding, a Washington gathering of 52 former drinkers who are prominent politicians, athletes, and business or professional leaders. Jan's book on Rodgers and Hart will be published in October.

Q: I have always been fascinated by the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and I hear that a new book is coming out that seems to turn all the known facts upside down. What can you tell us? — H.A., Morristown, N.J.

A: The book, called "Scapegoat," seriously questions much of the evidence in that tragic case. Among the author's startling revelations is the information that the infant found dead was four inches longer than the Lindbergh baby. The author's theory is that the gigantic search for the kidnaped child, with road blocks everywhere, interfered with rum-running operations in New Jersey, so the Mob stole a baby from an orphanage to substitute for the missing Lindbergh baby.

Q: How are the Concorde supersonic jets making out on their Washington flights? — H.V., Hays, Kan.

A: After six months of operation both France and Britain are quite happy with customer response to their five-day-a-week service to Washington's Dulles airport. Though the two countries have reduced maximum passenger limits below the designed 100 seats, the SSTs are averaging well over a 75 per cent occupancy rate and the operating airlines are eagerly looking forward to the opening of service to New York.

Q: I saw nude pictures of Jayne Mansfield's daughter in a magazine recently. Is she going with anybody, do you know? — O.M., Amagansett, N.Y.

A: Jayne Marie just got married to an importer named Ron Chapman. The far-out wedding ceremony with everyone in bare feet took place at Malibu Beach. The service was conducted by a representative of the Universal Life Church, one of California's more unusual religious movements.

Q: Do you have any idea why Raquel Welch canceled the last part of her cross-country tour? — T.S., Reno, Nev.

A: The strain of the grueling tour plus the shock of the recent death of her father brought Raquel to near collapse. The star cut her schedule short and went back to Los Angeles, where she checked into a hospital to rest and recuperate.

Q: I gather that since Shirley Temple Black has accepted a new post, this time as Chief of Protocol in Washington, she's really serious about a political career. What next do you suppose? — M.McD., Newton, Mass.

A: West Coast acquaintances — friends aren't talking — bet that Shirley has her eye on a vice-presidential nomination in 1980. The idea is that by that time the pressure to nominate a woman will have built to irresistible force — and Shirley will be available.

Three DCSL Schools Face Budget Cuts

KINGSTON—Three high schools in the Dutchess County Scholastic League, John Jay and Roy C. Ketcham School in Wappingers Falls school district and Spackenkill face serious athletic financing problems if town budgets are not approved this month.

The athletic budgets for all three schools have already been defeated twice.

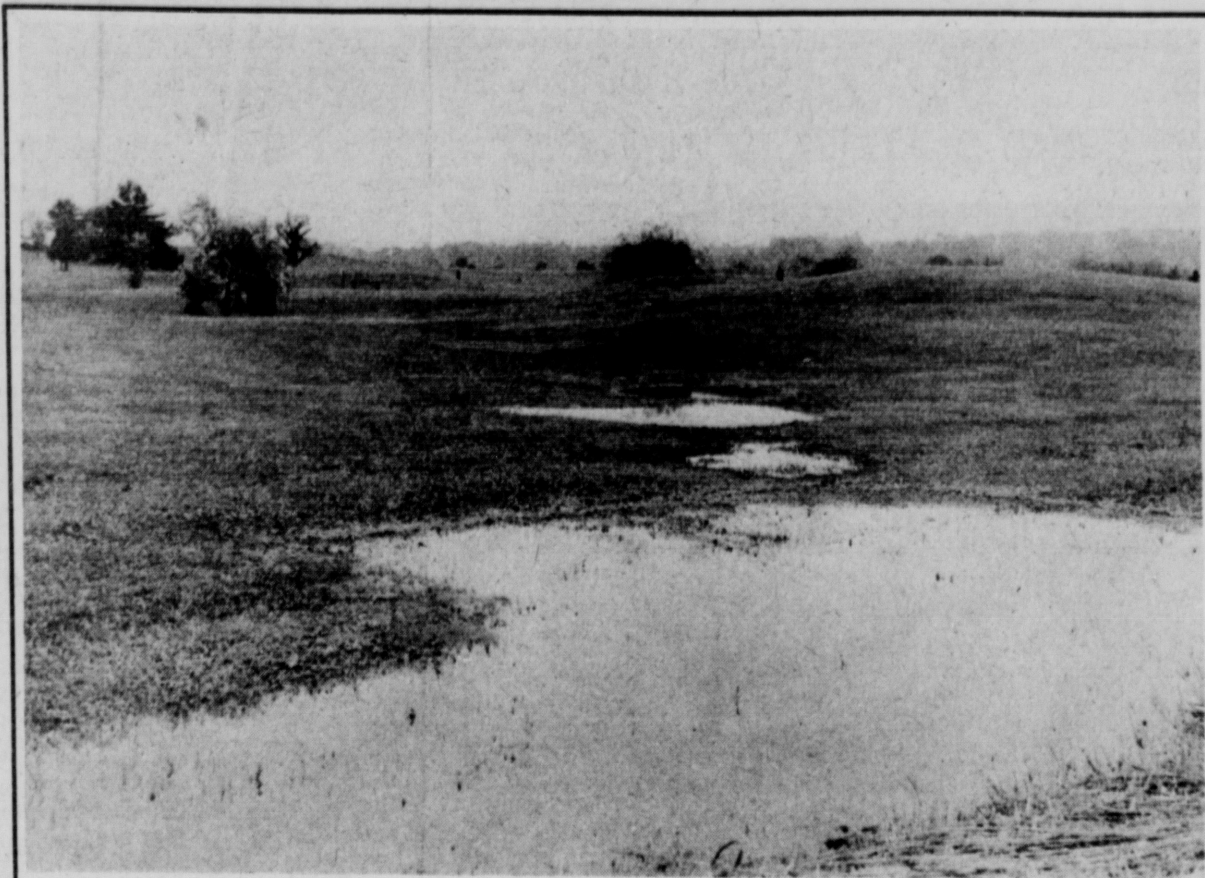

The John Jay and Ketcham schools face the greatest possibility of suffering athletic cuts. The two schools' athletic budgets come up for public vote August 25 as a separate proposition in the town budget. The proposition, which mainly funds student activities, is tagged at approximately one million dollars.

The athletic budget for the two schools has already been defeated once as a separate item on July 29. At that time the main budget and two other propositions were also defeated. Wappingers Falls parents have already begun to organize private funds for scholastic athletics, particularly football, if the athletic budget is not approved.

The Spackenkill High School $34,500 athletic budget comes up for public vote August 18 as part of a total budget of $6,178,428. The athletic bill is down over $1000 from last year due to cuts in equipment costs.

The two defeats of the Spackenkill athletic budget have come as part of main budget defeats. On June 8, the Spackenkill voters rejected the main budget by three votes. On June 29 the same budget was rejected by a larger margin. Reductions have been made in teaching and administrative costs for the August 18 vote but so far the athletic budget stands intact.

SPORTS TODAY

The scene at the Rondout Golf Club looked like this Saturday after heavy rains turned much of the course into a giant water hazard. The weather forced a postponement of the opening round of the annual Ulster County Team Golf Championship, and officials decided to cancel today's second round as well. The tournament is now set for August 28 and 29. Entry blanks are being accepted again with the new deadline for entering now August 24.

Little League Laurels To Bellrose-Queens

KINGSTON—The finals proved easier than the semifinals for the Bellrose-Queens Little League as the girls junior softball team became the state champs by rolling over Islip, 8-1 at Kingston American Park Friday night.

In the tournament's consolation game the same night, Saugerties, for the second contest in a row fell victim to the dreaded and mysterious "big inning disease" as the Sawyers succumbed to Manlius, 9-8.

Bellrose became the state's top Junior Girls Little League side with an impressive display of offensive firepower. Bellrose hitters pumped out 10 hits off the tosses of Islip starter Nancy Delagi. Displaying a smooth batting style was Bellrose's Laura Dominici who stroked three hits in four at-bats and crossed the plate three times for three runs.

Also driving in runs for Bellrose were Joanne Negron who brought two teammates home with her double and single and Francis Guzman who drove in one on two hits.

Mary Patton picked up the win despite the gift of seven walks to Islip batters. Her opposing number, Nancy Delagi, didn't fare much better though as she issued five free tickets. Patton fanned one and Delagi two.

For Saugerties, the big inning bug, which had struck crucially in the semifinals, struck again in the contest against Manlius, this time in the first inning. Before the Sawyers could retire three Manlius batters, Manlius had put nine runs on the scoreboard.

Saugerties never gave up, allowing no more Manlius runs the rest of the way, but the margin proved too much. The Sawyers came back with four in the third and two in the fifth to narrow the gap, but the two runs the club scored in the sixth were still not enough to tie up the contest.

In the semis against Bellrose, Saugerties had squandered a three run lead by allowing Bellrose a five run third inning. A last at-bat Saugerties rally fell two short as the Sawyers were dropped from championship contention, 7-5.

In the consolation contest, Marilyn Janeczak led the Sawyers at the plate with a double, triple, two RBI and two runs scored. In total hits, Saugerties enjoyed a substantial edge over Manlius, 12-8.

Manlius had been dropped into the consolation contest by Islip, 10-0 in the semifinals. Chris Connors threw a one-hitter for Islip in that game.

Women Power Soviets to Track Win Over U.S.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — U.S. Olympic gold medalists Mac Wilkins, Edwin Moses and Arnie Robinson scored individual victories Saturday, but the Soviet Union won the 14th dual outdoor meet between the countries on a smashing performance by its women that included two new world records.

However, Dwight Stones, the American who holds the world's high jump record, finished fourth when rain again plagued him, as it did in Montreal where he won a bronze medal. He was outperformed by a pair of Russians and his teammate, Bill Jankunis.

The Russians won the combined team competition, 211-157, with the Soviet women piling up 104 points to 42 for the Americans in winning every event during the two-day meet. The U.S. men's team won, 115107, as the Soviets took their 10th meet against three losses and a tie.

One women's world record came in the 3,000-meter run when Lyudmila Bragina sheared nearly 17 seconds off the previous mark by Norway's Grete Andersen. Her recordshattering time was 8:27.12, and her teammate, Raisa Katuykova, also broke the previous mark while coming in second.

The other record was achieved by the Russian women in the mile relay. The team of Svetlana Styrykina, Inta Klimovochev, Natalia Sokolova and Nadezhda Ilyina, was clocked in 3:29.06, betting the 3:30.30 set by a West German team.

The U.S. men's mile relay team just missed setting a world record with a 3:02.64, just off the 3:02.4 set by an American quartet at Durham, N.C., last year.

In scoring in the 400-meter hurdles, Moses and Mike Shine of Penn State duplicated their finish at Montreal, coming in 12 ahead of their Russian rivals. Moses' time of 48.55 seconds was the best ever recorded in the Soviet-U.S. competition.

Wilkins came up with a meetrecord discus throw of 217 feet to outdistance the field. Robinson leaped 25 feet, 7 inches for his victory in the broad jump.

Stones, who broke his own world record with a leap of 7 feet, 7 1/4 inches at Philadelphia Wednesday night, cleared 7 feet, 1 3/4 inches without difficulty, but passed because of the rainy conditions until the bar was at 7 feet 5 inches where he failed three times. Russians Sergey Senukov and Sergey Budalov each cleared 7 feet, 3 inches.

Anthony Hall collected the gold for the United States in the javelin with a throw of 268 feet, 19 inches, 11 inches better than his nearest competitor.

The Russian men scored heavily in the steeplechase won by Alexander Velichko with the U.S. entries, Miguel Roche and Henry Marsh having to settle for third and fourth.

The Soviet team of Boris Kuznetsov and Enn Sellik outdistanced American Don Kardong and Dick Buerkle in the 5,000 meter run.

Two Russians, Viktor Anohin and Vladimir Ponomarev, also came in ahead of Americans Rick Brown and James Robinson in the 800.

Aleksander Baryshnikov captured the shotput for the Soviets with a new meet mark of 69 feet—4 3/4 inches over American George Woods. U.S. sprinters Millard Hampton and Steve Riddick, 1-2 finishers in the 100 meters on Friday, took top honors in the 200.

The domination of the Soviet women athletes was scarcely challenged in the meet as they claimed first and second in all but one of the 14 competitions.

The sole exception was in the long jump, won by Russia's Lidiya Alfeyeva but with American's Kathy McMillan and Sharon Walker claiming second and third places.

A Russian sweep in the discus nailed down their women's team victory on the first day in the final event and they followed with a first and second place finish in the 100meter hurdles won by Natalya Lebedeva.

It was more of the same in the 200 meters won by Patnana Prorockenko in the meet record time of 23 seconds followed by Lyudmila Maslakova.

The Soviets carried a 99-79 total team lead into the second day of the competition. Their women led 53-20 at that point offsetting the 59-46 margin built by the American men.

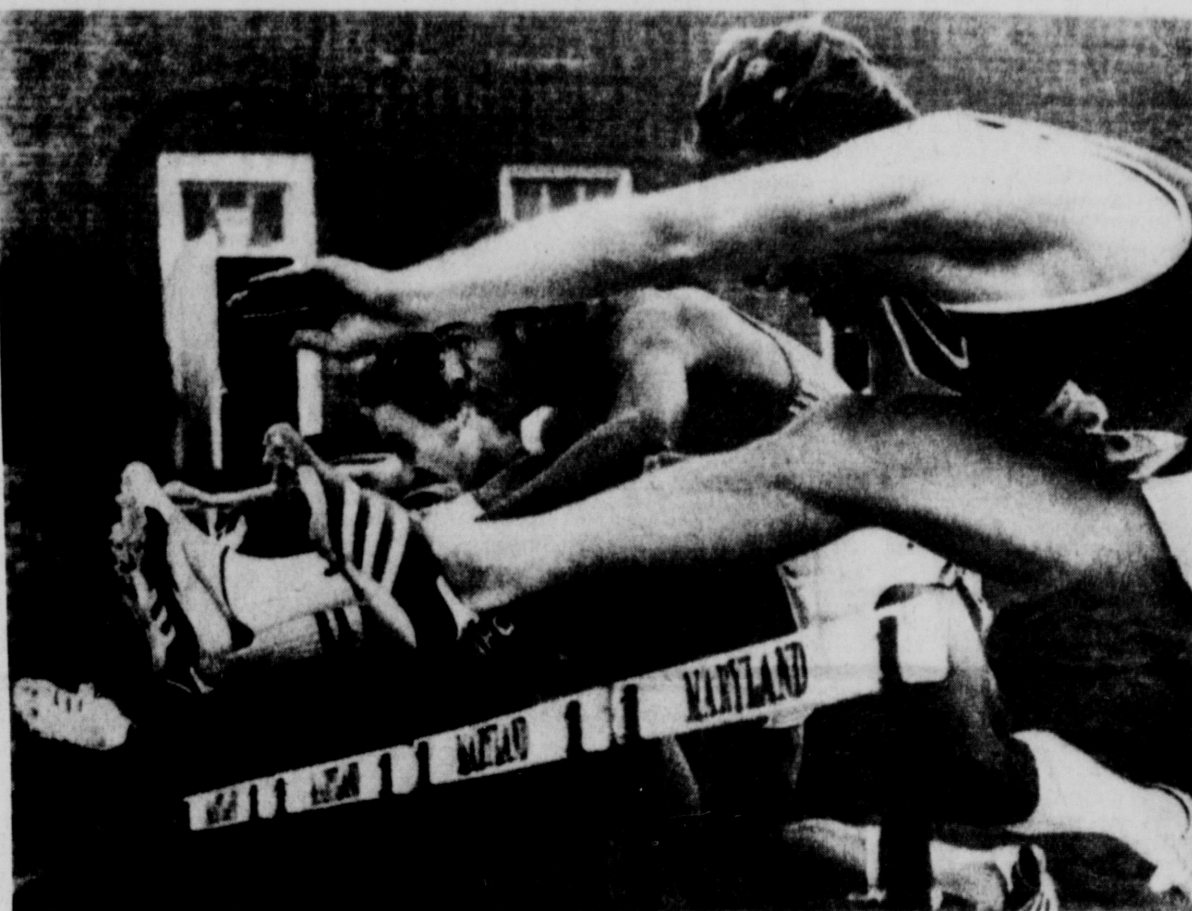

It was the 13th victory for the Russian women in the 14 years of the head-to-head rivalry. The only time the American women won was in 1969, the last total meet victory for the United States.

Chako Takes European Women's

SUNNINGDALE, England (UPI) — Japan's Chako Higuchi had a final round of 74 Saturday for a four-round total of 284 to win the European Women's open golf championship at Sunningdale. She won the first prize of $13,500 to add to the total of $1,800 she had won for the lowest scores on two days.

Kathy Whitworth of the United States with a final round of 70 and her fellow American Sandra Palmer with 75 finished joint second on 290 and won $8,370 each.

Americans Debbie Austin and Judy Rankin finished joint third with 291 to win $3,690 each, and Silvia Bertolaccini of the Argentine took fourth place with 294 to win $2,790.

Stones Suffers Rainy Replay

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — For high jumper Dwight Stones, the cloudy skies and drizzle represented a replay of something unpleasant — his bronze medal finish at the Olympics.

"My technique just doesn't work well in the rain," the world record-holder said Saturday after finishing fourth in his event in the rain-soaked 14th U.S.-Soviet Union track and field meet. "It was like ice skating out there. I was slipping, and my run is 75 per cent of my jump. No meet is important enough for me to get hurt."

Stones, who set his latest record at Philadelphia Wednesday night with a leap of just over 7 feet, 7 1/4 inches, cleared 7 feet, 1 3/4 inches, then passed, waiting for the rain to subside.

He jumped and missed three times at 7 feet, 5 inches, including once when the bar stayed up until he was well into the cushion.

"I passed at 7-3 and 7-4 1/4, then the rain began letting up a little," said Stones. "We got it dry enough that I was getting fairly decent footing, but I was still losing an inch on every step and hitting the bar coming down. I thought on that second jump the bar would stay up. I almost pulled it off."

Stones, a 22-year-old Huntington Beach, Calif., resident, said he believed he would have set another world record if the weather had cooperated.

"That's the only reason I wasn't the gold medalist in Montreal, because of the rain. It was the same here. I can't jump in the rain," said Stones, who predicted he would win the gold medal in the Olympics but wound up finishing third.

Kathy McMillan places second.

Ramirez Wallops Richey Before Rain Stops Play in Volvo Tennis

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — Mexico's Raul Ramirez drubbed Cliff Richey, 6-1, 6-1, Saturday to advance to the finals of the $100,000 Volvo International tennis tournament. But a steady rain forced postponement of the Jimmy Connors-Zeljko Franulovic match.

Connors, who told tournament officials Saturday night he would not play on the soggy red clay courts, was to meet Franulovic in the nationallytelevised semifinal for the right to face Ramirez in the finals.

It was not immediately known whether the finals would be held Sunday afternoon or Monday.

Following the Ramirez-Richey match, rain came down harder but play was not called for nearly four hours.

A tarp was pulled from the court about 6 p.m. and 100 white towels were placed on the wet spots. But the rain quickly picked up again, forcing the postponement of any further play for the day.

In semifinals doubles action, Victor Pecci of Paraguay and Ricardo Cano of Argentina upset WCT champions Karl Meiller of West Germany and Wojtek Fibak of Poland, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4. Top-seeded Ramirez and Brian Gottfried were to meet Bob Hewitt of South Africa and Geoff Masters of Australia Sunday.

If all the remaining semifinal and final matches were to be held Sunday, Ramirez would be faced with playing a possible three times if he and Gottfried were to win their semifinal doubles match.

Faced with a similar predicament in the 1975 Volvo tournament, Connors and partner Ilie Nastase withdrew from the doubles competition.

Ramirez dispatched Richey in 53 minutes with steady groundstrokes from the baseline, pinpoint passing shots and delicate drop shots that kept the 29-year-old Texan off balance.

Ramirez, who beat Richey in a WCT match in January, used a topspin forehand that kept Richey mired deep behind the baseline. He then followed with soft shots or came to the net for easy putaway winners.

The start of the match was delayed for more than 1 1/2 hours by a misty rain. A drizzle continued through the match.

The rain failed to slow the fourth-seeded Ramirez, who copped the first four games 9f the opening set before Richey finally held service. Ramirez also jumped to a 3-0 advantage in the second set.

"The rain was no problem; I like the court a little wet. It makes the balls heavier and I can get more feel on my shots," said the 23-year-old Mexican.

Whitney Goes to Dancing Gun

SARATOGA SPRINGS (UPI) — Dancing Gun, a 4-year-old gelding from Gedney Farms, scored a 1-1/4 length victory on a sloppy track Saturday to capture the 49th edition of the $81,375 Whitney Handicap at Saratoga.

American History finished second and Erwin Boy was third in the 1 1/8-mile event for 3-year-olds and up.

Intrepid Hero, the 4-year-old Forli colt slated as the early favorite to take the prestigious event, was scratched prior to the race.

Dancing Gun, ridden by Roger Velez, broke for an early lead and maintained the pace for a payoff of $5.20, $3.00 and $2.20. The gelding, trained by Lazaro Barrera, took command of the seven-horse field at the one-quarter mark and completed the trip in 1:50.

Dancing Gun, who was coupled with El Pitirre, earned $48,825 for the triumph in the eighth race before 21,448 fans.

American History, a 4-yearold colt owned by H.T Mangurian Jr., moved to second in the stretch with Patrick Day aboard but could finish no better, paying $5.40 and $3.00.

Sea High Stable's Erwin Boy, with Ron Turcotte up, finished five lengths behind American History to show at $2.60.

Group Plan, winner of last fall's Jockey Club Gold Cup, was expected to provide stern competition for the field but trailed Erwin Boy by four lengths.

Old Timers' Day Wasn't Much Like Old Times

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Grich smacked a two-run homer and Doug DeCinces slashed a two-run double to pace the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-4 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

An "Old Timers Day" crowd of 47,798 saw the Orioles erupt for three runs in the first inning. Al Bumbry walked and rode home on Grich's 10th homer of the year off starter and loser Doyle Alexander, 6-8. Reggie Jackson walked, came around on a stolen base, wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Ken Singleton.

The Orioles added a run in the fourth on a walk to Mark Belanger, another wild pitch and Bumbry's second double of the game.

DeCinces belted a two-run double in the fifth and scored himself on Dave Duncan's double for the final Orioles' run.

Ex-Yankee Rudy May picked up the victory to even his record at 8-8 with relief help from another ex-Yankee, Tippy Martinez who got the last out of the game.

Chris Chambliss routed May with a grand slam home run in the ninth for all the Yankee runs. It was Chambliss' 14th homer of the year.

Bosox Score
BOSTON (UPI) — Luis Tiant and Jim Willoughby combined on a five-hit shutout and Cecil Cooper and Denny Doyle supplied the power Saturday as the Boston Red Sox blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 3-0.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Red Sox and the eighth triumph in their last nine games. Willoughby hurled four innings of one-hit relief as Tiant, 11-10, had scattered four hits in the first five innings before tiring in the muggy weather.

Eduardo Rodriguez suffered his eighth loss in 12 decisions. Doyle's thirdinning two-out triple drove in Rick Burleson, who had reached on George Scott's error with the game's first run. Cooper followed Jim Rice's leadoff double in the seventhinning with his 10th home run of the season into the visitor's bullpen in right-field.

Bird Gets 12
DETROIT (UPI) — Supported by Ben Oglivie's three singles, rookie Mark Fidrych registered his 12th victory in 16 decisions as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Cleveland Indians 6-1 Saturday.

Fidrych, who lowered his league-leading ERA to 1.85, limited the Indians to six hits in hurling his 14th complete game in 17 starts.

The Tigers jumped to an early lead off Pat Dobson in the openinginning. Ron LeFlore singled but was forced at second when shortstop Frank Duffy threw to second baseman Duane Kuiper after intentionally letting Don Meyer's lazy liner drop in front of him. Meyer stole second and moved to third on Oglivie's single. Meyer on scored on Rusty Staub's sacrifice fly.

Cleveland tied the score in the fifth on Rico Carty's walk and Alan Ashby's run-scoring single.

Detroit scored three runs in the fifth. Ron LeFlore drove in the go-ahead run. Meyer and Jason Thompson drove in the other two Detroit runs of the inning.

***
Royals Fail
CHICAGO (UPI) — Jim Spencer's two-run eighthinning triple led the Chicago White Sox to a 5-3 victory Saturday over the Kansas City Royals.

Trailing 3-2 entering the eighth, Chet Lemon led off with a single off Tom Bruno. Steve Mingo relieved and walked Lamar Johnson before allowing a run-scoring single to Jorge Orta to tie the ballgame.

One out later, Spencer followed with his triple off the rightfield wall.

Kevin Bell hit a sacrifice fly for Chicago's first run in the secondinning and in the sixth, Johnson singled home the second White Sox run.

Francisco Barrios, 3-4, went the distance to pick up the win. Mingo was tagged with the loss to drop his record to 3-2.

Playoff Opponent
KINGSTON — The Kingston Braves, officially declared champions of both the first and second rounds of the Hudson Valley Rookie League's Northern Division race will battle the champions of the Southern Division in a best-of-five series beginning Wednesday and Thursday nights at 8 p.m. in Dietz Stadium.

The Southern opponent will be either New Windsor or the Newburgh Atoms. Those teams are playing a best-of-three series for the right to meet the Braves.

Kingston, sporting a 22-2 record, concludes the regular season Monday night at 8 p.m. against the New Paltz Falcons.

Rupert Jones keyed a three-run Kansas City seventhinning as the Royals were aided by two Chicago errors.

***
A's Triumph
OAKLAND (UPI) — Mike Torrez, backed by a 12-hit attack, picked up his first victory in a month Saturday afternoon as the Oakland A's defeated the California Angels 9-1.

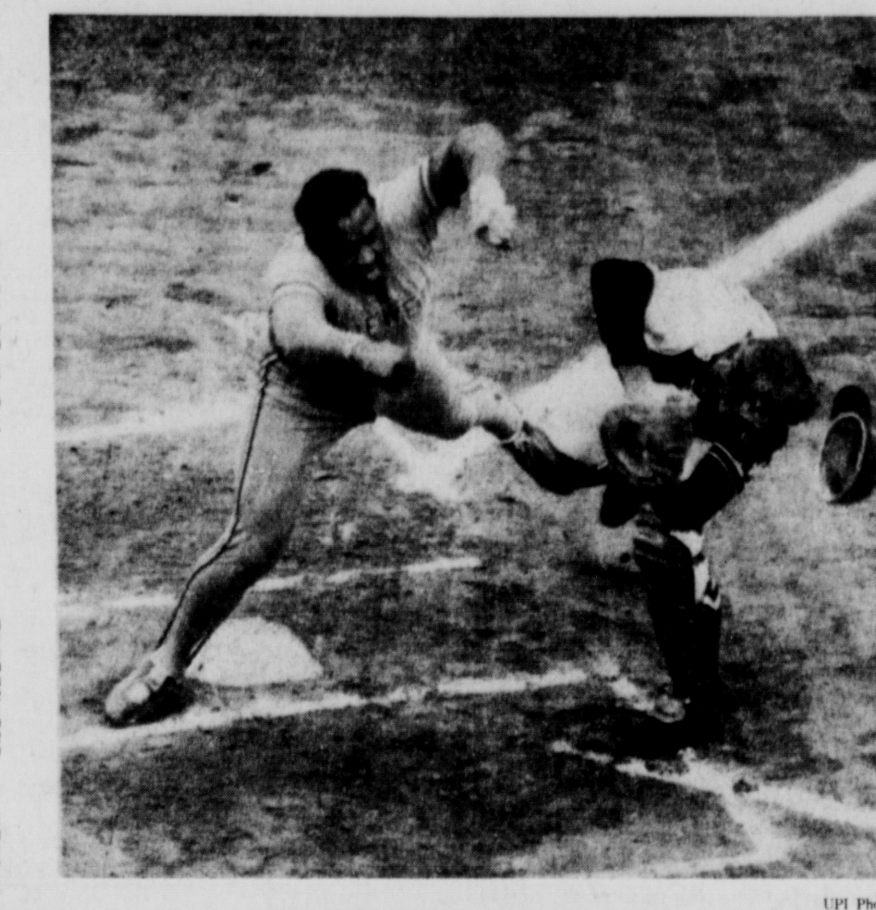

Torrez, 9-10, notched only his sixth complete game in 26 starts in limiting the Angels to eight hits and one walk.

The A's jumped on starter and loser Don Kirkwood, 4-9, for single runs in each of the first threeinnings and knocked him out with a four-run assault in the fifth.

Sal Bando hit his leagueleading 21st homer, a solo blast in the third, while Bill North tagged his second home run in the eighth.

Joe Rudi had two RBIs on a firstinning single and a sacrifice fly in the fifthinning outburst. The only Angels' run scored on a double play in the fourth after singles by Bobby Bonds and Tony Solaita.

Mets Salvage Pitt Split

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — John Milner drove home three runs and Nino Espinosa, with help from two relievers, notched his first major league victory as the New York Mets salvaged the second game of a Saturday night doubleheader with a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates won the opener 12-3 behind a 17-hit barrage which included four runsbatted-in by Willie Stargell.

Milner slammed a two-run homer, his 12th, in the eighthinning after giving the Mets a firstinning run with a sacrifice fly following a triple by Mike Phillips. New York's other run came in the fourthinning on singles by Mike Vail and Ron Hodges plus Roy Staiger's sacrifice fly.

Espinosa, now 1-2, pitched 5-2-3 scorelessinnings before Bob Apodaca relieved and pitched out of bases-loaded two-out situation in the sixth. Doubles by Rich Hebner and Dave Parker gave the Pirates a run in the eighth and they scored another off Skip Lockwood in the ninth on singles by Ed Kirkpatrick, Duffy Dyer and a fielder's choice grounder by Rennie Stennett.

In the first game, Stargell slammed his 15th homer in the eighth with a man aboard while Parker and Mario Mendoza each had two-run doubles. Bruce Kison scattered 10 hits en route to his ninth victory, while Mets ace Tom Seaver (97) took the loss and was battered for five runs and eight hits in fiveinnings.

Expos Split
MONTREAL (UPI) — Gary Carter stroked a three-run firstinning homer Saturday night to send the Montreal Expos off to a 7-2 victory over Chicago and a split of a Saturday night doubleheader after the Cubs won the opener 4-3 on Rick Monday's two-run homer in the 11thinning.

The Expos scored four runs of Cubs starter Oscar Zamora in the firstinning of the nightcap. Jerry White, Wayne Garrett and Ellis Valentine all singled to make the score 1-0 and Carter followed with his fifth home run to support Steve Dunning's second win of the season — both coming against the Cubs. Dunning, who has lost four games, struck out a season-high 11 batters.

Larry Parrish also homered for Montreal in the seventhinning, while Rob Sperring singled home a pair of runs for Chicago in the secondinning.

In the first game, Monday hit his 20th home run in the 11th after Dave Rosello singled to snap a 2-2 tie. Only the night before he won of the opener of a doubleheader by homering in the 13thinning.

Monday was honored between games of the doubleheader for saving the American flag from being burnt at Dodger Stadium last April.

Pete LaCock also homered for Chicago with Bill Madlock driving in the Cubs second run in the fifth with a single.

***
Braves Surge
ATLANTA (UPI) — Darrel Chaney singled home Jim Wynn from second base with the winning run Saturday as the Atlanta Braves came from behind to nip the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

Mike Marshall hurled two perfectinnings in relief of Andy Messersmith to pick up his sixth victory in 10 decisions. The loser was Randy Moffitt, who saw Wynn reach base on third baseman Chris Speier's error. Wynn stole second and scored one out later when Chaney grounded a single into right field.

Jerry Royster drove in a fifthinning run with a sacrifice fly and Ken Henderson drove in a run in the first with a single. Atlanta pinch-hitter Alvin Moore tied the game 3-3 in the seventh with his first big-league hit.

SIDELINES

Ira Fushfeld
Sports Editor

It's been fashionable in recent years to follow mention of the Kingston Braves with just the trace of snicker.

Nobody can dispute the Braves' on-the-field success, even if they have failed to grab the Hudson Valley Rookie League's elusive brass ring. It's just that nobody seems to care.

And while playing game after game in front of rows of empty bleachers at Dietz Stadium may be discouraging, members of the Braves have been able to persist because their primary motivation has been the enjoyment of the competition. For some, that enjoyment has been heightened by the excitement of knowing that the league is frequently scouted by the major league bird dogs.

This week Kingston can finally secure that long sought after championship. The Braves will be opening a best-of-five series against either New Windsor or the Newburgh Atoms with the first two contests Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Dietz.

Wouldn't it be something if some people were there to watch? Who knows, the snickering might finally stop.....

***

This is also the week big league baseball takes its annual journey into the past with the Yankees' 30th Old Timers' Day yesterday followed tomorrow by the Hall of Fame induction ceremonies in Cooperstown.

Since these are the days of flying dollar signs, watching Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra, Whitey Ford, Phil Rizzuto, Warren Spahn et al take their bows at Yankee Stadium can't help but make you wonder not what they'd hit or how many games they'd win today but how much cash they'd attract in the open market. Certainly their mouths must water at the thought.

One of the missing yesterday, missing, in fact, from every Old Timers' Day in New York since he retired, was Roger Maris. He refuses to return to Yankee Stadium where the sound of the boos showered on him during his playing days still rattle his brain.

There's a man who was well-paid, whose name became a household word, and who left baseball unhappy.

DiMaggio, meanwhile, took his bows but not his cuts yesterday. The Yankee Clipper isn't interested in playing in the abbreviated games any more, not when his skills have been entirely eroded. Joe D. would rather we remember him from his prime.

Unfortunately, a new generation of baseball fans know him only as a coffee pusher.

As for Cooperstown's annual day as the Capital of Baseball, don't plan on going to see the Mets meet the Brewers in the Doubleday Field Hall of Fame game unless you already have a ticket. That one's been sold out for months.

But everyone is welcome to see Cal Hubbard, Bob Lemon, Fred Lindstrom, Robin Roberts, Oscar Charleston and Roger Connor (the last two posthumously) inducted at the 10 a.m. Cooper Park ceremonies.....

One would like to react with compassion to the New Paltz State athletic department. Individually there are some truly gifted people on the staff and collectively it has had more than its share of problems.

But sometimes things happen down there that just don't seem to make any sense. Like the selection of Roland Hess as soccer and baseball coach. The problem is not Roland Hess, he may well turn out to be the best coach since Knute Rockne. It's just that soccer and baseball are both played in the autumn at New Paltz and even Hess can't be talented enough to coach both at the same time.

New Paltz thus is now seeking a part-time baseball coach so Hess can concentrate on soccer. When the Hawks play baseball again in the spring, Hess will take over.

It just doesn't seem like the right way to do things.

Perhaps lost in that Friday story about Ulster County Athletic League coaching changes was the confirmation of John Wirth's resignation as New Paltz High School basketball coach.

Wirth had hinted after last season that it would indeed be his second and last, that his hopes for a complete revamping of New Paltz area basketball had not been realized, that he had lost his enthusiasm.

Remember the brouhaha created by the departure of Wirth's predecessor Frank Davis? He was relieved of the position when officials decided his teams weren't winning. Many of his ex-players went to bat for him, but the decision was made and Davis was out.

Since then he has coached at Oakwood School and become an assistant coach and chief scout for Marist College. The job he really wanted was behind him.

It will be interesting to see who fills the vacancy this time.

Italy Bounces Britain In Davis Cup Zone Final

LONDON (UPI) — Italy pushed Britain out of the Davis Cup Saturday by 4-1 when Adriano Panatta and Antonio Zugarelli both won their singles matches on the final day of the European Zone B Davis Cup final.

Panatta gave Italy a winning 3-1 lead when he defeated Roger Taylor 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Then Zugarelli rubbed salt in the wounds by defeating John Lloyd 4-6, 6-8, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1 to give Italy victory in all four singles matches and leaving Britain only the Lloyd brothers doubles victory Friday as a consolation.

Britain, 2-1 down, had to win both Saturdays singles matches to win, and when Taylor won the opening set 3-6 the hopes of the British fans soared.

Taylor, 34, looked a yard faster and considerably less nervous than in his match against Zugarelli on Thursday.

But the excited Italian fans were soon cheering again when Panatta pulled out some big shots to take Taylor's service in the opening game of the second set.

From that moment to the end of this 2½ hour match the 26-year-old Italian was in control.

He had already exposed Taylor's backhand weakness, and now he played on it cleverly to pick up point after point. The set was over in 32 minutes, mainly because his service was more varied, his volleys more assured and his backhand more reliable than Taylor's.

In the end Taylor's strength was drained. John Lloyd appeared to be going to save Britain's face when he took the first two sets. But Zugarelli recovered and went on to win the final three sets easily 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Lloyd slowed down and his play was disappointing and his shots weak.

It was Italy's seventh successive victory over Britain since 1933.

Trickey to Mt. Vernon

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (UPI) — Ken Trickey, who helped vault Oral Roberts University to national prominence as head basketball coach then took over at Iowa State for two years, has been named athletic director at Mount Vernon High School.

Billy Joe Hayse, chairman of the school board's athletic committee, said Saturday Trickey's appointment would come formally at a meeting of the board Aug. 16.

Nicklaus Has Sights Set on Fifth PGA Championship

BETHESDA, MD (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, who concentrates on major tournaments and his widespread business interests, could add another asterisk to his lengthy list of achievements in this week's 58th Professional Golfer's Association Championship.

Nicklaus who has been first-second-first in the last three PGA tournaments, could tie Walter Hagen's record five PGA championships with a victory in the $250,000 tournament, which offers $40,000 to the winner. Hagen won in 1921 and 1924/27.

Nicklaus, also a PGA runner-up three times, has a score to settle with the 7,053 yard, par 70 Congressional Country Club course. In 1964, when the U.S. Open was played at Congressional in stifling heat, Nicklaus was favored, but tied for 23rd.

After missing seven putts from within eight feet in the Sunday morning third round, he said he was sorely tempted to break his putter. But he took it out in the afternoon, explaining, "It had so much experience after this morning I thought I'd give it another chance." Nicklaus, the No. 5 money winner through last week's Pleasant Valley Classic, is expected to be challenged by familiar names—Johnny Miller, Ben Crenshaw, Hubert Green, Hale Irwin, Al Geiberger, Tom Weiskopf, Ray Floyd, Lee Trevino, Don January, Billy Casper and others—plus some younger players.

Among those qualified is young Jerry Pate, who recently won the U.S. and Canadian Opens and stands sixth on the money list.

The sentimental favorite will be Arnold Palmer, who this year lost his exemption to play in the PGA for the first time in nearly two decades but was given a special invitation.

Although he has finished second three times, the PGA is the only major championship that has eluded him, and at age 46 he seems destined to lose again.

"But Julius Boros won the PGA when he was 48 and Sam Snead gave it a good shot three years ago, when he was 61," said Palmer, who played a practice round Wednesday. "We've got to respect the younger players coming up. I remember when I was 36 and Nicklaus was 26 and I'd shoot a 68 and he'd come in with a 65. Now the same thing is happening to him."

A total of 142 players are expected to start the tournament, which begins Thursday morning with the scheduled final round Sunday. After the Thursday and Friday rounds, the field will be cut to the low 70 golfers and ties.

DISTRICT CHAMPS

The town of Esopus Little League All Star season ended at Fort Edward when the Saratoga Americans defeated the Esopus club, 4-2 in the Section 2 semifinal. The Esopus All Stars won the local District 16 championship with three consecutive shutouts. Esopus disposed of Accord/Kerkhonkson, 2-0, Rondout Valley, 5-0, and in the district final, downed the Kingston Americans, 8-0. In Inter-district play, the All Stars travelled to Hudson, defeating the Section 15 champs Columbia/Rensselaer, 6-3, and then went on to Poughkeepsie where they squeaked by the Poughkeepsie Nationals, 5-4. Little League tournament play is single loss elimination. Esopus ended its tournament season with a 5-1 record. ## Redman Needs Buckeye LEXINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — Brian Redman, driving with unaccustomed determination for qualifying, Saturday sped to the top qualifying mark for Sunday's 14th annual Buckeye Cup Formula 5000 qualifying races at the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course.

Redman of England raced around the winding and sometimes wet 2.4 mile circuit sere in 1:24.056 with an average speed of 102.79 m. p. h.

He doesn't like to run a car that hard in qualifying, but now he must win the next three Formula 5000 races to successfully defend his series championship.

"We're in a poor position in the series," he said. "This weekend I had to drive with more determination during qualifying. All we can do is go our hardest."

"The car handled beautifully and we changed to dry tires just at the tight moment to put in a good time," he said.

Redman will start at the first spot in Sunday's initial qualifying heat.

Taking the first spot in the second heat will be two-time Indianapolis 500 champion Al Unser who qualified second with a 1:25.318 clocking and a 101.22 m. p. h. average speed.

An eight-tenths of a second difference between first and second gave Redman more confidence going into the qualifying heats and final feature race Sunday.

"That much of a difference on a short circuit like Mid-Ohio is a sizeable margin," Redman said.

Sunday's two qualifying heats will determine grid positions for the final Formula 5000 feature race.

Qualifying third was Danny Jones of London, England with a time of 1:26.1 and an average speed of 100.35 m. p.

h. Fourth was Danny Ongais of Hawaii with a 1:26.243 clocking and a speed of 100.23 m. p. h.

Rain Halts BC Open

ENDICOTT (UPI) — A steady rain that started Friday night and continued through Saturday afternoon forced postponement of the third round of the B.C. Open Golf Tournament. The final 36 holes are scheduled to be played on Sunday.

The field was originally scheduled to start teeing off at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, but Professional Golfers Association officials delayed the starting time until 11 a.m., in hopes the rain would subside enough to permit a late start. But the rain remained steady and the round was cancelled at 11:40 a.m.

Buddy Allin's 12-under-par score of 130 will lead the field of 82 golfers Sunday when play is scheduled to resume at 7 a.m.

Byman Western Medalist

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Bob Byman of Raleigh, N.C., finished with a 289 Friday to lead the 16 golfers who survived the cut and advanced to today's match play in the Western Amateur Golf Tournament at Point O' Woods Golf Course.

Byman, an All-American golfer from Wake Forest, also won medalist honors in last year's tourney.

Is Football Safe?

Drills Enable Parents, Students to Decide

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON—Amidst the sounds of loud rock music emanating from a Forsyth Park pavilion, the smell from the zoo and the activities of nearby fungo hitters, Tony Badalato conducts his football conditioning drills that offer the security of a money-back guarantee.

"We'd like more parents to come out and take a look at what we're doing," said Badalato, the Kingston High School varsity football coach who's conducting these drills on Tuesday and Thursday nights beginning 7 p.m.

"Some parents are afraid their sons will get hurt playing football," he said. "Here, they can watch the drills and decide now if football is a good idea for their son. They don't have to wait for the fall, and neither does the student."

"Football has become a safe sport," he added, "and we've got good equipment."

The workouts usually attract between 35-40 youngsters ranging in age from 10-16. They began July 6, and the twice-weekly workouts last one hour or one hour and 15 minutes. This is the second year Badalato has conducted them, and he notes an increase in attendance.

Many of Badalato's varsity Tigers take part in the drills. A recent workout included Allen Schmid, Joe Kivlan, Jeff Kaplan, John O'Mara, Vince Dingman, Glen Marrist, Phil Razy, Joel Etter, Rick Smith, Tom Wendell and Ron Higgins.

But the workouts are not restricted simply to those who will play for Badalato. "We're always looking for more kids," he said. "Basically what we want to get is the smaller kids who never played football before and we want to get them started."

'We'd like more parents to come out and take a look at what we're doing' — Tony Badalato

Kids new to football don't know what to expect. If they come here, they get an idea of what to expect, what's going on. They're not so afraid when the fall rolls around."

Badalato is usually assisted by new junior varsity coach Glen Maish and KHS 1974 graduate Lyle Schuler, a junior tailback at Cortland State.

"We want to show them how to condition, how to do stretches, and teach them football fundamentals," said Badalato. "These drills will not put them in condition, but will show them how. On off days I would expect them to be running and lifting weights."

He began a recent workout by having the group run a lap around the field, doing stretches, neck isometrics, crabbing (crawling rapidly on hands and feet) and breakdown positioning. After a short pep talk, Badalato took the linemen, Schuler took the offensive backs and a third instructor took the defensive backs.

Each instructor taught and had the group practice many of the fundamentals of the individuals' various positions. Badalato had the linemen work on the charge from scrimmage, slant blocking, angle tackling, pursuit drills, and agility on a mini-obstacle course of four tackling dummies on the ground. Schuler had the offensive backs work on different types of handoffs while the defensive backs worked on interceptions. Later the two groups of backs combined for pass pattern and defending drills.

"The kids are receptive and quick to learn," said Badalato. "Football is a demanding, discipline sport. These workouts are enjoyable. The kids have good spirit."

To prove that last point, the group was taking sprints on its own with the workout completed. If Badalato can translate that spirit into action on the football field this fall, the summer workouts will be worth that much more.

The Doctor to Perform at Stokes Game

MONTICELLO—Julius Erving of the ABA championship New York Nets basketball team will perform in the 18th annual Maurice Stokes Memorial basketball game at Kutscher's Country Club on Tuesday night it was announced by Arnold Auerbach, President of the Maurice Stokes Foundation.

Auerbach, who heads the world championship Celtics, says "There is no question that Julius is as fine a player as there is in the game today. The only difference this coming year is that he will have to play at full capacity every time out. With all due respect, I think the competition in the NBA, generally speaking, is tougher than Erving encountered the past few years in the ABA. As a result he will have to prove his mettle, but being such a fine all around performer, he could be able to continue to show his supremacy against the best defensive players in the NBA."

Dave DeBusschere, who played against Erving and was Commissioner of the ABA this past year, feels that the New York Net should be even better in the older league than he was in the NBA because he will be out to prove himself in every new city that is visted by the Long Island club.

In all likelihood Erving will

Henri Filion Is More Than Just Herve's Brother

YONKERS—He isn't as gregarious as his older brother Herve, but Henri (pronounced Onre) Filion isn't called Herve's brother any more.

Henri Filion has his own identity now, separate from that of Hall of Famer Herve.

"Of course, being Herve's brother has helped me. I was able to get catch-drives because I am the brother of the driving champion," Henri explained.

Henri started to come into his own when he invaded the Big Apple three years ago. Driving at Yonkers and Roosevelt is challenging, and you can become a household name, much easier than by staying at such stops as Foxboro and Aurora Downs.

The switch has allowed Henri to show off the driving talent he's always had. And it's enabled him to sit behind horses that he never had the opportunity to drive.

It's been 19 years since Herve's brother (one of a family of eight boys and two girls) began jogging horses on the road near his home in Quebec.

His road to fame took a big step forward when he registered 84 wins during 1964. There were several fair seasons after that. Then, in 1972, misfortune.

Eleven of his 14 horses struck by "swamp fever" at Foxboro, died. Henri drifted to Chicago for a few months before relocating in the New York area.

The past two seasons have been sensational. He won 191 races in 1974 and 158 in '75. Earnings during those two seasons were over $2.5 million.

His big guns last year were Intrepid N., Bob Hilton and Royal Ascot N. His 1:59.4 clocking with Intrepid N. on January 12, 1974, is the earliest two-minute mile in New York history.

In one recent week of Yonkers racing, Henri hit the jackpot.

In a phenomenal display of horsemanship, he captured a division of the Sheppard Pace with Rockwell Hanover in 2:01.4 on Monday; registered a 2:08 triumph with Kenwood Hampton in a division of the Westchester Trot on Tuesday and came back the following night to win with Elmsford in 2:07 in a division of the Lou Dillon Trot.

Add these stake victories to his wins in the overnight events and you can see why he's moved out of Herve's shadow.

The 35-year-old Canadian intends to spend many years on the New York circuit. While Herve has been vacationing, Henri has been catch-driving for the world's champion.

The Filion family, wife Ginette and Henri Jr. (two and a half years old), live in Westbury.

"I like New York. The racing is good and the drivers are better."

By the same token, the sophisticated metropolitan fans have taken a liking to Henri. He's a "live" driver, one who can depend on to get the most out of a horse.

As one observer put it, "Just watch Henri's hands. They have that touch with a horse—the touch that makes an also-ran a consistent winner."

NASL Refs Under Fire

SEATTLE (UPI) — Jimmy Robertson, a skillful English First Division winger struck down by a broken leg, says North American Soccer League referees are giving players a "license to kill."

And he warns if outbursts of violent play are allowed to continue, English coaches may no longer let their top players spend summers in the NASL.

"My manager (at Stoke City) will be very wary about letting me return here. In fact, a lot of English clubs will be wary now," said the speedy Scot, whose leg was broken in a game between Philadelphia and Seattle on July 24.

"A player's license to kill has been expanded (in the NASL) and many feel they can do anything and get away with it. Gall players want to win and some will go to any extent to win if the referee will let them do it."

"All the referees — except Gordon Hill who is from England — have failed their jobs."

Robertson, who was a key to the Seattle attack, is less angry with the player who broke his leg than he is with the referee who failed to stop earlier violence in the game.

"I can't blame the Philadelphia players for what happened to me," he said. "When players can't match you in skill and pace, you can't really blame them in their desperation for resorting to thuggery. I blame the referees. Not necessarily the one last week, but the entire collection in this league."

"Soccer is not a game for sissies and I don't expect to go through a game without being kicked. But there are degrees of getting kicked. People were kicking me when they couldn't stop me in other ways. I knew I would be injured. It was inevitable."

"These referees seem more concerned with maintaining some kind of personal image in front of the fans than commanding respect from the players, trying to protect some kind of dignity most of them never had in the first place."

"The referees just want to get through their game with the least controversy possible so they'll look good."

Mike England, a top defender who was a player-coach at Cardiff and a mainstay for Wales in many international matches, joined in Robertson's criticisms.

"The refereeing is diabolical," he said. "They get so nervous they lose control of the game." The use of local linesmen to aid out-of-town referees causes many of the problems, according to England.

"The referees are gods. They will not take the help of linesmen. Before the start of a recent game I asked a referee, 'If a linesman raises his flag (for a foul or offside), will you consult him?' He said, 'No, they're only there to call the ball out.'"

England agrees that Britisher Gordon Hill "is a pleasure to play under."

"These other referees seem to feel that the worst, most punishable thing a player can do is use a foul tongue," said Robertson. "But foul deeds are allowed to take place until a player really gets hurt."

"With Hill you use foul language in the heat of competition as players often will and he'll use foul language right back at you. No women or children in the grandstand hear what's being said."

"But don't expect Gordon Hill to go easy with a ballplayer who tries to damage someone or destroy the quality of the game. He never allows violent language to assume the importance of physical violence."

Red Hook Outswims Zena

ZENA — Red Hook's Sea Raiders visited Zena for a non-league swim meet and ran up an 87 point advantage on their hosts by taking 37 of 57 first places in the competition. Liz Fritz, Eric Schreiber and Tom Rancher led the 290-203 victory with three wins apiece.

The Raiders pulled steadily away, adding to their edge in every stroke series. A strong breaststroke performance and six of nine relay wins settled the outcome.

Fritz took the back, butterfly and individual medley. Schreiber scored in the freestyle, back and IM and Rancher won the back, fly and IM. Ann Vosburgh, Mike Mosher and Bobby Spallina were double Red Hook winners.

Zena got a triple from Jim Turnbull who was a 12-year-old winner in the back, fly and IM. Lise Eschman, Annette Mason, Ken Acquaviva, Jennifer Rakov and Kirk Jacob were Zena's double winners.

Red Hook, with seven wins overall this year, returns to BiValley action this week against the Hyde Park Stingrays. Zena's next encounter is with Hurley.

Poodle Club Sets Match

KINGSTON — The Hudson Valley Poodle Club will hold an A.K.C. sanctioned match September 12 at the Dusty Boots Riding Club in Pattersonville.

Goodyear doesn't own even one Goodyear Tire Center ...but you can

While it's true that we own the world's largest chain of retail tire outlets—it's also true that we don't own a single Goodyear Tire Center. Tire Centers are owned by independent businessmen. We planed it that way.

After thirty years' experience with our own chain, we felt we had the know-how and the experience to establish a franchise program of independently owned and operated Goodyear Tire Centers. Our first one opened in 1968, and we've now passed the 150 mark.

This added retail distribution is essential to our growth, so we're concerned with the success of each new Goodyear Tire Center. That's why our program provides the right building in the right location, includes training and continuous counseling—even offers data processing, financial, and credit programs.

Still, nothing happens at a new Goodyear Tire Center until the doors open and sales are made. And that's where you come in.

If you're interested in a career in tire and automotive service retailing, you could be the owner we're searching for. Especially if you have an aggressive sales personality and some business background or adaptability.

You've got to be interested in profit too—in a dynamic growing business that promises to expand dramatically in the next twenty years. And you've got to be able to make an unincumbered investment of a minimum of $35,000 in your own Goodyear Tire Center.

There's no secret to our success. We're simply very careful in selecting each new owner, and then making sure that the owner gets all the help needed, beginning with day one.

If this sounds like your kind of opportunity, let's talk it over. Just write:

Marv Maker's Biggest Thrills Are Yet to Come

MONTICELLO—The race was the featured event for four-year-old pacers at Vernon Downs this past June.

Marvelous Marv Maker, 29, a tiny, soft-spoken man who looks more like a grocery delivery boy than the accomplished, skilled harness driver that he is, was in the sulky handling Bon Buck.

"He's the best horse I've ever handled," said Marv in his clipped Downeaster Maine accent.

Posted fourth, Marv found himself with Bon Buck in the four hole soon after the start. Going past the quarter he felt that the pace was just not fast enough and he pulled out. Bon Buck went right to the front.

"Most horses like to race from behind," he said, "and Bon Buck is no exception. By going to the front like that, though, I was able to get the jump on the favorite. It was one of those split-second decisions you have to make as a driver."

Marv won the race by a neck. "If I hadn't moved when I did," he said with satisfaction, "I would have gotten beat. That was the biggest thrill I've had in racing so far."

Because of his age, talent and dedication, Marvelous Marv's biggest thrills are yet to come. His talent is so pronounced that horsemen universally agree that it is just a matter of time before he leaves his home base of Monticello and takes on the likes of Buddy Gilmour and Herve Filion at the major New York tracks.

The driver whose skills he most admires is Buddy Gilmour.

The Outdoorsman

By SARRICK LEAVITT
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — He was a big man, standing there beneath his bright yellow construction hat and he looked angry.

"Are you a member of this gun club?" he growled.

I said yes. He relaxed a little, turning to gaze up a battered utility pole three workmen were scaling, dragging behind them huge grey electrical line insulators. I could see the insulators being replaced at the top were chipped and broken, apparently by rifle shots.

"I'd like to catch the s.o.b. that did that," he said. "We have to come out here about once a month. He'd be surprised to find out how much it would cost him. This is a main line too."

How much would it cost?

"Well, there's the salaries of those three men up that pole — they don't work for nothing. Then there's my salary, the cost of the truck to bring 'em out here and the cost of equipment. Not to mention the interruption of service."

A Pacific Gas & Electric Co. spokesman later told me that a single insulator can cost anywhere from a couple of dollars to more than $200.

Vandalism with guns. It's a problem that is costing California's estimated 1.5 million responsible hunters thousands of acres of land every year. The California early coastal deer hunt opened this weekend and incidents of gun abuse will force abused land owners to post more and more land.

"I've got about 140 acres in the mountains up in Lake County," my yellow hat friend said. "They came in there and shot up my cabin. They shot the stove just right so I couldn't use it anymore."

"I used to let anybody go in there for deer. There must have been 240 hunters I'd let go over that land every season. But it's posted now — even though I finally caught the ones shooting things up."

"Kids! There were four kids doing it. But it cost all those hunters access to my ranch. It's posted now. Nobody hunts there but me."

The PG&E spokesman said the annual cost to repair installations and equipment damaged by unthinking shooters is "a real problem" but exact figures are unavailable because repairs, although logged, are not tabulated to show whether money is expended to fix damaged done by bullets, the elements, vehicles, normal wear or something else.

"We have no figures that can indicate to us the exact cost," he said. "But we know it's substantial" throughout the company's 13 divisions covering 94,000 square acres.

Pacific telephone issues warnings to mourning dove hunters before the Sept. 1 opener each year about the dangers and damage caused by blasting away with shotguns at the little grey birds while they sit on telephone lines.

Make 'em fly before you shoot — it's certainly more challenging and sporting than slugging a bird with No. 8's while his feet are gripped to somebody's phone conservation.

The telephone spokesman also had no hard figures on damage caused. "But," he said, "we wish you'd write something about it. Carelessness with guns is costing us a lot of time and money."

The State Department of Transportation didn't know either.

"Nobody's really asked for that specific information," the spokesman said. "I'm sure it's expensive, especially the cost to replace signs, but we've never gathered the data just for damage caused by guns."

Tim Holven, head of the State Department of Fish and Game's hunter safety program, added, "We have found that most of that type of vandalism is not committed by the true sportsmen — the type of people who go through our hunter safety course. Most irresponsible acts of that kind are not committed by the regular shooter. It's usually some fellow who takes out a gun about once or twice a year."

He is probably right. It likely was just one guy who blasted fence poles until they toppled at a pasture in Esparto, a tiny farming community in Yolo County. We used to stand under a row of nut trees in that pasture and the mourning doves would come over like dive bombers, traveling close to 60 miles per hour between a grain field and a watering pond.

Last year we got there at daylight, only to be greeted by "No Hunting" signs ringing the field.

"He always see us to time his move just right," Marv said. He and Herve are the best so far as I'm concerned."

The most important asset of any athlete, no matter what sport, is his reflexes, his ability to react instinctively—and correctly in a competitive situation.

Marv has those reflexes. He has the "touch", as they say in the barn area, to correctly gauge a horse through the reins and make his move at just the right time.

Last year, only his fourth at Monticello, he won 159 races and collected more than $246,000 in purses for his owners. This year, so far, he's had 71 wins at Monticello to give him the lead in driver honors for the number of races won.

Maker, all 5-2 and 108 pounds of him, comes from Whiting, Maine, where his father was in the lumber business and drove horses as a hobby. By the time he was in his early teens he was jogging horses daily and had made up his mind to pursue his career in the driver's seat of a sulky.

"I found it to be the most exciting thing in the world," he said, looking like Woody Allen playing the boy next door.

He won his first race driving one of his father's horses at the age of 18. The older Maker was so proud of his son that he cried for joy.

Despite his appearance, Marvelous Marv is a man now. He and his wife JoAnn (she's a groom) live in Monticello and spend their time with horses, naturally. As for the future, Marv puts it this way, "I'll just play it by ear and take it as it comes."

Lemon Remains Cool

COOPERSTOWN (UPI) — Bob Lemon, a cool customer when he was the star of perhaps the greatest pitching staff in modern baseball history, is as unflappable as ever over his impending induction into the Hall of Fame.

Acknowledging that "it's a helluva thrill" to be inducted along with five other stars of the past in ceremonies at Cooperstown Monday, Lemon reviews his career with the same professional detachment with which he picked apart hitters for the Cleveland Indians enroute to seven 20-victory seasons and a 207-128 lifetime record.

Lemon, now a coach with the New York Yankees, will be inducted into the shrine along with Robin Roberts, who spent most of his career with the Philadelphia Phillies while winning 286 games; Fred Lindstrom, a star infielder with the New York Giants in the 1920s; Roger Connor, whose career ended in 1897; former American League umpire Cal Hubbard and Oscar Charleston, who spent his entire career in the old Negro Leagues.

"It's a helluva thrill," said Lemon when asked to explain how it felt to be immortalized. "My whole family wants to be there. My mother is 83 years old but is making the trip from California. She says she can die happy now that I've been elected to the Hall of Fame."

"There's no doubt that the Indians' staff (from about 1948 through 1956) was the best of modern times," Lemon continued. "It had everything including enormous depth."

The Indians' staff to which Lemon referred was led from 1948 through 1952 by Lemon, Early Wynn, Bob Feller and Mike Garcia. They were joined by Art Houtteman in 1953 and by Hal Newhouser and relievers Ray Narleski and Don Mossi in 1954.

Lemon was a 20-game winner seven times and Wynn a 20-game winner four times during the period while Garcia won 20 victories twice and Feller, who was just past his peak, won 20 games once. The staff reached its peak in 1954 when Lemon had a 23-7 mark followed by Wynn with 23-11, Garcia 19-8, Houtteman 15-7, Feller 13-3, Newhouser 7-2, Narleski 3-3 and Mossi 6-1.

The Indians set an American League record of 111 victories that season but lost the World Series to the New York Giants in four straight games.

Lemon much prefers to recall the 1948 season.

"That 1948 season was one to remember," said Lemon. "It was my first 20-victory season, I pitched a no-hitter and I won two games in the World Series as we beat the Boston Braves."

"But there was more to it than that," Lemon went on. "Bill Veeck had the fans in Cleveland baseball crazy. The fans came from cities and towns all around the area and we set an attendance record of 2.6 million. It was a great three-team race among the Indians, Red Sox and Yankees with we and the Red Sox ending in a tie."

"There was a one-game playoff in Boston and I remember (manager) Lou Boudreau asking some of us who we wanted to pitch it," Lemon continued. "We told him he'd been picking 'em pretty good all season and to go ahead and pick his man. He picked Gene Bearden and we won 8-3 with Boudreau hitting two homers."

"I remember Gene kept getting in and out of trouble," added Lemon. "Wynn and I warmed up in the bullpen for about seven of the nine innings. If we'd been called on to relieve we might have been too tired to pitch. But Gene made it all the way to give us the pennant. It capped a great year for us all and me personally when we beat the Braves in six games in the Series with me winning the second and sixth games."

LEGAL NOTICE

pursuant to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 (P.L. 92-500). Statements of qualifications will be received by the Planning Director, City Hall, Kingston, New York 12401 until 10 a.m. E.S.T., August 12, 1976 and shall include as a minimum:

1. Specialized experience and technical competence of the firm and its personnel in connection with the type of services required.
2. Past record of performance on contracts involving work of this type with government agencies and private industry.
3. Capacity of the firm to perform the work.
4. Resources available for completing the work.
5. References of past record of performance.
6. An example of the work which would typify the final product of the firm.

The scope of work that will be required under a negotiated contract involves preparation of a Facilities Plan including an infiltration/inflow analysis and an environmental assessment study. The work consists of reviewing existing wastewater treatment capacities and location of sanitary discharges below diversion chambers, determining maximum combined flows in the sewers, monitoring of overflow discharges and preparing cost-effective alternatives for treating combined flows and separation of storm and sanitary services in part or all of the system. Work will conclude with the preparation of a Facilities Plan to include preliminary design, cost estimates, and construction phasing.

After review of the statements of qualification, a maximum of three candidates will be selected to submit proposals for the work. A negotiated contract will be drawn on a fixed lump sum payment basis.

Any contract awarded under this request for qualification is expected to be funded in part by a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. This procurement will be subject to regulations contained in 40 CFR 35.936, 35.937, and 35.939. Neither the United States nor the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is nor will be a party to this request for qualification or any resulting contract.

The City of Kingston reserves the right to evaluate the qualification statements submitted, waive any irregularity therein, select candidates for submission of proposals and/or reject any and all firms that submitted qualification statements should it be deemed for its best interests. All parties submitting qualifications will be notified by mail of those selected to be invited to submit proposals.

Any questions relative to this request may be directed to Robert P. Eickhoff, P.E., Planning Director, City Hall, Kingston, N.Y. 12401 (tel. 914-339-4440).

NOTICE OF PUBLICATION OF SUMMARY OF GRANT APPLICATION OF THE COUNTY OF ULSTER AS PRIME SPONSOR FOR FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE UNDER TITLE I OF THE COMPREHENSIVE EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING ACT OF 1973. Pursuant to the requirements of the U.S. Department of Labor rules and regulations for grant applications under the

LEGAL NOTICE

Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973, the County of Ulster has prepared the following summary of its application for publication at the time of its submission. The County of Ulster is seeking financial assistance under Title I of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 in order to be able to provide employment and job opportunities for unemployed, underemployed, and economically disadvantaged residents of the County of Ulster who have the greatest need for assistance in ultimately securing a job which pays a living wage. The County of Ulster is defined as follows: bordered on the east by the Hudson River, on the north by Greene County, on the west by Delaware and Sullivan Counties and on the south by Orange County. Against the planning allocation of $712,267 for program year 1977, the County of Ulster has submitted its application for financial assistance which calls for $237,420 for On-the-Job Training Programs, to serve at least 135 persons to improve their skills and jobs in which skill shortages exist; $113,499 for Adult Work Experience Programs to provide wages and services to 22 persons who need to establish work habits and gain general skills to become better equipped to compete for available jobs; $177,420 for Youth Work Experience Programs to provide wages and services to 89 disadvantaged youth, ages 16-22, to encourage them to remain in school or resume their schooling if they have dropped out; $60,000 to provide work experience for 55 youths enrolled in an alternate learning program. Training provided under this program will lead to the acquisition of a high school equivalency diploma. It is anticipated that a total of 1,000 persons will receive some type of service from the Title I program. This service will include intake assessment and job referral. It is expected that at least 600 of those individuals served will be enrolled in Title I activities to include on-the-job training, adult and youth work experience programs and/or classroom training. Of those directly enrolled it is expected that 195 persons will be placed in unsubsidized employment following training. It is expected that efforts of the job development unit will result in the direct placement of 85 other persons. The remainder will be referred for other services including vocational rehabilitation, testing, counseling, or other manpower related services. Table 1—Significant Segments (planned enrollment)

DISTINCTIVE HI-RANCHES

BY KAPSON HOMES

WE KNOW . . .

• You want a spacious, beautiful home of your own
• You'd like to live in a desirable neighborhood at a convenient location close to Route 9 off IBM Road in Poughkeepsie's renowned Spackenkill School district
• You want your home on a picturesque interior street with no thru traffic for your children's safety
• You need appliances such as a color oven and range with matching hood and a built in dishwasher in your home.
• You appreciate the energy savings provided by full thick insulation, thermo insulated windows and the economy of natural gas. Hot water heat with baseboard radiation.
• You long for such luxuries — a true eat-in kitchen with oak cabinets and no wax conglomera — ceramic tile bath, parquet style oak floors — maintenance free aluminum siding, leaders & gutters, — a formal dining room with thermo-glass doors leading to your own private sundeck.
• You require abundant closets and storage space for your family's belongings.
• You demand the highest quality home on a poured concrete foundation for the least amount of money.

Outgoing Kidnapers of 26 Says Plan Developed Slowly

MADERA, Calif. (UPI) — At least one of the three suspects in the Chowchilla bus kidnap case is talking freely with authorities, according to the Madera Tribune.

In some discussions, the suspect showed consternation about "how things got to this point," the county seat newspaper said Friday.

The suspect, the newspaper said, "talked gregariously about how things were prepared slowly as each was building up confidence—but not thinking it would really occur."

The paper said one confidence-building step was the purchase and burying of the moving van in which the 26 kidnaped children and their driver, Frank Ray, 55, were incarcerated after their kidnaping from a school bus July 15.

Although one of the suspects may be making incriminating statements, all three have pleaded not guilty of all charges.

The suspects, held in Alameda County jails pending indictment, are Frederick Newhall Woods IV, 24, Richard Schoenfeld, 22, and his brother, James Schoenfeld, 24.

The newspaper, without naming its sources, said a rough map found in the San Francisco-area residence of James Schoenfeld marked four schools near Chowchilla and the school attended by the 26 abducted children. The map also was said to have marked Berenda Slough where the bus was abandoned before the children were transported to a quarry where they were put in the buried moving van.

Investigators, who are under a court-imposed gag order, made no comment on the newspaper report.

Viking 2 Is in Perfect Orbit

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 2, ending a 505-million mile journey, slowed down and dipped into a long egg-shaped orbit around Mars Saturday while Viking 1, sent back more biology data from the Martian surface.

Viking 2, launched 11 months ago, turned on its 300-pound thrust engine, rolled to keep its antenna pointed toward Earth and entered Mars orbit at 8:29 a.m. EDT, earth receive time.

"The orbit is beautiful," a Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesman said. "The operation went like hotcakes."

"We have another beautiful MOI (Mars orbit insertion)," mission control said when the engine burn ended.

The actual orbit insertion occurred 20 minutes earlier, but it takes 20 minutes for the signal to travel the 215 million miles through space at the speed of light to reach mission control.

Viking 2 will begin taking pictures in four days of two possible landing areas, designated B-2 and B-3, along the 40 to 50 degree north latitude band of the red planet.

The first choice, B-1, in the Acidalia Plains, appeared rough, cracked and pocked with craters in pictures sent back by Viking 1's orbiter which has been photographing the site for weeks.

Viking 2's orbit of 27.4 hours is longer than a Martian day of 24 hours, 37 minutes and will permit the planet to revolve slowly under the spacecraft, mission control said.

At the nearest point the spaceship will be 932 miles above the rust red surface of Mars. At the farthest point in the orbit, it will be 22,126 miles away.

The alternative landing areas, B-2 and B-3, are west and east of the first site, but in the same latitude where scientists said there is more moisture, a thick permafrost beneath the surface and a better chance of finding life.

Viking 1 landed on Mars July 20, more than two weeks after its scheduled July 4 Bicentennial touchdown, because orbiter pictures showed the surface of Mars to be hazardous to spacecraft.

It landed in a desert-like basin and has been conducting organic and inorganic chemistry experiments and biology experiments in a search for micro-organic life forms in the soil.

The robot's one long retractable arm that scoops the soil for the experiments jammed last Tuesday, and scientists have been working to see what happened. A sequence of commands has been worked out and fed into the lander's computer to see if the arm will begin operating again.

Engineers said the source of the problem was not known, but frost was considered a possible cause.

More Smoking Less

ATLANTA (UPI) — Younger women and persons over 55 are the exceptions to the rule that Americans are smoking less, according to the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health.

The center reported late last week that the percentage of male and female smokers was down from that indicated in previous surveys.

However, for women 21 to 24, women 55 and over, and men 65 and over, there was a slight increase in smoking.

The latest survey was made of 12,000 persons over the age of 21, conducted by the National Clearinghouse and the National Cancer Institute.

Men smoked more cigarettes per day, averaging 23, about the same as in 1970, compared to 19 for women, up from 17 in 1970, the center said.

F-14 Future Is in Doubt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy's trouble-plagued F14 jet fighter could engage current Soviet fighters but the Navy fears its ability to cope with future threats may be only "marginal," the General Accounting Office said Saturday.

However, the GAO said, the Defense Department should take a hard look at plans to improve the F14's performance with bigger engines because of the "high cost."

In a summary of a report to Congress, the GAO said it would cost $1.7 billion to equip the F14 fleet with new engines that would increase its speed for air-to-air combat.

While such an improvement would be "most important," the GAO said, it would be offset by a reduction in the aircraft's range and in its "loiter" time — the time it could remain on station in the air.

The GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, said the average operational readiness of the Navy's F14A was only 37.2 per cent in 1975 because of equipment problems and supply shortages.

The GAO said spare parts shortages were so severe at two naval air stations and on cruises that many of the F14As were kept in the air only by "cannibalizing" parts from other aircraft.

The reliability of the aircraft's electronic equipment was "extremely low," the GAO said, with some major systems ranging from "about 6 per cent to 14 per cent of the desired objective."

Olde Timers' Day Coming Up

SAUGERTIESMusic, music, music, dancing, puppet theatre, olde time movie, stores open for business and full of old fashioned bargains, continuous demonstrations of crafts, food, all are being coordinated for this year's Olde Timers Day in Saugerties, when the whole community comes out to welcome guests to a day of great festivities. The annual event will be held this Saturday, Aug. 14, starting at 9 a.m. with activities planned for the main streets every hour during the day to 6 o'clock.

Performing the duties of masters of ceremonies will be John Moree, Jack Keeley, Michael Schovel and Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey. Mayor James Gage and Supervisor Frank Greco accompanied by Assemblyman Hinchey, the village board, the town board and county legislators will take part in the ribbon cutting ceremonies, 11 a.m., at the corner of Main and Partition Streets.

The day will get off to a racing start with a Chase Race marathon for approximately 100 participants from throughout the North East, at 9 a.m., sponsored by the Chase Manhattan Bank. The Saugerties Stockaders will parade at 10 a.m.

Some activities are meant for stage presentation and two platforms are ready, the George Washington Stage at Main and Partition Streets and the Martha Washington Stage at Partition Street Parking Lot estrance.

At noon, for instance, on the Martha Washington Stage the audience will see the "Senior Swingers Performing Their Squares" assisted by Caller Steve Martin. Just prior to that the Barber Shop Quartet will sing and afterward the Country Blue will play Country Music.

Costume Judging will take place at the George Washington Stage at 11:15 a.m., preceded by Red Praetorius and His Washboard Band at 10 o'clock. Pat Jr. and the Midnight Special will provide music from the years for dancing and listening pleasure on the G. W. Stage at 2 p.m.

The Highland Amerscot Pipers will play throughout the streets during the afternoon and Don Fellows and his Sing-A-Long Gang accompanied by Elsie and Ellen, the twin accordionists, will lead singing of old favorites at the G.W. Stage at 4:30 p.m. Most activities will be repeated during the day.

While all of this plus, booths with articles for sale and special exhibits, is going on outdoors, Steve Gottlieb, puppeteer, will be performing at the Orpheum Theatre, 1:15 and 3:30 p.m., price 25 cents. And the Olde Time Movie at Olde Time Prices, 50 cents, will be shown at the Orpheum at 2 and 4 p.m.

All will come to a grand finale at 6 p.m. when 117 awards will be made.

Little Miss Jennifer Richards, 11 years old, has spent this past year crocheting this beautiful flag to be placed on display on Olde Timers' Day by Chairperson Lorraine Becker.

Saugerties Village Clerk Georgette Hughes, 28, and Robert Lehmann, village trustee, 33, shown above, may not always see eye to eye on village government but for Olde Timers' Day they have joined forces to help make the day a whopping success, even though they are far from being "olde timers" themselves. ## Gail Magruder: Crisis to Christ

By MARIAN CHRISTY

NEW YORK — Blonde Gail Magruder, wife of the convicted Watergate conspirator, walks regally through the lobby of the St. Regis Hotel. Mrs. Jeb Magruder is a pretty woman worth an admiring glance — short, upsweped coiffure with every hair in place, impeccable make-up, bright yellow dress skimming a very good figure, a Gucci briefcase, long curvy legs and, most of all, an aura of ironclad confidence that adds allure to her sexiness.

She looks like an actress, not the 37-year-old mother of four children ages nine to 15, not the woman whose husband fell with the Nixon administration in disgrace, not the strong-willed matriarch who gamely kept the home fires burning while her husband served a seven-month term in two federal prisons.

Certainly, Gail Magruder, once a Vassar student who was wooed by an oil-rich Arab who asked her to join his harem in the Middle East, doesn't look like the prototype wife of the vice president of a Colorado Springs-based Christian youth organization called Young Life. She's the type of glamorous woman you see at high-level cocktail parties.

Apparently Gail Magruder has survived the tribulations of the Watergate scandal and has emerged, in her breathless words, "with new strength because I know Jesus Christ loves us."

Gail Magruder, who never liked politics but has written a book "Gift of Love," her anguished account of the shattering effect of Watergate on the life of her family, is on a promotional tour and:

"I don't always look like this," she whispers quietly. "I've just been made up for a television show." Later: "Who would have dreamed that I, a simple housewife, could write a book and launch a career? I wanted to be a painter but the door was closed. Yet the book happened easily. It is God's will."

She says she wrote the book because she had to analyze step-by-step "on paper," what really happened to the Magruders as a result of the Watergate affair.

"I found," she says, "that my life was governed by fear — fear of the White House, later fear of the prison guards, fear of friends who turned away from us in fear, fear that my marriage wouldn't survive. So I sat down once a week and wrote about fear — and the fear became a gift of love because it opened up new vistas," says the University of California graduate who is thinking of attending a theology school.

Often the words "Jesus Christ" punctuate her conversation. She is fanatical about practicing what she preaches.

Gail Magruder is a volunteer weekly visitor at the nearby penitentiary in Canon City, working one-to-one with specific prisoners. "These people must not feel abandoned. They must be made to feel that Jesus Christ cares."

She talks about the fact that her husband was convicted for conspiring to obstruct justice ("... he wasn't a murderer or a member of organized crime.") — and when he was shipped to Pennsylvania's Allenwood Prison, one of the so-called "country club prisons" — that he was stripped and searched, that books sent him by friends were returned to the bookstore with the excuse they might be concealing weapons and that all his mail was opened and read.

"The only way we got through these traumas was to believe that Jesus Christ loved us and that He was there to comfort us through these horrors."

She reminisces sadly about her husband's ego being completely shattered by the spiritually debilitating prison experience of living in a cell block. "We could do nothing for ourselves. We had to rely on Jesus Christ and the power of prayer."

However, Magruder staunchly maintains that she is not a weak woman who uses religion as a crutch. When the going gets rough, she gets going.

During the Watergate hearings, a CBS-TV woman reporter camped on her driveway with a team of cameramen, chased her eldest son, then 12, "around the cherry tree" with a microphone in hand. He was on his way to school, the reporter wanted desperately to interview him and Mrs. Magruder watched the "hysterical scene" from the kitchen window.

"I knew at that moment," she says vehemently, "that I was totally capable of giving this woman a hard karate chop. My own emotional response, riddled with the hint of violence, really frightened me. I ran out and warned the woman in no uncertain terms to stay away from my child. She did."

The Magruder marriage, once "wedding cake perfect," got "shaky" when Jeb came home late one night from the White House and told Gail the essence of the Watergate break-in plan.

"I have antennae," she says about her sensitivity. "I gave Jeb warnings. I voiced my opinion strongly. Jeb wasn't tuned in. I told him Libby's plan was bizarre. I told him John Mitchell, whom I liked, was wrong. I reacted violently with words. Jeb just didn't think through what I was saying to him."

After that confrontation, "real estrangement" set in with a vengeance.

"We really weren't communicating about anything," says Gail about the marital relationship. "The idea of divorce crossed my mind. But when Jeb went voluntarily to the prosecutor, even though Bill Haldeman called him repeatedly to urge that he keep bluffing in order to continue the coverup, I knew this marriage would survive. I felt I could love Jeb again. I felt I could comfort him again. I felt we would be one again."

Gail Magruder fields questions about the Richard Nixons.

How are the Nixons?

"They need a healing time. They've had so much pain."

Have they been in touch with the Nixons?

"They've communicated to us through friends."

What form has this communication taken?

"I must be evasive ..."

In May, Jeb Magruder was in San Clemente. Did he visit the Nixons?

"I don't know ... I haven't kept track of that. They are still suffering. Hurt vibrations are still going on."

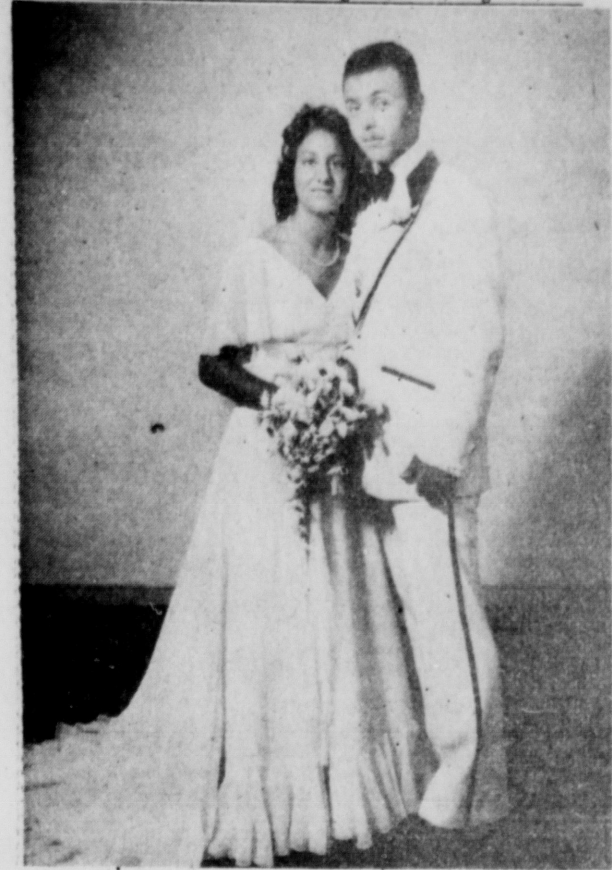

Jeb Magruder's job is to promote Christianity. John Ehrlichman, who has been disbarred, is said to be newly interested in religion. Charles Colson is known as "Brother Colson" and is said to give soul-stirring sermons. Why have so many of the Watergate conspirators turned to religion?

"In crisis time," says Gail Magruder, "you have nowhere to go. The only source left is Jesus."

Gail Magruder: She's thinking of the ministry.

PFC Wants to Marry Deaf-mute; Mother Refuses to Give Consent

DEAR ABBY: I am an American serviceman who has been stationed in Korea for six months. The first week I arrived here I met "Sun," a Korean girl who was selling paintings for a church fund raiser. She is a deaf-mute, but we were able to communicate well enough to become better acquainted. We became inseparable, and within three months we knew we were in love.

I wrote to my mother asking for permission to marry Sun. (My father is deceased.) My mother wrote back saying she is against it. That is my problem, Abby. I am only 19 and cannot marry without my mother's consent until I reach 21.

My mother says I am too young to marry, but I think her real reason is she doesn't want a Korean deaf-mute for a daughter-in-law.

Sun and I are very much in love. I know in my heart that we were meant for each other. Sun's parents are both dead, and I am all she has. I know she would make a wonderful wife. Can you help me?—SAD PFC.

DEAR SAD: Talk to your chaplain. And consider this: A Korean girl with normal speech and hearing may have difficulty adjusting to a Western society, but a deaf-mute could be overwhelmed by the task. To bring Sun home as your bride could be terribly unfair to her. If your love was meant to be, it will endure until you are 21. Be patient.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 40 years, and all the years of my married life my husband has had other women. He never had the same one for very long, but it has been one after the other.

He has always been a loving and generous husband and a wonderful father to our children, and I know he loves me. He has never embarrassed me by going out in public with another woman, but as discreet as he was, somehow I always found out. I have asked him several times why he needs other women, because I am by nature a very affectionate person. He gets defensive and has no answer.

I love him dearly and would never consider leaving him, but the older I get, the more it hurts. I am 60 and he is 63.

Can you advise me?—TROUBLED AT 60

DEAR TROUBLED: You say you love him, and I believe you do. To "love" a person is to accept him with all his faults, weaknesses and imperfections.

Don't dwell on his infidelity. (Who can know the most intimate needs of another?) No one has everything.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to people? I work as a maid in a motel that is part of a very popular chain. We're full most of the time.

Our guests wouldn't think of having a cup of coffee and not leaving a small tip for the waitress. But the maid who cleans up their room never gets a thing.

I change the bed linen, scrub and disinfect the bathroom, pick up the soiled towels, and even gather up trash that's been thrown near, but not in, the trash can.

Sure, we get paid for what we do. But considering the way most people mess up a motel room, it takes a lot of extra work, so an extra dollar would be appreciated.

I hope you don't miss when you crumple this up and aim for the basket Abby... JUST A MOTEL MAID

DEAR JUST: I aimed your letter at my typewriter—not my wastebasket. Perhaps a gentle reminder to all those summer travelers may help.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a doctor for three years. We are both 29. We live in a nice neighborhood, and our neighbors are wonderful people, except for one thing: Whenever someone in their household becomes ill, they call Dave, my husband.

We were awakened at 4:30 a.m. by a neighbor whose daughter had difficulty breathing. She had a cold, and nose drops would have done the trick.

Abby, this isn't an occasional happening, this goes on all the time. No matter how trivial the illness, they call Dave. He works 18 to 20 hours a day and needs his rest. These neighbors have their own physicians, but they call Dave because he's handy. They never invite us to any of their parties. We hear from them only when somebody's sick.

When they call, I can't say he isn't home because they would see both our cars. We've considered moving, but the same thing would probably happen wherever we went.

How can we get these people off our backs without destroying our friendship?

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: What "friendship"? Tell them to call their own doctors and to please call Dr. Dave only in an emergency.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Wheat Germ Stuffed Tomatoes Super Salad

Salad days are here so reach for the jar of wheat germ and create something special. You'll find that all the fresh, ripe produce of summer is in excellent company with wheat germ because it, too, is a natural food. There are no preservatives or additives in this wheat product. And like most salad ingredients, toasted wheat germ is ready to use as it is. After opening the vacuum-packed jar, wheat germ should be stored in the refrigerator along with other perishables. Wheat germ has its own valuable content of nutrients flavor and freshness, and its taste can make any salad substantial without adding many calories. Its crunchy texture goes well with greens and vegetables.

In this colorful and showy stuffed tomato recipe, the nutty flavor of the wheat germ enhances the avocado and tomato filling. The combination tastes even better with chopped onion, parsley and lemon juice. This makes a lovely and easy salad entree to serve with hot rolls and iced tea or, for a dinner menu, to accompany steak or hamburgers.

To dress up everyday tossed salads, consumer specialists suggest sprinkling on wheat germ as you would croutons.

Adding it last keeps the tiny golden flakes in tip-top shape. Wheat germ is also a natural in hearty potato salads.

Wheat Germ Stuffed Tomatoes
4 large tomatoes (3-inch diameter)
1 avocado
1/2 cup vacuum-packed wheat germ (regular)
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
lemon wedges
Cut off 1/4 inch from each tomato. Scoop out seeds and pulp, leaving shells intact. Drain shells thoroughly. Dice tomato tops and pulp. Drain. Halve avocado and discard seed and skin. Dice. Mix wheat germ, celery, onion, parsley, lemon juice, salt, pepper, avocado and drained diced tomato. Spoon into tomato shells. If desired, sprinkle with additional wheat germ and garnish with parsley or fresh herbs. Serve with lemon wedges. Makes 4 servings.

Summertime Soups Seasoned to Please

Well-seasoned chilled soups can be a delight in hot weather, and can easily be made well in advance of serving. This can get some of the kitchen work done early in the day, and also gives the soups time to chill completely while the flavors blend.

You will note that the following recipes for chilled soups involve pureeing or whirling smooth in a blender so that they are drinkable, and can be served in cold cups or mugs. They are refreshing pick-me-ups for lunch, between meals or a great find for the refrigerator-raider looking for a midnight snack.

You can easily create your own spicy chilled soups. Use condensed cream soups, broth or bisques. Thin with cream, milk, yogurt or water and stir in instant minced onion or onion powder, black or white pepper — or a discreet pinch of red pepper. Almost any herb would be good, but try oregano or Italian seasoning in tomato or mushroom soup, basil in cream of pea soup, marjoram in cream of potato soup or curry powder in cream of chicken soup. Scatter with parsley flakes, and at serving time, dash on paprika for a final touch. Quick Spinach Vichyssoise

2 cans (10 3/4 oz. each) cream of potato soup
2 soup cans milk
1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach
2 tablespoons freeze-fried chives
1 teaspoon basil leaves, crumbled
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 cup dairy sour cream

In a medium saucepan combine soup, milk, spinach, chives, basil and black pepper. Heat until spinach is thawed and soup is hot. Bring to the boiling point, uncovered, over low heat. Reduce heat and simmer for 1 minute. Remove from heat. Pour half of the soup mixture into the jar of an electric blender. Cover; blend until smooth. Pour into a large bowl and repeat. Stir in sour cream; mix until smooth. Cover and refrigerate until well chilled, about 4 hours. Thin with a small amount of milk if necessary. Serve with a dollop of sour cream and freeze-dried chives if desired. Makes 6 cups. Chilly Dilly Yogurt Soup

2 cans (10 1/2 oz. each) condensed chicken with rice soup
2 soup cans water
2 teaspoons onion powder
2 teaspoons dill weed
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

1 cup (8 oz.) plain yogurt or sour cream, divided
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice

In a large saucepan combine soup, water, onion powder, dill weed, salt and black pepper. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered for 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Cool slightly. Stir in half of the yogurt and the lemon juice. Cover and refrigerate until well chilled, about 4 hours. Serve with a dollop of the remaining yogurt and a sprinkle of dill weed. Makes 6 cups. Note: If you prefer a smooth soup, use 1 1/2 soup cans water and place mixture, half at a time, into the jar of an electric blender. Cover and blend until smooth, about 1 minute. Repeat and chill.

Avery Family Exhibit at Jarvis Gallery

WOODSTOCK—Milton Avery, who died in 1965 and is buried in Artists' Cemetery in Woodstock, was not only recognized as an American master but was a painter of international rank whose best work invited comparison with modern European masters. He is listed among the top 10 American painters today. The scope of his work included figures, still-life and landscape paintings.

These will be included in the Third Annual Avery Family Exhibit at Jarvis Gallery, 2 Broadview Rd., Woodstock.

Sally Michel Avery, who is handling the entire Milton Avery estate, has admitted that her late husband's paintings which sold for $1,000 a piece about 15 years ago are now listed at $75,000 to $100,000.

"The Andrew Crispel Gallery on 57th Street in New York has one of Milton's paintings and has listed it for $75,000. I, myself, have sold a couple for $100,000 and a number at $75,000," she said.

price of a painting?" by saying: "If you can get it — that determines the price. There's no point of putting a price on that which no one will buy."

Art

Demand also sets prices. Milton Avery watercolors that were bringing $1,100 ten years ago right after he died, are now being sold for $18,000.

Sally Michel doesn't control the pricing of her husband's works if they are part of someone else's collection. "I control only those paintings I own and you can't over-expose them," she says.

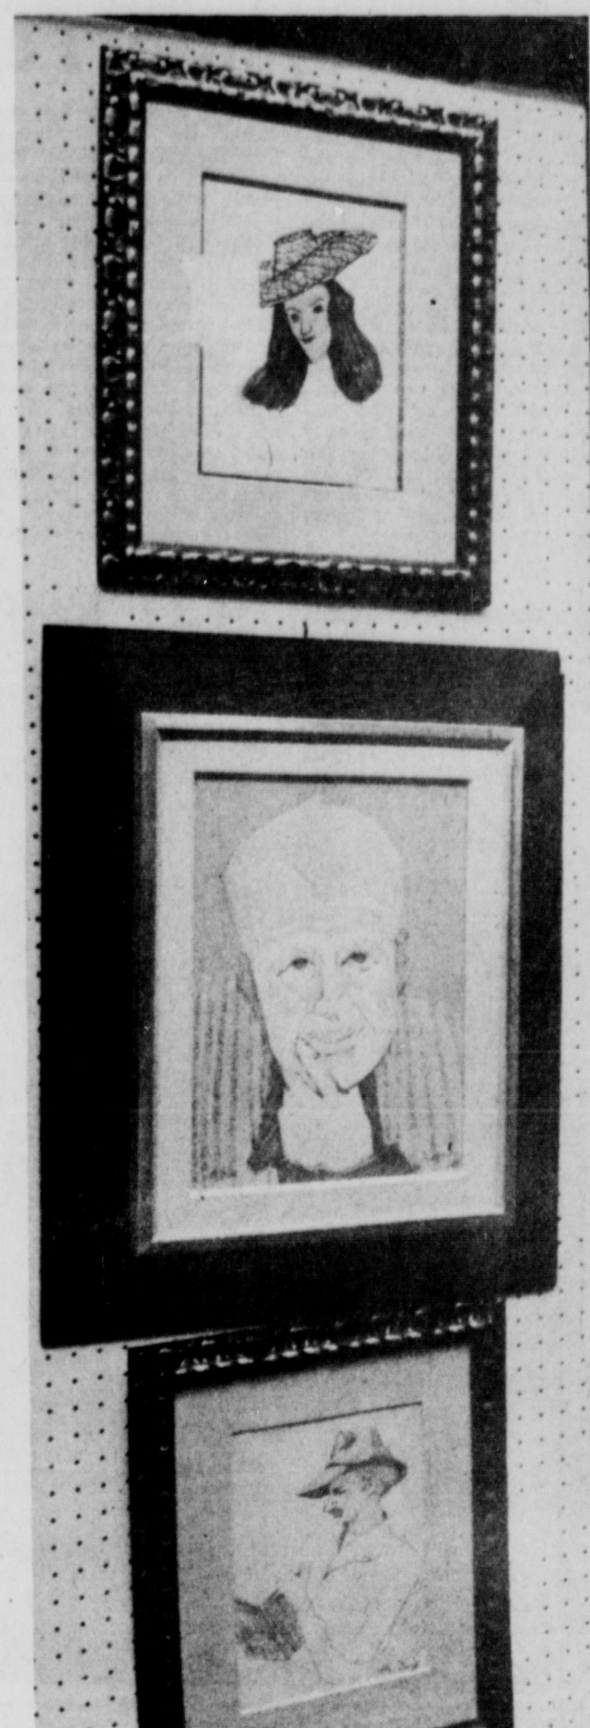

Sally Michel lives in New York City and spends her summers in the Woodstock art colony. "I'm one of those rare creatures, an original New Yorker," she says. She met her late husband at the age of 18 in Gloucester, Mass. After they were married, she recognized the fact that her husband had a great talent and should work at it constantly. While he was turning out canvases, she was doing illustrations and drawings.

Today, her artwork has come to the fore. Hundreds of her paintings provide proof of her disciplined work habits. Her newest works are featured in the Jarvis exhibit. Represented in many shows, the gifted artist says she likes to paint women with cats. "A lot of my friends have cats," she explains. "They are very paintable subjects and I have sold about two of these completed works recently."

Daughter, March, subject of many of her late father's paintings, is also a painter and has recently concentrated on sculpture. She and her mother have been included in exhibits at the Fontana Gallery in Philadelphia and March, today, is selling about a painting a week according to her mother.

The show at the Jarvis Gallery features works of all three artists of the Avery family.

Former Resident Is Soloist

SARATOGA SPRINGS—Stanley Hummel of Delmar, widely known area pianist, who grew up in Kingston, N.Y., will be the piano soloist with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra Saturday, Aug. 14 at 8:15 p.m. Hummel will perform Franz Liszt's "Concerto No. 1 in E Flat Major" for piano and orchestra.

The Hummel family were well known in music circles in Kingston. His mother was organist at the First Presbyterian Church where Stanley Hummel returned to give a recital following his recognition in the concert world.

Stanley Hummel made his New York debut at the age of 17. He scored success after success on a recent European tour that included concerts in London, Vienna, Brussels and Amsterdam. His recordings have received high praise from "Musical America," "the Saturday Review" and "High Fidelity," and he has performed with the New York Philharmonic, the National Symphony Orchestra, Juilliard Orchestra, and the Albany Symphony.

The remainder of Saturday's program will be of the "pops" variety for which Maestro Fiedler is world renowned...much of it American.

During the coming week the Philadelphia Orchestra will host new artists. Wednesday, Aug. 11, coloratura soprano Ruth Welting, a native of Memphis, Tenn., will be featured with Edo de Waart, artistic director of the Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra, Holland, conducting. De Waart was recently appointed principal guest conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. Susan Starr, pianist, and Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, Polish-born conductor and music director of the Minnesota Orchestra, will appear. Gina Bachauer, pianist, with James de Preist, conductor, will be presented Friday night. All orchestra programs at the amphitheater start at 8:15 p.m.

Poetry Program Slated as Tribute To the Late Bard John Berryman

WOODSTOCK—A tribute to the late John Berryman, Pulitzer prize-winning poet, will be given Monday evening, Aug. 9, 8 p.m. at the Woodstock Library, as several local poets participate in the program. Also featured during the first part of the evening's schedule will be Andrei Codrescu, West Coast poet, who will read from his recent work. His poems have appeared widely in leading avant-garde magazines and his most recent book of poems, "The Marriage of Insult and Injury" will be released by the Cymric Press, Marguerite Harris publisher, in September.

The second half of the evening will be devoted to the late John Berryman. Local poets Jim Reed, Robert Paton, Michael Perkins and Alfie Robinson will join Marguerite Harris in a reading of his work.

Readings will also be made from Ms. Harris' anthology of poems written about him by 50 poets who revere his memory and have reacted to the impact of his unique and remarkable work.

"A Tumult for John Berryman" will be available after the reading for interested poetry lovers. All are welcome. Admission is free as these readings are sponsored by Poets and Writers of the New York State Council of the Arts.

At State Fair

Ghost House Features Monsters

SYRACUSE—Ghosts, goblins and some favorite monsters are coming to the New York State Fair this year in the Syracuse Jaycees Haunted House — one of the new attractions at this year's fair.

A complete two-story structure is now under construction in the Farm Machinery Building at the fairgrounds. It will house not only the Haunted House, designed by past Jaycee president Henry Holava at the direction of fair director Thomas Young, but many other youth related activities and the annual display of farm machinery.

Young emphasized that the money the Jaycees accrue from the Haunted House will go directly to the more than 40 youth projects the Jaycees support during the year. The House is a permanent structure that will be used by the Jaycees during Halloween as well as during fair week.

Over two tons of sheet rock and eight miles of two by fours will be used to construct the mammoth 7,000 square foot structure. The "House" is 35 feet by 100 feet. More than two miles of electrical wiring and more than 50 gallons of black paint will be used to create the special effects necessary to keep the house "haunted" by eleven different monsters, including Count Dracula, the Wolfman and Frankenstein.

According to construction chairman David Pistello, the house, which has taken four months to plan and build, requires a staff of 40 to operate it during fair week. The Jaycees estimate that 1,000 persons each hour will be able to make the 14 minute tour through the house.

The fair will feature performances by Charley Pride on August 31, Niel Sedaka, on September 1, Bob Hope on September 3 and Bobby Vinton on September 5. Tickets for these performances will be priced from $3 to $6 in addition to gate admission.

Tickets to the fair are priced at $1.75, but if performance tickets are purchased in advance, gate admission is available for only $1.25. Children 12 and under will be admitted free to the grounds every day of the fair with students 16 and under admitted free on August 31 and September 1. Senior citizens (60 and over) will have three free days to choose from, September 2, 3 and 6.

The fair will run from August 31 until September 6 and tickets may be purchased both at regular advance sale outlets or at the fairgrounds.

Only a few hundred feet from this stately mansion north of London is the entrance to the Hellfire Caves, where many a legendary 18th century revel took place. Even Benjamin Franklin joined in. Tourists now may visit at West Wycombe Park, home of Sir Francis Dashwood.

BACK IN PORT

WEST POINT—The "Yankee Doodle", a 31-foot sailboat manned by James Ford, Colonel Donne Olvey and Mike Garn, returned to West Point recently after a 5,950 mile journey from Plymouth, England.

The boat was following the approximate route of the pilgrims to commemorate the crossing of our ancestors on the Mayflower in 1620. The trip took 51 days.

Built in England, this was the maiden voyage for the Yankee Doodle and the 3 members of the crew, none of whom had previous navigational experience.

Colonel Olvey, the navigator, was appointed to the United States Military Academy at West Point from Georgia, and graduated in 1955. At present he is the head of the social sciences department there.

Reverend James Ford, captain of the "Yankee Doodle" and chaplain at West Point since 1961, graduated from Gustavus Adolphus College and Augustana Seminary. He is a native of Minnesota.

H.A. (Mike) Garn, radioman and cook for the voyage, graduated from West Point in 1955. A Rhodes Scholar, he is presently a senior researcher with the Urban Institute in Washington.

Hellfire Elements in England

Next time you're in Britain, join the terrible and notorious Hell Fire Club. It will cost you 90 cents. Go to West Wycombe Park, 30 miles west of London, and present yourself at the entrance of the Hell Fire Caves, and you're in.

You may not attend an orgy like the one Emma Peel and John Steed did in an episode of "The Avengers." But you'll see life-like recreations of what went on in the licentious days of yore.

The Hell Fire Club, started in 1746 by Sir Francis Dashwood, was infamous even in the relaxed moral atmosphere of the 18th century. Aristocratic members played at being wicked with wine, women, profane song and the rites of Black Magic in subterranean chambers in the chalk hills of West Wycombe. They enjoyed talking about it even more.

In addition to Sir Francis, the roll-call included many leading figures of 18th century politics — Lord Sandwich, Sir William Stanhope, George Selwyn, poets Robert Lloyd and Paul Whitehead and the painter William Hogarth. Their humorous, if questionable, activities became legendary. The scandal these days would be horrific!

Clothed in monk-like robes, the "brothers" swilled claret and gourmandised 300 feet below the ground, before being their duties while Sir Francis was Britain's Postmaster General and Franklin was head of the Colonial Posts. Together they drew up a plan of reconciliation designed to prevent the War of Independence. Surprisingly, they also drew up a revised Prayer Book which became the source of the prayer Monks' Cells, Banqueting Hall and Inner Temple. At intervals 18th century waxwork figures tell the highlights of club history. One tableau depicts John Wilkes, member of Parliament, Budd Dodginton and Lord Melcombe Regis quaffing wine in the Inner Temple, at the spot where, according to local history, Whycombe wenches left the last memories of their innocence.

Although Sir Francis, Franklin's contemporary, gained notoriety through the Hell Fire Club, he was also a keen traveler, a prominent and active member of Parliament and an architectural buff. He once created a sensation in the Sistine Chapel at Rome by dressing as the devil and whipping the monks gathered there for worship.

West Wycombe House was completely rebuilt between 1739 and 1781 and richly decorated with a fine collection of 18th century furniture and paintings. The house is open to the public from June 1 to August 30. Admission is $1.35 (70 pence). It is also included in Britain's Open to View Ticket as one of the 400 places that can be visited for $9.50 introduced to women of "cheerful and lively disposition", often dressed as nuns. First choice of the women was the "Abbot's" prerogative — it was an honorary post held in rotation.

Although it is not certain whether Benjamin Franklin was an actual member of the Club, he did undertake a tour of the underground alcoves while staying with Sir Francis at West Wycombe House in 1773. Franklin often stayed at West Wycombe House, Sir Francis' home, a few hundred yards from the entrance to the caves. Sir Francis was one of his best friends.

The two met in the course of book of the Episcopal Church in America. The introduction states it is to shorten the service as a relief to old people in cold churches. Sometimes the 18th century mind is tough to fathom!

Before the present Sir Francis had electricity installed in the caves, Hell Fire Club seekers had to grope their way along passages lit by candles. The passages and Chambers bear their ancient names — the Robing Room, Catacombs,

Visit Castle in Spain

BARCELONA, SPAIN—The "castle which has never been conquered" is open again. Voices and footsteps echo in the corridors, tempting smells sneak out of the kitchen and visitors stroll through the grounds which once were filled with the din of clashing broadswords and battleaxes.

The distinguished castle of the Dukes of Cardona near Barcelona began a new life this February as a national park, part of the "living historical restoration" program carried out by the Spanish Ministry of Information and Tourism. The park is a network of hotels all over the country owned and maintained by the Ministry. Some are new buildings but many are ancient palaces, castle and convents which have been rescued from the ravages of time and weather, and reopened as completely modern tourist lodgings.

Cardona castle was begun in 289 A.D. by Ludovico Pio to help secure lands conquered from the Moors. It succeeded to Ramon Folch, nephew of the Emperor Charlemagne whose ancestors are entombed there. During following centuries, battle after battle was fought there but no intruder ever breached the castle's walls. According to tradition, the popular Saint Ramon Nonato died in the lovely chapel which during the 18th century was transformed into a jail.

A quarter century ago restoration of the castle was begun by a group of Catalans guided by the department of fine arts. Subsequently the Ministry took over the task and converted the castle into the current park with 65 rooms, various lounges and a dining room for 200. A Gothic court and Chapel, part of the original structure, have been converted into a museum.

Beach Parking the Key

ISLAND BEACH, N.J. (UPI) — Each weekend, thousands wait for hours to get on the beach at New Jersey's largest oceanfront park.

A controversial decision to close off 900 parking spaces is the reason.

Some officials contend it is strictly a matter of poor planning. Others maintain that eliminating the parking spaces for the summer was the only way to assure safe construction of a new beach pavilion.

What many of the beachgoers say is unprintable.

The would-be bathers travel from all over the metropolitan area to Island Beach State Park. Then they wait up to three hours to get into the park because the Department of Environmental Protection cut in half the number of cars having access to the park at any one time. The idea is to keep bathers from wandering near the construction area.

Leonard DiDonato, director of the state department of Building and Construction which is overseeing the project, claims there is no reason to keep the parking lot closed.

"I was shocked when I found down there recently and found the parking lot wasn't being used," said DiDonato. "There's absolutely no reason to put that parking lot out of commission."

The new $1.2 million pavilion, which will be four times the size of the former structure, and a nearby administration building were to be finished Aug. 28 but completion has been delayed at least a month because of construction problems.

An Environmental Protection official attempted to defend his department's arbitrary decision to close off half the 1,800 parking spaces. After discussing the subject, he decided he did not want his name used for publication.

The official concedes that the 10-mile-long park, one of New Jersey's three oceanfront parks, has been filled by 10 a.m. each weekend day this summer. He admits the reason is the questionable restriction on parking.

"Last winter, we anticipated that there was a good possibility that pavilion parking lot would be closed for the summer," said the DEP official. "But the pavilion has been planned for two years and it would be dangerous to let beachgoers park near the construction."

Frank Guidotti, assistant chief of parks, was more specific and willing to speak for direct attribution. He said the decision was made to keep the parking lot closed because there are no accessible facilities for people who use the beach adjacent to the construction.

"You have to keep people away from the construction site. In addition, it's quite a distance for older people to walk to the next pavilion where there are bathrooms and concessions," Guidotti said.

DiDonato disagrees. He said the contractor is responsible for securing the construction site. He estimated that at least 600 parking spaces could have been used in the parking lot which is now housing several trailers and building equipment.

"A lot of people drive a long way to get here so they are willing to wait to get into the park," says Eugene Marshall, supervisor of the park, who estimates the waiting time this summer is sometimes up to three hours.

"No matter what we do, we're going to get complaints. So we might as well get the job finished the right way," he added.

In addition to waiting in line to get into the park, beachgoers now face an increased admission cost because Gov. Brendan T. Byrne cut DEP's budget by $1 million several months after the pavilion contract was awarded.

At Island Beach, where there is now one pavilion in use and a small number of parking spaces scattered along the length of the parking lot, it now costs $5 per car. Last summer, the cost of entering the park was $1 a car and 25 cents for each passenger.

"The cost of entering the park has nothing to do with the construction," said the DEP spokesman.

Some 565,396 people used the park during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975. The park brought in $386,000 in revenues for that period.

Projected figures for the number of people using the beach park are not yet available, but the DEP spokesman concedes that the state anticipated that it would be "losing some money this year."

DiDonato said there are two building errors which are causing some of the delay in completion.

An 18-foot concrete beam was incorrectly poured and causes "some appearance problems." The construction company, Rocky Marciano Co. of Cliffside Park, may have to chip away a sagging section, DiDonato says.

In addition, metal plates on rooftop wooden tresses were positioned incorrectly by a Philadelphia firm.

But DiDonato says the construction errors are "normal" and his department is not overly concerned.

"It's unfortunate that we didn't get started on the construction six months earlier," says DiDonato. "We would have had the pavilion completed by April or May. But that's the way the ball bounces."

Small Change

A fruit stand near the Trevi Fountain in Rome tries to get around Italy's chronic small change shortage by raising prices to a uniform 1,000 lire ($1.20) a kilo (2.2 pounds). For some fruits this meant an increase of 30 or 40 cents. Romans just laughed and went elsewhere for their apples, peaches and pears.

It's Your Landscape

Modular Units Aid Terracing Projects

By GEORGE E. CREED

For centuries terraces and walks around houses have been laid down laboriously by brick or stone by stone. In modern times homeowners who have not been content with the uninspired appearance of plain concrete have made their pavements in this way.

Leveling each slab of stone or each single brick is not easy for an amateur and the results are not always satisfying. Such pavements are often marked by roughness and uneven joints.

Now there are modular units available that will make this work easier, quicker and more professional looking. These units come in a variety of patterns, only three of which are shown here. Concrete is used in the manufacture of these and the joints outlining the patterns are cast into each unit. Because this is a mechanical operation, jointing is much more uniform than it could be with individually laid bricks or stone slabs.

The top sketch illustrates a modular cluster measuring about two and one-half square feet in area. The design, composed of hexagons, is unusual because this shape has not heretofore been used to any great extent in pavements. Each of these clusters is arranged so that all others can interlock with it. This makes for a strong pavement without the need for mortar between clusters.

More conventional but nonetheless attractive is the design of the unit shown in the middle sketch. For centuries this pattern has been used in terrace and walk pavements composed of individual bricks. With the modular cluster you can lay a dozen bricks at one time.

A most unusual form of these modular units is the one illustrated in the bottom sketches. At the left is the unit as it looks when first laid in place, while at the right the sketch shows how it appears when the openings in the concrete grid are filled with soil and planted with grass. You could use units like these where you require a hard surface but want to eliminate the heat-reflecting properties of a large expanse of pavement.

These units are available in two tones of gray, terra-cotta, brown and buff.

Q. Are there different kinds of Christmas rose?

A. Basically, there are two distinct types: the Christmas rose which flowers in late winter and the Lenten rose that blooms in spring.

Q. Do ferns require a shady location?

A. Most ferns do best in either a shady or semi-shady spot.

During the retreat, The World Almanac notes, he was attacked by Americans under Generals Wooster, Silliman, and Arnold, and suffered 25 killed, 117 wounded, and 29 missing.

Indoor Gardening

Leaf Cuttings Easy Way to Propagate Plants

By Katherine B. Walker

Propagating plants from leaf cuttings or leaf petiole cuttings has been going on practically forever, I suppose, but the majority of indoor gardeners didn't employ the practice widely until African violets became so popular.

Then, because these plants start so willingly from leaves set in a small amount of water, or in moist soil or other rooting material, almost overnight everybody became an expert at producing one or more plants from single leaves. It wasn't long, of course, before amateur growers discovered that the "florist's gloxinia" (sinningia) could also be increased the same way, and that many other gesneriads would propagate readily from a leaf.

Commercial growers commonly use leaf cuttings as a means of increasing their stock of plants. The practice works with most peperomias, crassulas and many other succulents, with most of the rhizomatous begonias, including the Rex types, with cyperus and a long list of other plants, mostly fleshy leaved ones. It does not work, however, with variegated peperomias, nor with variegated sansevierias; new plants made from leaf cuttings of these plants are invariably all-green, instead of colorfully variegated like the parent plant.

Leaf cuttings employ only the blade of the leaf, or a section of it. Petiole-leaf cuttings involve a leaf with part (or all) of its stem attached. In either case, it is best to start with a mature but not old leaf; very young ones and very old ones are more apt to rot than to root. Many failures with rooting African violet leaves can be attributed to starting with an outer leaf that was removed in grooming the plant. Use a leaf from the middle row of leaves.

Lay the detached leaf on a damp surface of your rooting soil. Be sure the leaf is not buried in the surface. A pebble will hold it down, but don't place it directly over the spot where the leaf was attached because the new plant should develop there.

Quite often, a single leaf will give rise to several small plants. Opinion differs about how to handle these, with many growers preferring to remove all but the largest and strongest of the tiny plantlets; the main advantage is that the one remaining grows faster and often make a shapelier plant. However, I usually let all the little ones develop until they're large enough to be separated easily, with their root systems more or less intact.

Once in a while you may try rooting a leaf and have success as far as the actual rooting is concerned, but then nothing more happens. I have had this happen a few times, and it seems that these are known as "blind" cuttings which lack the special substance necessary for making top growth. If you have leaf cuttings that don't root within a few weeks, discard them

Breaking Contract Could Break Heart

If a person is incompetent at the time he signs a contract, then the contract is null and void. It's all a matter of proof. Our problem today concerns an 80-year-old man who sold land for a fraction of its value. His children don't like it. But the only way they can break the contract is to have their father declared incompetent.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Yesterday we were a wealthy family. Today my father's estate, divided among four children, wouldn't give us much. The family's main asset consists of 240 acres of land. My 80-year-old father bought it as a farm in 1936 for $12,000, or $50 an acre. Now it's worth about $5,000 an acre, or $1,200,000.

But yesterday my father sold it for $120,000, or $500 an acre. This is one-tenth of its worth. It happened this way.

Dad was plowing the field when a real estate salesman drove by and stopped to admire the farm. Boastfully, my dad told him he had paid $50 an acre for it, and it was now worth a lot more. In the course of reminiscing, my father volunteered that he wouldn't be surprised if the land was worth 10 times that much.

The salesman agreed. Quickly, he whipped out an agreement and within 10 minutes my dad had signed a contract to sell. When dad told us about this, we dashed off to our family lawyer. He examined the contract carefully and told us that it's made out properly and is binding.

Dad's only explanation for what he did is, I was confused. It's true that dad seems to be senile at times and does such things as not turning off the gas, or hiding money and forgetting where he hid it.

Is there anything we can do? — FOUR WORRIED CHILDREN.

I have known similar cases. Upsetting a binding real estate transaction requires strong action. If you can get a court to declare your father incompetent, then the contract will be null and void.

Before doing anything, I urge you and your brothers and sisters to search your souls carefully. If you win, you will hurt your father in the process. Here's what you would have to do.

First, your attorney would petition the court to have your dad declared incompetent. Each of the children would go into court and testify under oath as to the advancing senility of your father. The family physician, likewise, would be asked to testify.

If the court should declare him incompetent, then very likely one or more of the children would be appointed his guardian. He could no longer handle his own affairs.

Declaring your father incompetent would preserve your inheritance, but would probably break the heart of the person who gave you life and who has spent his life for you. So please act prudently. A father's sanity and right to his life is a lot more important than money.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: A building supply company wants me to pay $50 for a medicine chest that broke. They claim I'm responsible.

I needed a medicine cabinet and stopped at our local lumber yard. There on the table was one that seemed attractive. I picked it up to examine it, it fell from my hand and crashed on the concrete floor.

The reason it slipped from my hand was that someone had left a film of oil on it. The lumber yard dismissed it all by pointing to a large sign on the wall which read, "If you pick up anything and it breaks, then you bought it."

What can I do, if anything? — AM I GUILTY?

The sign posted by the owner declaring that customers are responsible for all damage has little value. The owner cannot make his own rules or his own laws. If the customer was not negligent, he does not have to pay, no matter what the sign says.

From the facts given, it seems that our correspondent was not negligent. The medicine cabinet slipped from his hand because of the film of oil. The owner, not the customer, was negligent in allowing this condition to exist.

However, the owner can try to collect. He must go to court. He cannot do it by simply posting a sign.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am about to paint our apartment, but am concerned about the paint odor clinging. My wife is very susceptible to odors, and is even a little allergic. Her eyes water and she coughs a good deal.

Since we can't afford to take a little vacation after the painting is done, in order to allow the paint odor to subside, is there any way of taking care of this problem? — LOVE MY WIFE.

After the painting is finished, cut a large raw onion in half and place it in a pan of water. If you put the pan in the room where you have painted, the onion will absorb all the odor overnight.

Try this. You'll be surprised at the results — and there won't even be a semblance of onion odor, either.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My wife is annoyed because our garage faces the front of the house, and therefore the oil spot which came from under our automobile is visible to anyone passing by.

I've tried to scrub it away with various cleaners, but with no luck. Do you know of anything that will do the trick? — HAVE A FUSSY WIFE.

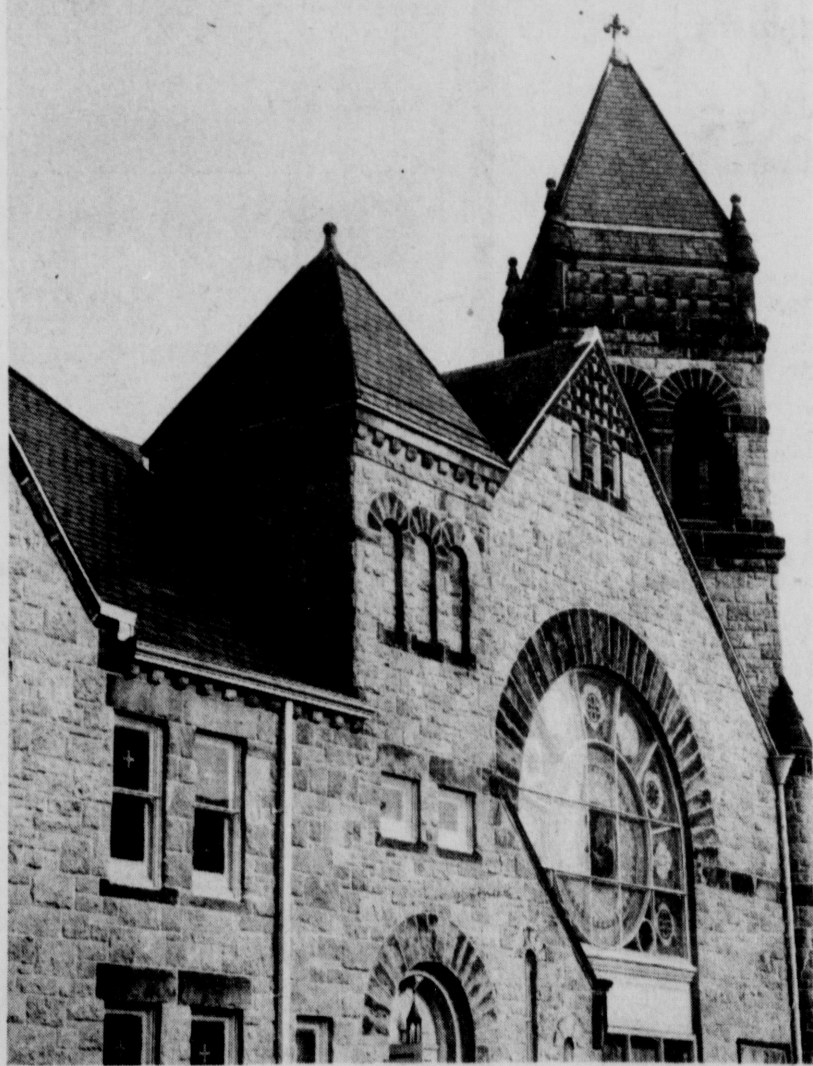

The most simple way I know to clean up the oil spot from your garage floor is to sprinkle dry portland cement on it. Build up about a quarter inch layer of the cement, or a little more. Let it stand for several days. Then sweep it up, and the spot should be gone.

After you've cleaned it up, put a pan under your automobile to catch the drippings. In that way, the stain will not reoccur.

Thanks to you it works...

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, AUGUST 8

Your birthday today: Your year takes on dramatic undertones as each consecutive scene unfolds. You have three distinct phases to work out, as though you are rehearsing an unfamiliar way of life yet to come. Basic attitudes must be reshaped. Pay attention to your spiritual needs. If they are to last, relationships must be redeveloped to fit changing conditions. Today's natives are individualistic.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Take care not to stir up arguments. Nothing goes quite as expected, but if it isn't your fault, you needn't be upset. Be sympathetic to others.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Concentrate on the present and your immediate environment. Relationships encounter passing moments of stress. Accept others as they are.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Conditions become unsettled this afternoon, so don't go far afield. If you work, let decisions wait. Use your energy on hobbies.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be prudent when expressing your opinions and when spending. Various temperaments bump into each other today.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Little is gained by rearranging things. An impulsive response to a poor joke sets off more repercussions. Just see the point and smile.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make your usual rounds, then take it easy today. If somebody is trying to find out something, don't rise to his bait.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): After a good beginning, your day dwindles into one of absurd schemes, then ends on a serious note. Meditate for inspiration.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Friends seem capricious because they see you in a light you don't intend. Try for a fair exchange. Be truthful with loved ones.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are doing all that is reasonable to expect. Use common sense and don't go overboard with your requests. Let things work themselves out.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Leave your own business dealings aside. Support other people's plans and ideas despite your reservations about their practicality.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Things slow down as the day progresses. Tend to definite commitments. One answer only triggers several more questions, so don't try to satisfy your curiosity.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Debates over controversial subjects generate confusion and misunderstanding. Ignore discrepancies.

MONDAY, AUGUST 9

Your birthday today: Begins a busy year of rich experience, potential prosperity beyond what general conditions promise. Most ventures go so well you're tempted to take progress for granted and try unwarranted shortcuts. The future requires stern self-discipline now. Relationships provide supportive context for testing any form of expression. Today's natives are energetic organizers, able to carry on two or more active lines at once.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Never mind that it's a heavy-going Monday. Delays aren't really serious, but leave a loophole for unseen factors to come into action.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Home and career interests conflict. You can't please anybody. Do what you must and hope to ease repercussions later. Make lump-sum settlements.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Don't rush out in search of business contacts. Stay put, get through by phone and correspondence. Refuse to answer questions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Pursue essential routine. If you need help, keep requests small and among only those who know the work. Restrict trading to one-time-only deals.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The ordinary course of events is tough enough to achieve now without trying for anything unusual. Investigative efforts turn up bizarre information.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Base what you decide on experience and reason. Don't force issues. Let others explain what they want and why they are obstructing your way.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Long-term trends reach critical importance, so that decisions must be definite. Change as little as possible. Promise no more than you can deliver.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Current commitments are lasting in impact. Consider them carefully and make use of professional advice. Don't fuss about upset routines.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You accomplish more than first seems likely if you take one thing at a time. Be ready to revise details on short notice. Don't pressure people.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Concentrate on tightening up your system and finding more effective ways to get work done. If you discuss policy, stick to broad issues.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Influential people favor only those who agree with them. Once you see what is to be done, take firm initiative, and don't wait for outside prompting.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Unresolved problems remain and are less understood by day's end, but you make good progress in knowing more of your inner resources.

Women in Uniform Subject to Rape

DARMSTADT, West Germany (UPI)—A young woman soldier is much more likely to be raped than her civilian sister, according to an Army psychologist.

"Women soldiers are particularly vulnerable by virtue of the fact that they are traveling around, away from home, perhaps feeling a little homesick, and maybe a little more prone to respond to strangers in a more friendly way," said U.S. Army Capt. James Futterer, a 31-year-old clinical psychologist.

Futterer, who is assigned to the 5th General Hospital in Bad Cannstatt where he counsels women on how to avoid or deal with rape, says young women soldiers have a 75 per cent greater chance than other women of being violated sexually.

Furthermore, the number of rapes reported within the U.S. Army community in Europe has risen by 47 per cent during the last two years. (The psychologist concedes this figure may be a result of better reporting plus an overall increase in the number of rapes.)

Futterer, who is from Joliet, Ill. and has a doctorate in clinical psychology from Loyola University of Chicago, conducts rape prevention seminars for women soldiers and military dependents.

"In 1973, there were 126 cases of reported rape in the U.S. Army in Europe," Futterer said in an interview. "In 1974, there were 147 and in 1975 there were 184 reported cases."

This is an increase of about 47 per cent in two years.

Most American military women who report being raped in Europe have been assaulted by other Americans.

"Many white women have a fantasy that they will be raped by a large black man," Futterer said. "This is a myth. Ninety per cent of the rapists are of the same race as their victims."

But although 72 per cent of the men assigned to the U.S.

The Late, Late Show

In our town, "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" comes on somewhere between The Star-Spangled Banner and man's tribute to flight. Because of the nature of the material, they wanted to make sure all the parents were in bed and the kids glued to the TV set.

As I told the children the other morning, "I'm supposed to be using parental discretion, but I'm too dragged to discret."

"It's all right, Mom," they said. "If there was anything for you to make a decision on, we'd awaken you."

"You say it's just a story of a simple, average family from Fernwood, Ohio?"

"Right," they smiled. "You're from Ohio, aren't you, Mom?"

"Yes, Dayton. What bothers me is why they put it on so late."

"Who knows? There's this sweet grandfather who wears a raincoat, Mary's husband, who's your ordinary blue-collar worker, and a young girl seeking conversion."

"Conversion to what?" I asked suspiciously.

"One of your top three faiths."

"It sounds like 'The Waltons,'" I said. "Why does the grandfather wear a raincoat?"

"Grandad has a raincoat, doesn't he?" they grinned.

"Yes, of course. What does Mary do all day?"

"She's just your average stay-at-home housewife, like you. With the puffed sleeves and the dustpuff."

"It is. Some nights we can hardly keep awake."

"Then why do you?"

"We're trying to get a better understanding of your life, Mom. We never realized before what it was like to stay at home and just be a normal, average housewife."

"It has its moments."

I thought I saw them nudge one another and giggle.

"Tell me," I said, "do they ever get into the good work we housewives do, like visiting the sick in the hospital?"

"Oh yeah," said our youngest, his eyes glistening.

BEFORE LINDBERGH TOOK OFF, THE NC-4 HAD LANDED.

Everybody knows about Lindbergh. "The Spirit of St. Louis," and crossing the Atlantic. Only a few know about the NC-4, the Navy seaplane that successfully flew the Atlantic, Newfoundland to the Azores, eight years before Lindbergh.

Great achievements in aviation have long been a proud part of the Navy tradition. And they still are today. That's why young people who dream of flying should know about the opportunities to win their wings in the new Navy.

Today's Navy trains qualified college graduates to be the kinds of pilots or flight officers who can honestly say of themselves, "I am one of the best flyers in the world."

Confident, because Navy flying is thorough and rigorous. Because Navy flyers handle some of the most advanced aircraft in the skies.

There are several excellent Navy aviation programs available. We would like to send more information about them to someone you know. Someone who is interested in following the same spirit that Lindbergh followed across the Atlantic.

Children's Eye Problems

The traditional Snellen eye test, used for generations in this country, measures just one of the many facets of good vision; the ability to read alphabetic letters at a distance of feet.

Many children (and some adults) with poor vision are wrongly labeled lazy or dull and sometimes emotionally disturbed by teachers and/or parents who are not aware that a scoring 20/20 on an eye test does not always mean perfect vision.

A child may have above average intelligence and score 20/20, yet a seeing problem may be causing him to fall behind in his studies, to be inattentive in class, to be poor in sports or to disturb other students.

Just suppose the scoring test was taken at a distance of 14 to 20 inches instead of feet? What if the letters were off to one side of the usual visual field rather than in the middle? What if the letters (or any other object) were in motion and not standing still? Do right and left eyes work together harmoniously? How well does a child or adult judge depth and distance?

According to the Better Vision Institute, at least 20 per cent of children entering school for the first time, already have full-fledged visual difficulties.

At least 50 per cent of these problems could easily be spotted by parents and teachers and certainly by the general practitioner, before they show up as patterns of psychological maladjustment or inferior scholastic performance. Too many of today's youngsters have a difficult struggle into upper grades before their visual problems are eventually recognized. Unfortunately, a large number never do receive adequate visual diagnosis and treatment.

Columbia University freshmen, in a recent series of eye tests over a four-year period, revealed that more than 30 per cent of entering students had visual difficulties which could jeopardize their success scholastically.

Some of them seemed to see well enough to get along normally, but at a cost of considerable extra mental effort, continuous eyestrain, fatigue, general irritability and restlessness.

A high percentage of American children at the bottom of their class tend to suffer from some visual defect. The percentage tends to be smaller for those with higher scholastic achievement, but many children who are supposedly doing quite well, would be achieving at much higher levels if their vision were better coordinated.

A visually handicapped youngster or adult rarely complains that they do not see well. They don't know that their vision is abnormal. They think that everybody sees the way they do.

According to the Better Vision Institute, here are some of the symptoms to look for:

crossed eyes, blinking, red-den eyes, darkness under eyes, watery eyes, periodic blurred vision, nausea, dizziness, headaches, burning or itching of the eyes, frequent styes, stiffening of the body or turning the head backward or forward when looking at distant objects, a tendency to touch or rub the eyes, a dislike for reading, a tendency to avoid close work, dislike for indoor games, inability to concentrate attention for more than short periods, excessive day dreaming, looking off into space, tilting of or turning of the head, complaints of neck discomfort, frowning while reading or writing, tendency to keep one eye closed, loss of place when reading, reading with face close to page, moving the head while reading, poor eye-to-hand coordination in sports and physical activities, fatigue, nervousness, irritability or restlessness following tasks which involve use of eyes, trouble remembering what is read, confusion when reading and using a finger to lead the eyes when reading.

An estimated 15 million children and million of American adults need some kind of visual help. It is tragic that the majority will never receive it.

Children who cannot focus both eyes as a team are handicapped throughout their entire lives because they will never get a true indepth picture of the world. Those who have uncorrected "tunnel vision" may never learn to read rapidly enough to succeed in school.

Pigs on Treadmill Aid Heart Research

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Pigs are run 25 miles a week on a treadmill to help doctors better prescribe how much jogging is safe for humans.

Dr. Colin Bloor, acting chairman of the Department of Pathology at the University of California, San Diego, said pigs are ideal to use in cardiovascular research because their cardiovascular systems are so similar to man's.

Some of the laboratory animals are equipped to display symptoms of coronary artery disease in an effort to determine whether human heart patients would benefit from a regular jogging program, and if so, how much jogging.

Radioactive particles lodged in the coronary vessels graphically reveal the exercise impact on the heart. Autopsies conducted after the pigs are through with the experiment give insight into changes in the heart, skeletal muscle, and liver.

Dogs once were the basic animal for cardiovascular research, according to Bloor, but it was found pigs were better because they reacted more like humans in one respect.

They are basically lazy. They had to be coaxed a lot put in their miles on the treadmill.

Dogs were too eager to run. Bloor said "the coronary arteries are anatomically similar and the blood flow distribution is similar," in humans and in pigs.

Before the pigs enter the university lab they're sent to a farm for three months of training.

After the first two weeks the non-runners are dropped from the experiment. During their farm-training period the pigs run on a merry-go-round contraption, to get them accustomed to running in place.

Bloor observes that some of the pigs quickly get wise to the fact that if they stand near the center of the merry-go-round they don't have to run as much.

Once brought to the laboratory, the pigs are run six miles a day on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and 3½ miles on Tuesday and Thursday. Readings similar to an electrocardiogram are taken before and after the three or four months the animal is in the running program.

Bloor said one of the objectives of the five-year research project, financed by the National Institutes of Health, "is to determine how much disease can exist in a heart's blood vessels before it impedes the flow."

The research also may provide guidelines for exercise limits based upon certain heart conditions, and determine whether the administering of drugs can increase the capacity of the heart.

One of the early findings has been that blood flow through the heart doesn't change, even to the point of exhaustion, and no evidence has been found that an animal collapses because its heart is failing. Rather, it is the skeletal muscles that are failing.

Bloor said one example of this in humans is the fact that a person will likely suffer muscle cramps in some part of his body well before his heart has been taxed to the maximum in strenuous physical exercise.

It will be another three or four years, however, before the researchers can come up with some specific conclusions. Then it may be possible to give a person a prescribed limit of exercise based upon a physical examination. Bloor said no such firm guidelines presently are available.

Meanwhile, Bloor and his associates will keep leading the UCSD pigs onto the treadmill.

And, as Bloor says, "They squeal when they're running, and they squeal when they're not, so I have no idea what their squeals mean."

Eucharistic Congress

The 41st International Eucharistic Congress concludes its week of meetings in Philadelphia today. Catholics from around the world have attended the events, workshops and worship renewal. Jan Cardinal Willebrands, Archbishop of Utrecht delivered the homily at the Ecumenical Service, (top). The Charismatic Sect of the Catholic Church raise their arms during a High Mass at Veterans Stadium, (center). At that Mass, Leon Cardinal Suenens, Archbishop of Brussels, joined in the procession (above.)

Vacation Church Schools Get Underway

NEW PALTZ—Vacation Bible School for the community of New Paltz will be held August 16 through 20 at the Church of the Nazarene, 170 Rte. 32 North in New Paltz. Daily sessions will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will conclude at 1:45 p.m.

Bible stories and music will be related to the school's theme — "Jesus Now." The program each day will consist of Bible stories, music crafts and recreation. There will be classes for each age group from 4 to 12.

All children from the community are invited to attend and should bring a sandwich lunch; juice and cookies will be provided. There is no registration fee.

Sunday, August 22 at 10 a.m. will mark the closing program. At this session children will demonstrate what they have learned at the school. There will also be a display of craft items. Parents and friends are encouraged to come and view the children's presentation.

For more information or registration, Mrs. Eldeva Tofte, director of the Vacation Bible School, may be contacted.

PORT EWEN—The Reformed Church of Port Ewen's 1976 Vacation Church School will be held from August 23 through 27, from 9:15 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Reformed Church. The school will be held in conjunction with the Port Ewen United Methodist Church.

Children from 3 years of age through sixth grade are invited to join in Bible learning, singing, creative arts, and recreation.

Registration will be held on Friday, August 20 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Reformed Church.

The theme is "God Made Me!"

Area Church News

Named to Post At Area Center

POUGHKEEPSIE—Mary Lou C. Heissenbittel of 9-A Orchard Park, a leader in Poughkeepsie, youth, religious and mental health activities, was elected chairman of the sponsoring committee of the Poughkeepsie Counseling Center.

Officials of the Foundation for Religion and Mental Health of Briarcliff Manor said that Mrs. Heissenbittel is the first woman to head any of the sponsoring committees the foundation administers in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Mrs. Heissenbittel, wife of Henry Heissenbittel, commissioner of planning for Dutchess County, succeeds the Rev. Richard C. Donnelly of Zion Episcopal Church in Wappingers Falls who served two terms as chairman.

For the last three years Mrs. Heissenbittel served on the sponsoring committee as the lay representative of the New Hackensack Reformed Church in Poughkeepsie. During that time, she said, she became aware of the center as a valuable mental health resource in the community, to those individuals and agencies who make referrals, and to people who apply on their own initiative for help in improving their lives.

Mrs. Heissenbittel studied at Keuka College and graduated from Wagner College on Staten Island with a degree in sociology and psychology.

Her service as a group worker at Lincoln Center in Poughkeepsie and Willowbrook State School on Staten Island was followed by work as a case aide at the Sheltering Arm Children's Service in New York while she attended the New York School of Social Work at Columbia University.

Mrs. Heissenbittel is active in the League of Women Voters of Greater Poughkeepsie, in the Dutchess County Girl Scout Council, and is a member of the board of Christian education of the New Hackensack Reformed Church.

American Bible Presentation

President Ford receives from Edmund Wagner, president of the American Bible Society, a special New Testament symbolic of the two billion Scriptures that the Bible society has distributed since its founding in 1816. Also participating in the presentation are Claiborne Pell (r), U.S. Senator from Rhode Island, and Dr. James Nettinga (l), society's executive secretary for information.

Expands Service

PEEKSKILL—Eugene M. Ciccone and Dorothy C. Hill will join the faculty of Saint Mary's School in September, Reverend William S. Gannon, headmaster, announced recently.

Ciccone will become head of the science department. He comes from Manhattan College where he has been working on his M.S. degree in biology, and instructing biology and cellular physiology. Prior to that, he was a graduate teaching fellow at New York University. In addition to his responsibilities in the science department, Ciccone will direct a chorus at the school.

Miss Hill will teach Spanish in the school's foreign language department. She received her B.A. degree from Carson-Newman College, majoring in Spanish, and did graduate work at the University of Tennessee and Middlebury College.

The school is also planning an advanced biology course this year which will include an environmental study of Mount Saint Gabriel and the Hudson River Valley," Father Gannon announced.

Schedules Set

RED HOOK—Saint Christopher's School in Red Hook will begin session September 8.

The school, which now admits students grades one through eight, opened its doors in 1963 to accommodate the first four grades. A class was added each following year until 1967 when the school provided classes for a full Grammar School course. Since that time more than 250 students have been graduated.

St. Christopher's School admits children from Red Hook, Rhinebeck, Tivoli and Pine Plains and provides them with a wellrounded Christian education. The faculty of the school works with the children on an individual basis, according to each child's level of learning and ability.

Sister Margaret Patricia, principal, announced that the school plans to continue encouraging the children to participate in specialized activities such as the Science Fair, Library Week, and other activities which promote learning. A program of psychological services will again be provided.

Local Girl Explores Our World Underwater

KINGSTON—Robin MacFadden of Kingston, recent cum laude graduate of Occidental College, was the sole recipient of an award offered by the "Our World Underwater" Association. This award is enabling her to participate in a National Geological Survey Expedition at Fort Jefferson, Dry Tortugas Island, for two weeks.

The award, presented annually, enables one young man or woman to learn diving and to participate in diving-related scientific expeditions under the tutelage of leaders in the various underwater disciplines.

The scholarship began for Miss MacFadden immediately after her June graduation with an intensified two-week divers' certification course at the University of Michigan. After completing the course she went to St. Croix, Virgin Islands for ten days of diving. After Miss MacFadden finishes with the National Geological Survey Expedition she will participate in a two-week oceanographical survey and pollution cruise at Wollops Island, Va. The balance of this year will include programs at UCLA, Brooks Institute, Commercial Fisheries, Commercial Diving Center, and Consolidated Film Industries.

In 1977 her award will sponsor studies at Bethesda Naval Base where Dr. Arthur Bachrach's hyperbaric oxygen studies are taking place, the University of North Dakota, Rice University and a study of hyperbaric medicine at Brooks Air Force Base.

Other programs may include an expedition with Dr. Sylvia Earle and another with Dr. Joseph MacInnis.

At the conclusion of Miss MacFadden's year-long exposure to marine studies, she will continue her studies for a doctorate in marine biology.

While at Occidental College, Miss MacFadden was active in sports and ballet. She was captain of the ski team for two years and placed second in women's downhill for the Southern California conference. In the summer of 1975 she spent eight weeks in Nigeria on a scholarship with the "Crossroads Africa" program.

Miss MacFadden is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E.F. MacFadden of 98 Fair St., Kingston and Patricia K. MacFadden of Fort Lee, N.J.

Wagon Train Adventure

KINGSTON—Linda Phillips of Kingston was chosen to be part of a group of 185 Girl Scouts who attempted to capture the feeling of pioneer life by traveling in a wagon train for 100 miles from Jamestown to Fort Totten, N.D.

The "Move 'Em Out" wagon train, a Girl Scout National Wider Opportunity sponsored by the Pine to Prairie Girl Scout Council, traveled from July 15 through 27.

The girls crossed the rolling prairies of North Dakota in Conestoga wagons, on horseback and on foot. They also took part in a variety of "pioneer" activities including quilting, embroidery, weaving, candlemaking, soapmaking, and learned how to make homemade ice cream. Participants also had the chance to try their hand at milking cows and shearing sheep.

Guest lecturers spoke on North Dakota history and geography, and Indian lore and culture, and a group of old-time fiddlers performed, enabling the girls to learn ethnic folk dancing. The "trail boss" gave the girls instruction in the psychology of horsemanship and wagon construction and safety.

The intent was to make the trail ride as authentic as possible, and many of the hardships which were encountered by pioneer wagon trains were also evident in the "Move 'Em Out" wagon train. Water supplies were short, so bathing was limited, except when the wagon train passed lakes suitable for swimming. All cooking was done over campfires and at least one meal included bread made on the trail.

The final highlight of the ride was the wagon train's participation in the Fort Totten parade, and the opportunity for the girls to attend the Pow Wow, international dance competition, and the Fort Totten Rodeo.

Miss Phillips is the daughter of Mrs. Edmond Phillips, Wilbur Avenue in Kingston. She is a Cadette Girl Scout with Troop 132 of the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts.

Hot Rocks

Beach Boys Back

By Alan Forray

Since the announced release of their album, 15 Big Ones (so named for the 15 cuts it contains, and its coincidence to the group's 15th anniversary), the Beach Boys have received more attention from the media than any pop music act in recent years. Everytime I turn around there's another Beach Boys article in the newspaper (this column is a good example) and the music trade journals are literally jammed with Beach Boys pieces (a recent issue of Billboard Magazine contained a 30-page promo for the group). AM radio is playing the Beach Boys new single, Rock And Roll Music, twice an hour, while FM radio is playing everything else they've ever recorded; and last Thursday evening, August 5, NBC ran a one hour prime-time television special devoted entirely to the Beach Boys, and featuring some unusually timely coverage of their current nationwide tour.

But why all the fuss? What's the big deal about the Beach Boys?

The answer lies in the rise and fall and resurrection of Beach Boys leader, Brian Wilson — legendary singer, songwriter, producer, and sometimes madman. It is the continuing drama of Brian Wilson, his ups, his downs, and now his return to the Beach Boys after a bizarre sabbatical of almost a decade, that is stirring up all the commotion. And why not? How often does a story like this come along.

The scenario is as follows. 1961 — Brian Wilson organizes the Beach Boys with his brothers, a cousin and a family friend. 1962 — the Beach Boys have their first hit single, Surf-in' Safari. 1963 through 1967 — the Beach Boys release 24 consecutive hit singles and 12 hit albums, selling over 75 million records in all. 1967 — Brian Wilson slips out, breaks down, and moves into a tent in his living room (the alleged reasons for this still remain a matter for speculation, and include everything from drugs to the Beatles). 1968 through 1975 — the Beach Boys release nine singles, but can't get a hit; Capitol Records terminates their contract and the group is picked up by Warner/Reprise who proceed to lose a bundle.

Spring 1976 — Brian Wilson comes out of his tent and returns to the studio (again, the reasons are not clear). Summer 1976 — the Beach Boys are America's Bicentennial rock group, commanding the charts with their new recordings (both the single and the album are in the top 10); making pop music history with re-entries on the charts of five previously released albums, and selling out concert halls from surf to shining surf.

It's as simple as that folks; just another case of abracadabra art. Brian Wilson is sheer musical magic. There's no way to understand the process of his wizardry, but the results are clear. Brian and the Beach Boys are back on top and they're about to do to the kids of the '70's just what they did to those of the '60's. Songs of cars and school and surfing and young love; that's what the fuss is all about, and I love it.

As the man says, "just give me some of that rock and roll music..."

Record Cues

SINGLES

YOU SHOULD BE DANCING — Bee Gees: I've got to admit, I like this record more and more each day. A solid disco rocker, this is one of the few songs on the charts that can threaten Elton John & Kiki Dee, still at No. 1 with DON'T GO BREAKING MY HEART.

ANOTHER RAINY DAY IN NEW YORK — Chicago: This record is in the top 5 on the Easy Listening charts, the LP (Chicago X) is among the top 10 albums, yet on the pop surveys "Rainy Day" is stalled in the 30's. Expect Chicago to quickly release another single from the album; this one's hurting.

A FIFTH OF BEETHOVEN — Walter Murphy and the Big Apple Band: Beethoven's Fifth Symphony Disco. After Star Spangled Disco, Hava Nagila Disco and O Solo Mio Disco, nothing surprises me. In this coming election year, look forward to Hail to the Chief Disco.

ODE TO BILLY JOE — Bobby Gentry: Classic Americana. There are two versions of this now on the charts. Nine years since its original release, Billy Joe is being well received after the success of the book and in anticipation of the movie soon to be released.

JUST BREAKING

THAT'LL BE THE DAY — Linda Rondstadt: Not yet on the charts, this remake of the Buddy Holly classic, is an absolute blockbuster. Should enter the surveys soon in a very strong position and proceed directly to the top 10.

LP's

HAPPINESS IS BEING WITH THE SPINNERS — The Spinners: Shooting up the charts, this is a powerful R&B selection from America's foremost proponents of this musical form. Great group; fine album.

WEDDING ALBUM — Leon & Mary Russell: Had this album been called Leon Russell and Mary McCreary, it would have been a smash. But America can't stand self-indulgent sentimentality and has turned off to the concept of this LP. Great music from two outstanding artists.

OLD LOVES DIE HARD — Triumvirat: Superb electronic keyboard work, heavy synthesizers in the tradition of Emerson, Lake and Palmer. Some of the best new music in weeks, this album will be well appreciated by jazz, rock and progressive music freaks.

WIRED — Jeff Beck: Beck is certainly one of the five greatest guitarists in the world. Powered by Beck's current tour with the Jefferson Starship, this brilliant album produced by George Martin (the Beatles) is approaching the top 10.

JUST BREAKING

BEST OF B.T.O. — Beachman-Turner Overdrive: Subtitled "So Far", this is an outstanding package from a group that still has much to offer. Includes TAKIN' CARE OF BUSINESS, YOU AIN'T SEEN NOTHING YET, LET IT RIDE and six others. An excellent album from Canada's finest rock and rollers.

INTERNATIONAL NOTES

Thailand: Dolenz, Jones, Boyce and Hart (the Monkees) gained the distinction of being the first rock group to ever play this country when they performed in Bangkok last weekend.

QUICKIE QUIZ

What is the largest selling Beach Boys single of all time? Answer: GOOD VIBRATIONS

As the Black Oak Grows

By LEI

Years ago, back in the Old Gold Days, there used to be a song that went, "Jim Dandy to the res—cue!" It could be revived today as the theme song for the little town of Oakland, Arkansas, which is the rather bemused hometown of the group, Black Oak Arkansas.

In the last few years, Jim Dandy Mangrum and his Black Oak Arkansas group have done a great deal for their grudging hometown. For one thing, they saved the town from the distinction of having the last one-room schoolhouse in use in the United States. The group contributed the money, the townspeople contributed the labor, and Oakland now has an attractive, modern school. Shortly thereafter, Black Oak Arkansas did a series of benefits and obtained needed medical facilities for the town.

For Oakland, the Black Oak Arkansas group has been a mixed blessing. Let's face it — every musical phenomenon came from somewhere. Elvis put Memphis on the map and hundreds of screaming girls tie traffic in knots for weeks. The Beatles came from Liverpool, and the Liverpool post office still can't figure out what to do with fifty tons of fan mail. Yes, and there are still tourists who go to Woodstock expecting to find Bob Dylan and Maria Muldaur.

Well, Black Oak Arkansas came from Oakland, Arkansas, which to listen to some of the town's 280 residents isn't so bad, but they keep coming back. In fact, by now, Jim Dandy and his band just may own the town. The group helped to build the post office, for instance, and if they have some spare time, they still go in and sort mail. Probably, they find that most of it is addressed to them, or to the other members of their community — it's really grown too big to call it a commune any longer. As one member of the commune, sexy songstress Ruby Starr estimates, about 80 of those 280 people are members of Jim Dandy's clan. Many bands on the rock scene today not only live far apart, but can't stand to be with each other unless they're performing. Fortunately, the members of Black Oak Arkansas were friends back in the good old days, and they still groove on each other's company.

Actually the "good old days" were pretty bad. Jim Dandy Mangrum and his friends were the first long-haired, funny-dressing, pot-smoking, no-good, lazy hippies that Oakland had ever produced, and the group quickly distinguished itself — and not by its music, or its community-minded ventures, either. Fortunately, after some initial run-ins with the law, the group turned its attention to music — according to one legend, starting on stolen equipment.

You'd think that after all of their donations to the community, Black Oak Arkansas would be the heroes of the state, but such isn't actually the case — a group of religious leaders, for instance tried to block the group from doing a show at the Arkansas State Fair by pleading that they were promoting "drugs, sex, and revolution. That must have sounded like a good combination, because the show went on as scheduled.

Actually, there isn't as much contradiction as there might seem to be between the raunchy rebels of the stage, and the charitable young businessmen investing in their Arkansas land, and contributing public buildings to the townspeople. In the first place the members of Black Oak have always been into change and development, although not always on a constructive level. That is changing with maturity. They are also very good at public relations, and what could be better publicity than a group of renegade rockers coming home and donating their fortunes to helping their fellow townspeople?

Black Oak and their fans, friends, groupies, and good old boys are now living the good life in a refurbished former resort called Heaven On Earth. They are reconstructing a group of cabins known as "The Lodge" for tourist housing, and have invested in 2000 acres of Arkansas forest land. At that rate, they may decide to buy the State Capital next.

It certainly beats having the tightest pants in show business as a way to get publicity. And, as Jim Dandy said in an interview, it all relates to the same trip, the right of the individual to enjoy life. That sort of reminds us of something we were reading the other day. It was called the Declaration of Independence.

UCCC Scholarships Are Awarded

STONE RIDGE—A number of Ulster County Community College students were awarded scholarships recently.

Seven scholarships were awarded to biology students. The recipients included Elizabeth A. Ciccio of Highland (Highland-New Paltz Rotary Club scholarship); Camille D'Aprile of Hurley (Kingston Lions Club scholarship); Marie A. Forlini of Stone Ridge (UCCC faculty association scholarship); Maura E. Kates of Kerhonkson (Ellenville National Bank scholarship); Eileen Mullarkey of Tillson (Kingston Rotary Club scholarship and UCCC scholarship); John L. Panaccione of Kerhonkson (Shrade Cutlery scholarship); and Celeste Dawn Valle of Kingston (Mrs. Lloyd R. LeFever scholarship).

The Rotary Club of Kingston awarded scholarships to six additional UCCC students. They include: Jeffrey Anderson, Joyce Dillon, Carole Arguelec, Alison DelRio, David Lawrence, and Ronald Zimmerman, all of Kingston.

Nine UCCC nursing students received scholarships to continue their education. They include: Barbara J.

Burns of Highland (Kingston Travel Center and Mrs. Lorraine C. Krasinski scholarships); Carol N. Dexheimer of Neversink (Carolyn Ann McFadden Smith scholarship); Beverly Lynn DiMele of Rosendale (Dr. Jacob R. Moss Memorial Fund for Nursing scholarship); Julieta Frances Godsey of Krumville (Women's Auxiliary to the Medical Society of Ulster County award and the Kingston Trust Co. scholarship).

Four other recipients were awarded scholarships provided by Mrs. Bessie G. Johnston of Phoenicia. They included Norelle Joy Lutke of Kingston; Kathy Marie Perkins of New Paltz; Linda Sasso of Glasco; and Deborah Anne Spivack of Phoenicia.

All of these scholarship recipients will be returning to UCCC in the fall to continue their education.

Linda M. Munday of New Paltz received a Grace E. Van Benschoten scholarship; she will be transferring to Pace University at Westchester in the fall.

These students were selected for the awards by the scholarship committee at the college, composed of administrators and faculty.

Swapping Jobs

A Kingston Junior High School teacher is looking forward to swapping jobs and homes with an Englishwoman for the coming year

Emil F. Zullo at his 'King Henry' table.

Social studies teacher Emil F. Zullo and his family will soon take part in an unusual exchange, an exercise in trust, that already has ripples of curiosity running through communities on both sides of the Atlantic.

It will all happen in about a fortnight, as Zullo's counterpart, British school teacher Jennifer Jarvis, might say. She and Zullo will exchange jobs for a year. The two families will exchange homes, communities and cultures.

As intimate and personal as all this might seem, the two families will see each other face-to-face only for a few hours when they exchange house keys in Washington.

This long-distance "trust factor" is an important goal of the teacher exchange program, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) with Great Britain and other countries around the world.

Applicants are screened carefully, and only 100 families in 100,000 applying are accepted.

"We are exchanging things that we feel very dearly about," says Zullo, who has taught for the past 10 years at Myron J. Michael Junior High School in Kingston and who will be entrusting five classes of ninth graders to Ms. Jarvis.

By the same token, Ms. Jarvis will be putting in his care the community studies and integrated studies classes she teaches at the Aylward School in Edmonton, a section of the Enfield burrough of London.

In her community studies course, Ms. Jarvis often takes her students out of the classroom for first-hand experience with all sectors of British life — young and old, rich and poor, healthy and handicapped.

For Zullo, it will be "an unbelievable learning experience" he can share first with his British students, then with his American ones.

A student learns a great deal from watching his teacher learn, Zullo says.

"If I'm excited in front of the class about what I'm doing, excited about the human process of learning, then I can't help but believe my students are learning from my example. I think some of the spark of education comes from that."

One uniquely American skill Zullo will take to his British students is baseball, a sport he captained at Fordham for two of his four varsity years as a standout third baseman.

In fact, Zullo turned down a $50,000 bonus contract with the New York Mets in order to continue his college education and later become a teacher.

Ms. Jarvis will bring at least two unusual gifts to Zullo's students. Their social studies concentrate on Afro-Asian cultures, and she has lived several years in Southeast Asia. She also will bring a British viewpoint to America's bicentennial consciousness.

"I looked everywhere for British histories of the American Revolution — how they perceived it — and I didn't find very much," Zullo says. "But Ms. Jarvis says not to worry. She is bringing a great deal of material."

Ms. Jarvis and her three teenagers — Paul, 16; Claire, 14, and Matthew, 12 — will be leaving a quaint brownstone apartment in the city for a roomy ranch-style house in Lake Katrine, five country miles from school and work.

For Zullo, his wife Barbara and daughters Lara, 6, and Amanda, 3 — never out of the United States except for trips to Canada — it will be a return to America's mother country.

Through five months of letters and tapes, the Zullos and Jarvises have been getting acquainted and plying one another with questions.

"I know your letters 'alf by 'eart now," Ms. Jarvis tells Zullo on her latest tape.

Both families now know that American "cots" are British "campbeds" and that British "cots" are American "cribs." That our "erasers" are their "rubbers," and that they call rubbers "Wellingtons."

"And we both are resigned to driving on the wrong side of the road," Zullo smiles.

By an odd coincidence, Zullo's next-door neighbor is Mrs. Darryl Gulley, who is both British-born and first-named Jennifer. She'll help Mrs. Jarvis from getting too homesick.

The Zullos also have a dining room set that may make Ms. Jarvis feel at home. Built by Olive carpenter Steve Heller of four-inch-thick cedar, the heroically proportioned furniture has been nicknamed the "King Henry" set.

"Every time I sit down in it," Zullo says, "I feel like Henry the Eighth."

SEARCHING THE PAST

An archeological dig in Warwarsing has turned up evidence that men lived in Ulster County as long as 8,000 years ago

The New Paltz Archaeological Field School, on a dig in Wawarsing, has discovered some Indian artifacts as old as 8,000 years which will help researchers to reconstruct the history of Ulster County.

The dig, directed by Leonard Eisenberg, professor of archaeology at the State University College at New Paltz, was conducted by 24 undergraduate and graduate students of archaeology, some of whom camped out at the site. Eisenberg and his students, working for a six-week period on Indian Hill, recovered over 1,000 stone and ceramic artifacts which give evidence that man has lived in the area for more than 7,000 years. Among them are early spear and arrow heads dating back to 6,000 B.C., portable tools for the grinding of acorns and over 700 pieces of pottery dating back to roughly 1,000 A.D.

The discovery of early weaponheads seems to resolve the debate as to whether there were Indians in the area as early as 6,000 B.C. While most of the evidence discovered seems to point to the intermittent occupation of the area by a variety of groups, the discovery of so many pottery pieces suggests that a stable or semi-permanent settlement might have been located nearby.

"The stone knives, spear and dart points and scraping tools discovered," Eisenberg explained, "indicate that the various Indian groups occupying the site were primarily engaged in the hunting and butchering of game most likely deer. The tools for nutting and grinding point to the Indians' involvement with plant gathering and processing."

Rocks have been uncovered which might have been used as hearthstones. Hearthstones, a pre-ceramic tool, were used in cooking. The procedure was fairly simple: heated stones were dropped into a skin filled with water; when the stones cracked, they released heat and boiled the water needed for cooking the food.

The group also recovered a stone stamp which was used to create designs on pottery. The stamp, a "rare find," Eisenberg said, "helps to resolve some of the questions concerning the techniques of prehistoric pottery design."

Many firepits were uncovered and charcoal from the pits has been sent to a laboratory for radioactive dating. Soil in the firepit areas has been sent to SUNY's archaeology lab for analysis and may provide information about prehistoric diet and environment.

Asked why he chose this area for archaeological study, Eisenberg said that, outside of one excavation in Kingston conducted by New York University, there has been "no professional archaeology in Ulster County."

The excavation works is important, Eisenberg explained, not only because of the information it provides about the history of Ulster County, but because "knowing the past gives us insight into the present and sometimes allows us to prophesy about the future."

Howard Koch:

The Kingston-born film writer harbors no bitterness over his years on Hollywood's blacklist

In 1947, Woodstock's Howard Koch earned $3,000 a week as a top screenwriter for Warner Brothers.

In 1948, Howard Koch couldn't get a job in the American motion picture industry. He had been accused, variously, of being a Communist, belonging to Communist-front organizations, and signing petitions in support of convicted Communists. For the next eight years, Howard Koch was blacklisted by Hollywood.

Sitting in his airy living room overlooking the Sawkill, Koch said quietly, "I'm not bitter. They didn't pick me out to persecute me. If you understand the trend of history, you understand that it was a necessity of that particular administration to create a blacklist period."

Koch was subpoenaed by the former House Un-American Activities Committee during its well-publicized hearings on Communist influence in Hollywood during the late forties.

Although the Committee never disproved Hollywood's assertion that "the screens weren't reddened by anything but Technicolor," in Arthur Mayer's words, the hearings caused considerable trouble for the studios, for writers, actors, and directors, and most of all for those who had actually joined the Communist Party in the late thirties as a protest against poverty and exploitation.

Koch was a member of the Hollywood Nineteen, which the Committee later whittled down to ten.

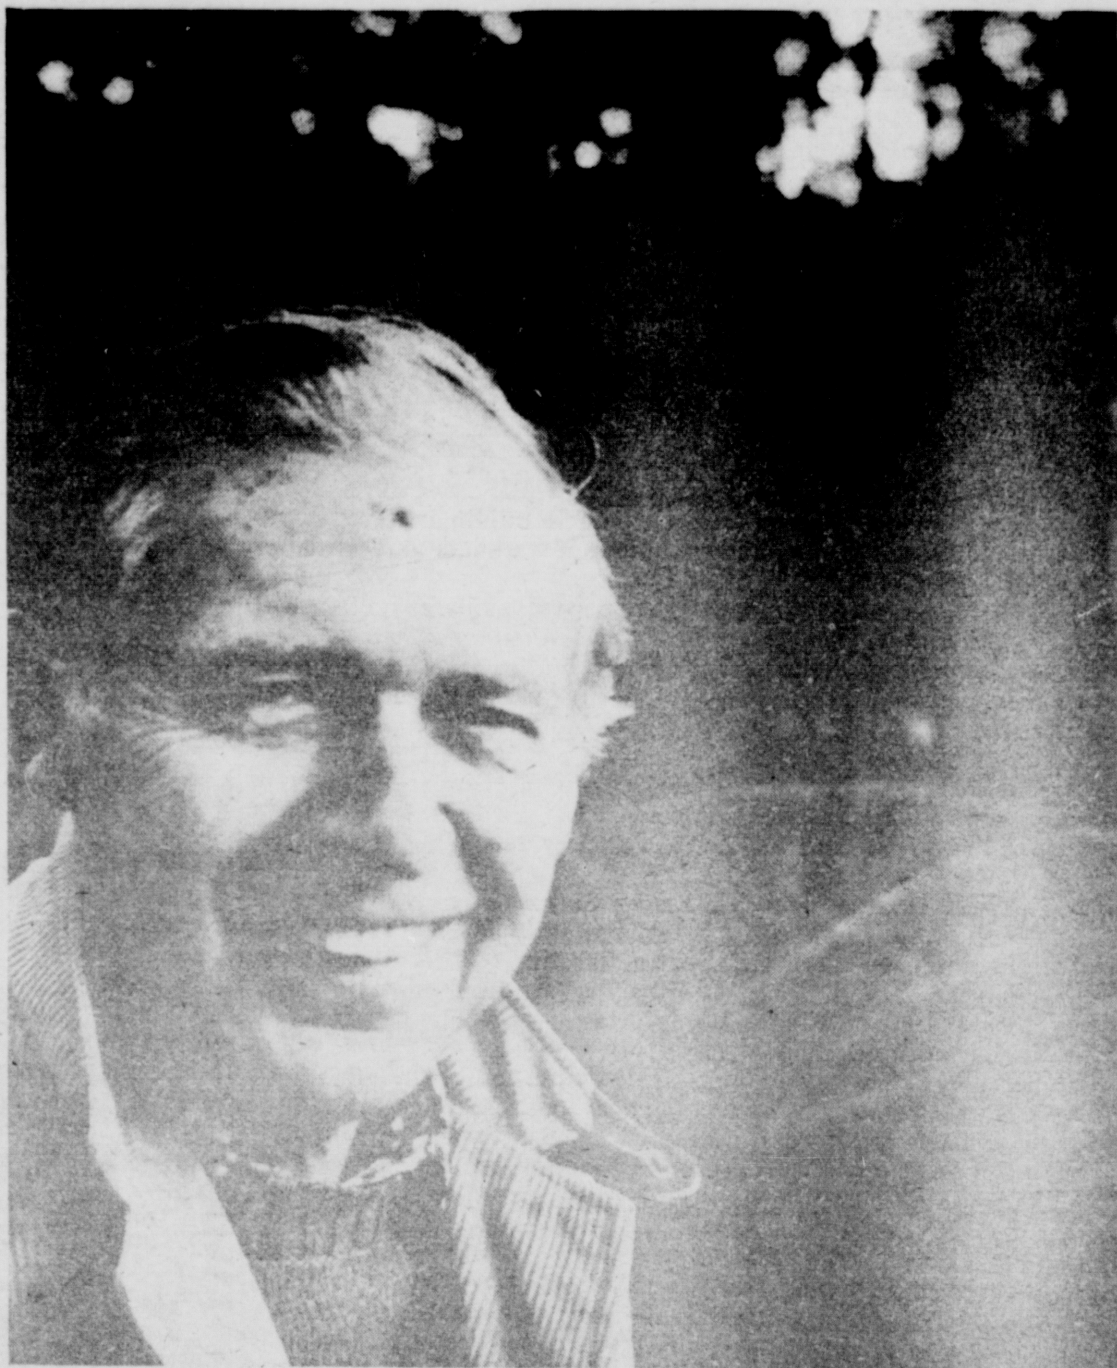

Those ten, including Dalton Trumbo, who wrote the screenplay for "Exodus" and Ring Lardner, Jr., who wrote "M*A*S*H", refused to tell the committee whether they were Communists or not, and refused to tell if their friends were either. Lardner and Trumbo, among others, served year-long prison terms for contempt of Congress.

Koch narrowly escaped that fate.

"I was in my hotel room in Washington when I got a telegram from HUAC stating they didn't want me to appear. I could defend all my activities and beliefs, and I had never been a member of the Communist Party, so they didn't want that.

"Jack Warner told the committee I was a Communist. He was angry for my protesting his turning water hoses on striking stagehands at Warner Brothers," he said.

Koch looked over an anonymous mimeographed sheet taken from the Freeman's files listing nine reasons why his patriotism was suspect in the forties and fifties. "Yes, I attended a large number of things on that list, and signed a lot of petitions," he said firmly.

Howard Koch at his Woodstock home

"I was a sponsor of the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace. I'm still for world peace, and against war, both cold and hot. That wouldn't be considered subversive now," he said.

Many of the charges on the sheet speak of "Communist-front" organizations such as the conference, and the Civil Rights Conference in 1949. "Communist-front translated means progressive or liberal—the word was only used to frighten people. The word Communist has no meaning," Koch said.

"I was on many lists because I was a part of these organizations. The lists were compiled by all sorts of people — including a wholesale grocer from Syracuse — mostly, HUAC, the American Legion Americanization Committee and a private company called Red Channels," Koch recounted.

"Red Channels would sell names: people would pay to see if a name was subversive. The blacklist kept progressive minded writers out of the industry. I think a part of it was other people wanted their jobs," he said.

"The leaders of the industry tried to keep me as long as they could. They offered me the opportunity to go to a lawyer and denounce the organizations I belonged to and the beliefs I held.

"I was against war, and still am for civil rights of minorities, which was then an unfashionable position, and the scientific and cultural organization was concerned with the the environment: smog was a problem early in Los Angeles," he said.

"These were the activities which I and my friends took part in — those things are what were called Communist-front."

The blacklist was strictly a private affair managed by the Hollywood studio chiefs. To prove their patriotism, they offered Koch and writers like him jobs only if they would denounce their old friends, organizations, and beliefs.

"They had a lawyer named Martin Gang who was a liason between the committee and the industry. All my wife Anne and I had to do was to go to him and denounce our beliefs and organizations. We also would have to pay him quite a sum which the industry heads were willing to give me. We called it then Walking the Gangplank," Koch recounted.

"Anne and I refused. We were taken by our promoter to to Europe — there were promoters who could get high-priced writers for a fraction of their old prices.

"Our promoter brought us to Rome to do an Italian version of an original story. He would hand us wads of lira — he didn't want to write us a check.

"We lived very well in Europe. He gave us a wad of francs and we went to Paris to do a French version. We had a beautiful apartment under the Eiffel Tower.

"One day, our promoter said he wanted a German version, so he handed us a wad of marks and we went to Munich, staying in a castle he had rented for us. Suddenly, the marks dried up, our promoter disappeared and we were left high and dry. We got back to England where I could work in my own language," Koch said.

"That's the way we went across Europe with our 5-year-old son Peter. On the way back, in the Paris Airport, he looked up and said, 'England: what language do they speak in England?'" he recalled.

Koch spent five years in London, writing under an assumed name, and returned to his native country in 1956. He soon began a campaign to get off the blacklist.

"A lot of people suffered a great deal in the blacklist — loss of jobs, divorce, suicides, a lot of tragedies. I can't say we had any tragic time — we adjusted to a different standard of living but we enjoyed our stay. By 1956, McCarthy was petering out, and Peter wanted to come back," he explained.

He had been offered a writing job at United Artists, and engaged Edward Bennett Williams, the Washington lawyer for, among others, the Washington Post and John Connally, to clear his name. Koch was able to write the script for United Artists, but discovered that he was still on the blacklist.

"Williams said this was nonsense — that he would get me off the blacklist. He called up the American Legion Americanization Committee and said he would give them 24 hours to get Howard Koch's name off their list, or he would sue them for $2 million," he said. It worked.

Koch's writing credits include the radio script for Orson Welles's notorious 1938 broadcast of "The War of the Worlds," "Sergeant York," "Mission to Moscow" and at least part of the script for the immortal "Casablanca," for which he recieved an Academy Award.

"Casablanca" was a troubled project, with the screenwriters occasionally writing next day's script while Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman stared at each other during shooting on a neighboring sound stage.

"I was called to Washington six weeks before production was to begin and the salaries of stars like Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman, and Claude Rains were to begin. I worked two weeks with the Epstein Brothers, who inherited the original play, and then on my own," Koch remembered.

"That was a very difficult period — none of us expected much out of this; we just hoped we wouldn't have a failure. But "Casablanca" seemed to have a life of its own."

How does he account for the movie's undying popularity a generation after it was made? "There must have been a need for it. Today, it's hard to find good and evil. You find it in all sorts of mixtures. It's not a clear, clean choice. People go back to "Casablanca" to find a time when you could make a choice between what was on the side of life and against life. "Casablanca" makes people feel that those values can be found again," he explained.

Koch was attacked after the war for writing the script of "Mission to Moscow," a 1943 film which portrayed Stalin as a kindly, strong, patriotic grandfather.

The 74-year-old Kingston native defended his role in "Mission to Moscow."

"My information for that film was from Joseph P. Davies, the ambassador to Russia, and I depicted Stalin in the movie as he had in the book. At the time, Stalin's forces were holding a 1,000 mile front against the Germans and had sustained 20 million casualties.

"The movie was made at Roosevelt's instigation. As an ally, Roosevelt wanted a different picture presented, a more objective picture. He invited Jack Warner and Davies to lunch. Warner wore his colonel's uniform, although his duties were somewhat nebulous — he never left the lot. Roosevelt said to Warner that a more objective picture was important for our joint war effort," Koch recalled.

"During the cold war, it was never taken out of the vault, but it was shown for years in Russia. A few years ago, it was resurrected in Washington, but the Soviets took it out of circulation because it was too favorable to Stalin. It became patriotic, and subversive, and patriotic again — it's all meaningless," he commented.

Koch, who looks 20 years younger than he is, is still diving off the rocks behind his house into the Sawkill and writing film scripts and plays. One of his plays will open on Broadway this fall with the provocative title "The Trial of Richard Nixon."

The play takes place in that one month between Nixon's resignation and his pardon. "It's the trial that never was but should have been," Koch explained, "I'm not writing a diatribe against Nixon — I'm trying to present as honest a picture as possible of a complicated and secretive man.

"He had all the Horatio Alger energy to climb by any means to a high position in history, but when he got there I think he felt subconsciously inadequate and he destroyed what he had built. I'm trying to tell it as a tragedy," he said.

Koch, born and raised in Kingston, has lived in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, and in Europe during the blacklist days, but he spends most of his time now at his Woodstock home, surrounded by pines and hemlocks.

"I still have a feeling — a proud feeling about the whole area. I don't think that Kingston has been spoiled. I like the way the old parts of Kingston are being protected — we're too apt to tear down the past and keep thinking that now is better," he said.

He's still offered screenwriting jobs, but he turns most of them down because he finds they often grate on his ethics.

"I was offered $75,000 to do a very pro-war picture on either Korea or Vietnam, I don't remember which, and I told them I wouldn't do that kind of picture for any kind of money."

"The producer said I did the right thing. You know, you don't have to do what you don't want to do if you hold out for what you want to do," he said.

"You can't divide people into good and bad. The one division you can make is: are they interested in what is good for people or just in accumulating wealth and power," said Koch, who lives with his choice as easily as Rick and Louie.

But the blacklist and the cold war succeeded in destroying a special time in America, he believes. "Then we were proud of Warner Brothers and of American pictures. We were making good pictures, and we felt happy.

"Now, its a matter of money, of the hot director, the hot star, the ripoff, the ripoff of a ripoff," he said.

"Social thinking has changed," Koch commented, moving to a perspective wider than a 35mm lens: "We didn't know what we had in the Roosevelt era. We felt a part of the county — we felt the country was ours. I haven't felt that way since."

Big Sister Is A Friend

A new area organization matches young girls with adult companions

For one young girl we'll call Annie, a trip to the supermarket may be one of the happiest occasions of her week. That's because she's going with her Big Sister.

Annie's Big Sister, whom we'll call Ilene, doesn't take her to expensive places, or shower her with gifts and toys. But what she does give her may be more valuable and lasting than any of those. Ilene spends time with Annie, and she offers her friendship.

For many young girls this friendship may be the first close relationship with an adult they've been able to find. A Big Sister can serve as a model if the girl is motherless or her mother is too burdened with younger children or other problems to spend much time with her daughter. Sometimes the mother is emotionally disturbed; in others, she may have a full time job.

When Ilene and Annie spend time together, it's just the two of them — with no brothers or sisters competing for Ilene's attention. They talk on the phone, go to the zoo, or to the library. Sometimes they'll just spend the afternoon at Ilene's house.

Annie doesn't get the opportunity to go very many places, and gets "very excited" during their excursions. But Ilene has worked hard to ensure that their relationship is not centered around where they go or what they do. After all, she said, "a friend can be a friend on a front porch."

Ilene has been successful in showing Annie that she means to be a friend to her, not simply to entertain her. When they first went out, Annie used to greet Ilene with the question: "Where are we going?" Now she asks, "When will I see you?"

One of Annie's greatest problems is that, like so many girls, she doesn't really like herself. Ilene is concentrating on showing Annie that she "appreciates her for herself." She is helping her to develop a better self-image.

When Ilene and Annie spend time together, it's just the two of them — with no brothers or sisters competing for Ilene's attention. They talk on the phone, go to the zoo, or to the library. Sometimes they'll just spend the afternoon at Ilene's house.

Annie doesn't get the opportunity to go very many places, and gets "very excited" during their excursions. But Ilene has worked hard to ensure that their relationship is not centered around where they go or what they do. After all, she said, "a friend can be a friend on a front porch."

Ilene has succeeded in showing Annie that she means to be a friend to her, not simply to entertain her. When they first went out, Annie used to greet Ilene with the question: "Where are we going?" Now she asks, "When will I see you?"

In the short time that they have been together, Ilene has noticed some very obvious changes in Annie's physical appearance and in her attitude. She is clean when Ilene sees her; she is polite. She is consciously trying to improve her speech.

Best of all, Annie's relationship with her family has improved. There is a great deal of competition between Annie and her brothers and sisters for their mother's attention. Annie has to deal with her mother's preference for her younger brother. The home and the family are not kept clean and they don't always have enough to eat. While Annie and her brothers and sisters still fight for both their mother's attention and for food, Annie has at times "taken on a big sister's attitude towards them."

Ilene tries to support Annie's mother in her decisions when Annie complains to her. She doesn't want to undermine the authority of Annie's mother. But she also hopes to help Annie to learn to respect her mother, and to understand that she too cares about her.

Annie does not seem to demonstrate any ambition, though Ilene has noticed that she is both artistic and athletic. As Ilene explains it, "A mother who has no goals of her own can't encourage a child to develop goals." Ilene is working to broaden her interests. With her Big Sister's help, Annie reads books about women in different professions. And Ilene introduces her Little Sister to her friends who are working.

Annie craves affection too, and Ilene delivers willingly. She supports the Big Sister program for she feels that it often catches the child when she is "still open, willing and looking for this affection." The feelings shown the little sister must be genuine. And for Annie, the kiss or hug she receives from Ilene means a lot.

Many potential Big Sisters fear they don't have enough knowledge or experience to be a Big Sister, but Ilene emphasized her method of dealing with Annie is basically intuitive.

"I've made a few mistakes," she said, "but they've been minor in comparison to the mistakes made at home."

Ilene and Annie have been together since April. They were matched through the Big Sister program, relatively new in Ulster County. The idea was first conceived in January of 1971 when a girl who had no place to go called the YWCA for help. Unable to find any help for her in the community, a member of the staff took her in — initiating the program.

Though the Big Sister program has been operating since around 1973, it has only begun to work effectively this year under the directorship of Susan See and an active board of directors. At the moment, they have more Big Sister than girls to care for, ironic in that Ms. See, who previously worked for Social Services, knows there are many girls who could benefit from the program in the county.

The program is open to girls age seven to 17 from all social and economic levels, any

The aim of the program is to prevent delinquency and foster growth and self-development. The girl must want to join the program and her parents must give written consent. They may be referred by parents, social agencies, schools, churches or courts. The program is not open to girls with serious emotional or mental problems; they are usually referred elsewhere. As Ms. See put it, Big Sisters work with children "a layman could handle."

Big Sisters volunteer, either by calling Ms. See or by coming to her office at 277 Fair St. They fill out an extensive questionnaire, giving both personal references and their preferences as to what type of child they want. Questions such as: "Would you object to a child with a drug problem?" are asked, in an effort to make a suitable and valuable match. The results of this questionnaire are matched up with the child's preferences, and with an eye to geographical considerations.

Ms. See interviews the volunteer personally and makes a visit to the home of the Little Sister. Then the volunteer attends a group training session and finally the sisters meet with Ms. See over a Coke.

If all goes well, the sisters get together on their own. If for some reason the match is not successful, either sister can request a change and a new match will be made.

Ilene has found her relationship with Annie very rewarding, and she is certain that Annie feels the same. Ilene has managed to fill some of Annie's emotional needs, and while the prognosis for Annie's future may not be very promising, Ilene has helped Annie develop some of the self-confidence she'll need to mature.

Tomorrow's Olympic Stars to Shine!

Pamela Porter of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, gets ready to heave her shot put for the first-place victory in the girls shot-put competition in the 1975 Junior Olympics. A shot-put is a round metal ball.

Soon after the Olympics finish in Montreal, Canada, more than 2,000 American athletes between the ages of 8 to 18 will meet in Memphis, Tennessee, for the National AAU-Chevrolet Junior Multisport Championship, better known as the National Junior Olympics.

The dates for these Olympics will be August 20-23.

The athletes will compete in eight sports: diving, swimming, synchronized swimming, judo, wrestling, track and field, gymnastics and trampoline and tumbling.

These young super sports have all competed and won in other meets throughout the year. For every boy and girl who gets to enter the National Junior Olympics, there are thousands more who competed in state and regional championships. Every year several million boys and girls take part in the Junior Olympic programs.

For many athletes who competed in the Olympic Games in Montreal, the Junior Olympics was their first big step, dash, flip, toss or splash.

Mark Spitz, the swimmer in the 1972 Olympics, who won seven gold medals, started in the Junior Olympics program.

Many of the boys and girls at the Olympics in Memphis hope to compete in the Olympics in 1980 or 1984. They know the importance of training and good performance at an early age. They are tomorrow's Olympic stars.

The symbol of the Junior Olympics-AAU stands for the Amateur Athletic Union, the group that sets up the rules for amateur sports in this country.

For Parents 'n Teachers

This section of The Mini Page is especially designed for parents and teachers to use with this week's issue.

Page 1: If your child is interested in the AAU Junior Olympic program and you do not know whom to contact, write to: The Junior Olympic Program, AAU House, 3400 West 86th Street, Indianapolis, Indiana, 46268. Send a stamped, self addressed envelope and indicate the sport in which the child is interested. The AAU also published an Official Rules for the 1976 Junior Olympics. You can get this by sending 75c to the above address.

Page 2: The Littlest Champion: Diana Goldsworthy can bounce 16 feet into the air. Have the kids measure how high that would be. Discuss trampoline safety and the fact that you have to know what you are doing or it could be very dangerous.

Secret Joke: Cut the joke out of the center. Use the guide as the code and have the kids write other messages to different members of the family.

Robert Thayer in action consists of the 100-meter dash, running long jump, shot put, running high jump, 400-meter run, 120-yard high hurdles, discus throw, pole vault, javelin throw and 1,500-meter run.

Robert Thayer of Marysville, Washington, was the 1975 senior boys decathlon champion. The decathlon is a 10-event competition. It

The Littlest Champion

Diana Goldsworthy, age 11, of Rockford, Illinois, was the youngest gold medal winner in the 1975 Junior Olympics.

She is so good officials at the World Trampoline competition dropped the rule that girls had to be 14 years old to compete. She came in fourth.

"Someday I hope to win the World Championship," Diana told The Mini Page. She's been trampolining for four years.

"You don't worry about anything when you are way up there! You feel like you could even do better."

Diana practices four times a week. She is interested in diving and trampolining helps.

Diana can go as high as 16 feet into the air!

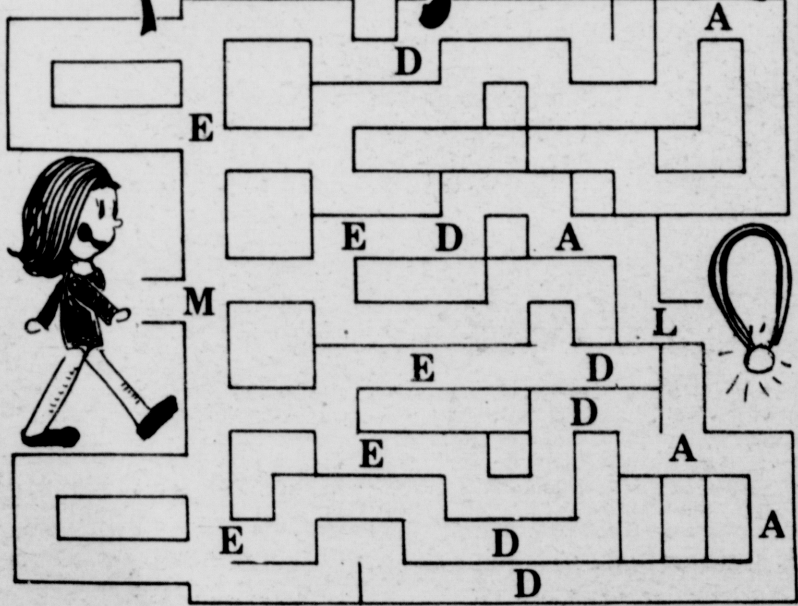

Diana proudly wears her gold medal

Trampoline contestants are judged on form, height and how close they come to the center of the net. They do a series of exercises in mid-air while bounding.

Trampolining is not an Olympic sport. Diana Goldsworthy hopes someday it will be. She would be a very good contender for the U.S. team.

What! A Bird With Horns!

See the horned lark. He looks as if he has horns, but he really doesn't. Those pointed things on his head are just feathers that stick up that way.

There are many horned larks around, but you don't often notice them because they are small and dull colored.

When you do spot one, you have to catch him in just the right light to see his horn feathers. A good way to identify him is by the black breast mark.
